———Revision—Court dismissing case after 5 p.m. without notice to litigants — Material irregularity.

The usual court hours in the United Provinces have been fixed by the High Court to be between 10-30 a. m. and 4 p.m. and they cannot be altered without special sanction. This does not however fetter the discretion of subordinate courts, as for example to sitting after 4 p. m. to conclude the hearing of a particular case when it also suits the convenience of parties concerned. Where however without any special reason or notice to the parties, the court took up a fresh case after 5 p. m. and dismissed it because plaintiff was absent, held it was a fit case for the interference of the High Court in revision (Piggott, J.) BEVIS AND CO. v. RAM PRASAD. 20 A. ———Second appeal—Question of law and fact—Reasonable cause.

Whether there was reasonable and probable cause is a mixed question of fact and law and the High Court in second appeal is bound to accept the facts as found by the Court of appeal below, but High Court is entitled to examine whether the inference drawn therefrom is legitimate. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) BISHUN SINGH v. A. W. N. WYATT. 16 C. W. N 540 : 11 I. C. 729 : 14 C. L. J. 515.

To base judgment on document not tendered in evidence or on record is an error of law. (Bevan Petman, J.) JOHRI v. JOWAHRA. 58 I. C. 67 : 91 P. L. R. 1919.

PRACTICE—Second Appeal.

——Second appeal—Question of law—Inference from facts—Implied contract.

Where a particular conclusion is the only inference that a Court can draw and the Lower Appellate Court fails to draw that inference, the matter is one of law into which the High Court cannot enter. But where more than one inference is possible the fact that the Lower Appellate Court made one instead of another, is not a ground for interference in second appeal. The question of implied contract is one of fact. (Krishnaswami Iyer and Ayling, JJ.) MALLIKARJUNA PRASADA v. VASUDEVA RAO.
9 M. L. T. 329 : 9 I. C 169 : 21 M. L. J. 156.

——Second appeal—Finding of fact.

A finding on a consideration of evidence should not be disturbed in second appeal (Kanhaiya Lal, A. J. C.) DURGA v. FAKIRAY.
50 I. C. 195 : 6 O. L. J. 86

——Second appeal—Evidence not brought to notice of lower court.

The High Court will not entertain second appeal on the ground that the lower courts have overlooked evidence if it is found that it was not brought to their notice by the parties. (Chapman and Roe, JJ.) JANKI SAHU v RAN BAHADUR SINGH. 2 Pat. L. J. 231 : 39 I. C. 398 : 1 Pat. L. W. 658.

——Second appeal—Finding of fact.

If the appellant did not challenge in the Lower Appellate Court a finding by the first Court that certain alienations by the guardian of a Hindu minor were not for legal necessity, he cannot challenge it in second appeal. Sentence.

——Sentence—Adjournment.

No court has an inherent power to adjourn the passing of a sentence for an indefinite time. An order convicting the accused and directing him to furnish security and to come up for sentence after a long time is really an adjournment of sentence and is therefore bad. Stay of Proceedings.

See C. P. CODE, O. 41, RR. 5 AND 6.

Stay of Trial.

——Stay of trial—Criminal proceeding—Pendency of civil suit between the parties on substantially same issues.

Where the parties to, and the issues in, two proceedings, civil and criminal are substantially the same and the prosecution before the Magistrate is but a private prosecution, it is not ordinarily desirable that both the cases should go on at the same time and the prosecution should be stayed. (Sanders, J. C.) KALIMA BIBI v MACBUL AHMED. 15 Cr. L. J. 488 : 24 I. C. 576 : 7 Bur. L. T. 73.

PRACTICE—Subordinate Courts.

Subordinate Courts.

——Subordinate Courts—Duty to follow decisions of its own High Court.

A subordinate Court is bound to follow the decision of a Bench of the High Court to which it is subordinate unless the decision of the Bench has been overruled by a subsequent decision of the Full Bench of the High Court or expressly or impliedly overruled by the Privy Council or the law has been altered by subsequent legislation. (Sir John Edge.) PUTTU LAL v. PARBATI KUNWAR:

——Subordinate Courts—Duty of.

Courts subordinate to the High Court ought not to do more than try out the pleadings of the parties and on the facts raised and put in issue before them They are not to anticipate and meet beforehand any objection to a plaintiff's suit which the ingenuity of abler and better instructed counsel may find it possible to raise in second appeal. (Mears C. J. and Piggott, J). IQBAL HAIDAR KHAN v. WASI FATIMA BIBI. 45 A. 53 : 1923 A. 358.

——Subordinate Courts—Duty to follow its own High Court.

A lower Court is bound to follow the ruling of that High Court to which it is subordinate in preference to the rulings of other High Courts where the two courts differ (Gokul Prasad and Stuart JJ.) BADRI PRASAD v. MOHAR SINGH.
1923 A. 231.

——Subordinate Courts—Ruling of a single judge.

A ruling by a single judge of the Punjab Chief Court, which has not been dissented from or overruled is as much binding upon subordinate Courts as the decisions of division benches. (Rattigan, C. J.) SHERKHAN v. MUZAFFAR KHAN
1 L. 25 : 55 I. C. 944 : 61 P. L. R. 1920 : 40 P. W. R. 1920.

——Subordinate Courts—Revenue Courts.

The Rev. Courts must follow the rulings of the Financial Commissioner until overruled by that officer himself (Maynard, O. F. C.) CHAILU v. MANSINGH. 3 P. R. (Rev.) 1911 : 258 P.L. R. 1911: 12 I. C. 442 : 5 P. W. R. (Rev.) 1911.

——Subordinate Courts—Duty, of, to follow the majority of Full Bench of High Court.

A Subordinate Court should follow the opinion of the majority of the Judges of the Full Bench and not the dissentient judgment of a single judge of that Bench. (Spencer and Seshagiri Iyer, JJ.) BANGARAYYADU v. PERAYYA SASTRI.
1915) M. W. N. 810 : 30 I. C. 927 : 2 L. W. 1025.

——Subordinate Courts—Duty to accept decision of Superior Court.

The subordinate court is bound to accept the decision of court to which it is subordinate. They act illegally, if they rely upon documents pronounced as not binding on the parties by the superior Court. (Seshagiri Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) PARASU PATTA v. VENKATACHALA PATTAR.

28 I. C. 982

———Subordinate Courts—Bound by order of higher courts.

A subordinate court has no right to question the order of an appellate court when the parties do not choose to question it. 21 M. 288, Foll. (Oldfield and Seshagiri Iyer, JJ.) NARAYANASWAMI NAIDU GARU v. KAMURI RAMAYYA.
16 M. L. T. 244 : 26 I. C. 475 : (1914) M W. N. 713 and 870.

———Subordinate Courts — Duty to follow High Court.

Subordinate courts must follow the decision published or unpublished of the High Court to which they are subordinate and cannot prefer the decision of some other court to that court (Stanyon, A. J. C.) PUHPI BAI v. ANSUYA BAI.
46 I. C. 902.

———Subordinate Courts—Duty of, to follow decisions of High Court.

A Court subordinate to Patna High Court is bound to follow the decisions of that Court no matter whether they are right or wrong or are in conflict with the decisions of the other High Courts in India. ———Subordinate Courts — Duty to follow decisions of superior tribunal.

It is the duty of Subordinate Courts to follow the decision of the superior court, leaving it to the superior court to deal with conflicts of opinion. (Young, J.) MA THIN HTON v. MA HNIN THET. 29 I. C. 709.

Subsequent Events.

———Subsequent events—Courts if can take notice of later events.

A court of law can take notice of subsequent events and adjust the matters between parties accordingly. (Mukerjee and Buckland, JJ.) DINANATH MAHISH v. NABAKUMAR HAJRA.
70 I. C. 542 : 35 C. L. J. 832.

———Subsequent events—Cognisance.

In exceptional cases, courts are justified in taking cognisance of events subsequent to the institution of suit when litigation is thereby shortened and justice rendered. On a declaration of title, possession may be granted when the lease of the deft. expires before the date of decree. (Chatterjee and Nawbould, JJ.) CHINTAI HARAN DAS v. RADHA CHARAN POTDAR. 37 I. C. 962.

———Subsequent events—Relief.

Where it is shown that the original relief claimed at the date of the institution of the suit has by reason of subsequent change of circumstances become inappropriate or that it is necessary to base the decision of the court on the altered circumstances in order to shorten litigation or to do complete justice between the parties, it is incumbent upon a court of justice to take notice of events which have happened since the institution of the suit and the court should mould its decree according to the circumstances as they stand at the time the decree is made. (Sanderson, C. J. and Mookerjee, J.) NURI MIAH v. AMBIKA SINGH.

A suit must be tried on the cause of action as it existed at the commencement. 7 C. L. J. 262, Foll. ; 2 W.R (P.C.) 19, Ref. to. A devolution of a plaintiff's interest in the subject-matter of the suit is not an exception to the general rule that a suit must be tried on the cause of action as it existed on the date of its commencement, and does not make the plaintiff incompetent to maintain the suit, there being no change in the cause of action (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) RAI CHARAN MANDAL v. BISWANATH MANDAL.

——Trial—Discovery—Order for—Hearing of preliminary issues.

Where it is necessary before an order for discovery can be made that certain questions in suit should first be decided, the proper order is that the suit should be set down for the settlement of issues The Judge would then be in a position to decide which of the issues were necessary to be determined before the question of inspection or discovery could be decided. PRACTICE—Trial.

——Trial—Arguments—Submission of written arguments—Propriety of.

When a case has been fully argued before the Court it ought not to be necessary for the pleader to submit notes of their argument. It is the duty of the Court to take such notes of the arguments as it thinks fit when they are being submitted. If Judge feels that he has not fully appreciated any part of the arguments which have been submitted to him, it is open to him to call the parties before him so that any further arguments may be presented in open court in the presence of the other side. If it becomes necessary, as in some exceptional case it may become necessary, for the Court either to require or to receive notes of the pleader's arguments, such notes ought not to be submitted to the Court by the pleader on one side without first submitting the notes to the pleader on the other side. If in any case a pleader desires to submit to the Court the notes of his argument, or of any further argument, which he thinks in the interest of his client ought to be put before the Court, he should submit them to the pleader on the other side so that the latter may have an opportunity of making any remarks or any criticism in respect thereof. It is in any case highly undesirable for a Judge to accept notes of argument in the form of a draft judgment. (Sanderson, C. J and Walmsley, J.) AMJAD ALI v. SURESH RANJAN PAL. 73 I. Witness.

——— Witness—Credibility—Circumstances entitling—Appellate court to differ from trial court should be exceptional.

Where the Judge, who has seen a witness, and has heard his evidence, comes to the conclusion that the witness is credible, that is to say a witness who to the best of his recollection intends to tell the truth, it requires circumstances of exceptional character to justify a Court of Appeal in coming to a different conclusion. ———Witness—Credibility—Trial and appellate Court.

When the question is whether a witness is speaking the truth or not, light is thrown upon it by the demeanour of that witness in the box by the manner in which he answers questions, and how he seems to be affected by the questions that are put to him, and so on. No doubt there the trial Judge has an advantage which cannot possibly be shared by any Appellate Court. But when the views upon credibility are founded upon argumentative inferences from facts which are not disputed, then the court of Appeal is really in just as good a situation as the judge of first instance. ——— Basis of claim—Ownership of property—Lease in perpetuity.

The milkiat or ownership of the property is sine qua non for the exercise of the right of pre-emption must have the milkiat or ownership in the property on account of which he claims the right of pre-emption. No right of pre-emption arises in respect of property leased in perpetuity. 25 W R. 43; 5 P. L. J. 740, foll. The law of pre-emption was founded on the supposed necessities of a Mahomedan family arising out of their minute sub-division and interdivision of ancestral property. It is purely a creature of the Mahomedan Law, and as the exercise of the right is adverse to public interest, the Courts are not disposed to recognise this right beyond the strict limits of the Mahomedan Law or beyond the decision of the Courts. Collusion.

——Collusion—Duty of Court—Mah. Law.

Where a custom of pre-emption prevails the vendor and vendee cannot defeat the pre-emptor by dressing up the transaction in the garb of a lease. The same principle applies to cases of a pre-emption under the Mahomedan Law. Where an issue as to the nature of the transaction is raised by the plff the Court is bound to determine its real nature and if after considering all the circumstances, namely, the sum which was paid down, the smallness of the rent and the value of the property, it came to the conclusion that it was a sale, it must hold that the right of pre-emption arose and determine whether the demands were made or not. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) MOHAMAD NIAZ KHAN v. MOHAMMAD ADREES KHAN. 40 All. 322: 44 I. C. 227 16 A. L. J. 233.

——Collusion—Presumption—Onus—Right of a son.

Unless the contrary is clearly established it is to be presumed that plaintiff sues for his own benefit. The mere fact that the plaintiff is a minor and the son of the vendor does not prove that the suit is for the benefit of vendor. The motive which led the plaintiff to institute the suit and the source from which funds are being derived do not prove that fact either and it is immaterial whether vendor is helping his son. The deft. has to prove strictly that the suit had been instituted for the benefit of the plaintiff's father. It did not lie on the plaintiff to prove that the suit was not for the benefit of his father. A son has a right to pre-empt apart from and independently of his father. 7 P. R. 1912, Rel. on. (Broadway and Bevan Petman, JJ.) NAZAR MUHAMMAD v. SARDAR MUHAMMAD. 2 Lah. L. J. 226.

——Collusion—Colourable transaction.

N made a gift to a person as his near kinsman and as having rendered services to N. It was found that the donee was neither related to N nor had rendered any service to N. The transaction was held to be a sale and pre-emption was allowed. (Johnstone, C. J. and Rattigan, J.) CHIRAGHDIN v. ALLAH DIN 70 P. R. 1916 : 118 P. W R. 1916 : 35 I. C. 303: 129 P. L. R. 1916.

——Collusion—Dismissal of suit.

To defeat a suit for pre-emption on the ground of collusion with the vendee strict proof that the plaintiff's object is really to secure the property for the vendee must be given. A motive to annoy and to defeat rival pre-emptors is not sufficient. (Rattigan and Shadi Lal, JJ.) AMAR SINGH v. KISHAN SINGH. 103 P. R. 1914 : 27 I. C. 93 : 202 P. L. R 1916.

——Collusion—Fictitious sale by vendee—Effect.

A fictitious resale or gift by the vendee to another person with superior or equal right, cannot defeat the pre-emptor's claim. The alienee only stands in the shoes of the vendee. 138 P. R. 1884; 73 P R. 1898; 53 P. R. 1911, Dist. (Shah Din, J.) FAZL DIN v. LAL SINGH. 164 P. W. R. 1913 : 20 I. C. 843 : 282 P L. R. 1913.

——Collusion does not defeat right.

Pre-emption can be defeated by lawful means. A fraudulent form given to a transaction of sale cannot prevent a party from asserting his right of pre-emption. Where in a joint family one member mortgaged his property to one brother and subsequently sold the equity of redemption to another brother this was held to be such a fraudulent transaction as could not defeat the right of pre-emption. Custom—Applicability.

——Custom — Applicability of Mahomedan law to Hindus Cities and villages—Distinction.

There should be no extension of the Mahomedan law of pre-emption among Hindus beyond the limits established by proof of custom. The law of pre-emption which applies to villages does not necessarily apply to property in cities. 45 B. 604, Foll. Where there has been a partition of a village into separate mahals, a sharer in one of he new mahals who claims a right of pre-emption in respect of land in another mahal (of which he was not a sharer at the date of sale) must show either on the construction of the wajib-ul-arz or by other evidence that the custom of pre-emption survived the partition. From the fact that a fresh wajib-ul-arz has not been prepared at the partition, it does not follow as a matter of law or principle that the custom or contract in force before partition is no longer to have effect or operation ; the question must depend on the circumstances of each case and the inferences to be drawn from the evidence. The provisions regarding pre-emption in a village were contained in a wajib-ul-arz, Chapter II of which was headed thus :—" Mutual rights of the co-sharers, based on custom of particular contracts." Paragraph 14 of the Chapter was headed 'Custom relating to the right of pre-emption." The clause gave a right of pre emption first to a near co-sharer then to a co sharer in the patti, afterwards to a co sharer in the thok and lastly to a co-sharer in the mahal. Held, that the wajib-ul-arz clearly evidenced a custom of pre-emption in respect of the mahals to which it related. ———Custom—Proof—Entry in Wajib-ul-arz—Interpretation.

Prima facie entry in the Wajib-ul-arz is to be treated as an entry of a custom. That has been laid down in time and again and has the authority of their Lordships of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. It has however, always been held that the presumption is liable to be overth own either by external or internal evidence. In a wajib ul-arz, the pre-emption clause relied upon was to the following effect. In cases where a mortgage has been made by a co-sharer and where that co-sharer is unwilling to redeem the mortgage created by him at the time when a redemption may be sought, other co-sharers in certain order may come forward and demand and get redemption of the mortgage and may take over the property and keep it for themselves. Held, that the clause provided clearly that persons who are strangers to a mortgage have a right of redemption and have a right to recover the property from the mortgagee and hold for themselves after they have paid the mortgage. ———Custom —Proof —Wajib-ul-arz, entry in.

At the time of the Mutiny in 1857 a village was confiscated by the Government who held it for 21 years and then granted it to a stranger and not to the original proprietor. Wajib-ul arz prepared one year after this did not state the actual facts. In a suit for pre-emption the entry in the Wajib-ul-arz was relied on to prove the existence of a custom of pre-emption. Held. that the entry in Wajib-ul-arz was no proof of the custom of pre-emption but that, it was merely a record of the wishes of the Zamindars. The mention of the existence of the custom of pre-emption in two wajib-ul-arzes drawn up at a considerable interval of time, the admission of its existence by the co-sharers in the village and the fact that previous sales have been in favour of co-sharers are sufficient to establish the existence of the custom (Tudball and Rafique, JJ.) THAKUR ATRAJ SINGH v. MOOLOO SINGH.

———Custom—Proof of, nature of, wajib-ul-arz—Construction of.

In cases of pre-emption where the issue is whether there exists a custom or not the decision is made on the facts and circumstances. The plaintiff is therefore to prove not only the prevailing custom but a custom under which he is entitled.

Where the evidence supporting the existence of such a custom was the wajib-ul-arz which provided that whenever a co-sharer, wishing to make an absolute sale of his share, or mortgage by a conditional sale, he must first offer it to the co-sharers.

Held, that the evidence was insufficient to establish the existence of a particular custom essential for the plaintiff to prove, and that the clause did not apply to the case of exchange. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) BHAGWAN SINGH v. RAJWANT KUNWAR. 38 I. C. 157 (All.)

———Custom—Proof of.

The custom of pre-emption based on the wajib-ul-arz of 1865 applies only when a co-parcenary relation exists and not when perfect partition has taken place. In a suit for pre-emption it lies upon the plff. not merely to prove the custom of pre-emption but to prove the existence of a custom under which he himself has a right, that is to say, he has to prove existence of a custom which gives right to a person who is not a co-sharer with vendor. In a suit for pre-emption against another co-sharer the onus lies on the plaintiff to prove not only that the custom exists but that under it he has a right to pre-empt as against another co-sharer. In such a case the mere production of the wajib-ul-arz the meaning of which is doubtful, is not enough to discharge the onus. The terms karibi and baidi are ambiguous. They refer to nearness or distance in space or in relationship. (Richards, C J. and Tudball, J) DINDAYAL v. RAMDHAN. 28 I. C. 306

——— Custom—Proof of—Wajib-ul-arz.

Where the Wajib-ul-arz provides for pre-emption only in case of simple sales usufructuary mortgages and mortgages by way of conditional sale, a suit based on custom pre-emption of the sale effected by a foreclosure decree in a mortgage by conditional sale will not lie. The issue in a pre-emption case is not the construction of the Wajib-ul-arz but the existence of the custom and the onus is on the plaintiff to prove the custom. 43 A. 605 Foll. (*Richards, C. Custom—Miscellaneous.

Pre-emption in village communities in India had its origin in the Mahomedan law and was adopted after the moghul rule. In course of time customs of pre-emption grew up or were adopted among village communities, either in accordance with Mahomedan law or with a variation. A custom of pre-emption was in all cases the result of agreement among the share-holders of the particular village. The object is as far as possible to prevent strangers to a village from becoming sharers in the village. Rights of pre-emption when they exist are valuable rights, and when they depend on a custom or upon a contract, the custom or contract as the case may be must, if disputed, be proved. ———Custom or contract — Wajib-ul-arz — Saharanpur Dt.

The entries in a wajib-ul-arz are prima facie to be regarded as referring to customs rather than to agreements. The Court however can take into consideration when considering the evidence as a whole, the language which is used in the wajib-ul-arz along with other evidence. If on a consideration of the entire evidence the Court is not satisfied that a custom exists, the finding is a finding of fact with which the High Court cannot interfere in second appeal. There is no law or decision to the effect that a custom of pre-emption does not exist in Saharanpur Dt. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) BARU MAL v. TANSUKH RAI.

———Custom or contract—Entries in wajib-ul-arz

References in wajib-ul-arz to pre-emption are to be taken as references to customs rather than to contracts. ———Custom or contract—Wajib-ul-arz—Construction—Value of.

In pre-emption cases the wajib-ul-arz is in some cases, evidence of great importance. But the existence or non existence of a custom of pre-emption does not and cannot depend upon the construction of a wajib-ul-arz which is to be taken into consideration and carefully considered. There is no class of evidence which varies so much in its importance as does a wajib-ul-arz. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) ZALIM SINGH v. RADHA BAI. 17 I.C. 594.

PRE EMPTION—Custom or Contract.

———Custom or contract—Wajib-ul-arz—Evidence—Perfect partition.

In a suit for pre-emption, the onus is upon the plff. to prove the existence of the custom of pre-emption. It is necessary for him not merely to establish the existence of some custom of pre-emption but he has to establish the existence of a particular custom which gives him the right to pre-empt as against the deft. No difference exists between the mode of proof of a custom of pre-emption and any other custom. The existence or otherwise of a custom of pre-emption cannot be said to depend upon the construction of a wajib-ul-arz. The wajib-ul-arz is not the custom. It is merely evidence of custom, and no class of evidence is more likely to change in value according to circumstances than that of the wajib-ul-arz. 32 A. 363 Ref. The main object of the custom of pre-emption is to prevent strangers coming into the co parcenary body. 22 A. 1. Ref. A co-sharer in one of the mahals transferred his share to another person, a mortgagee, in the same mahal. A co-sharer of the village who was a co-sharer in a different mahal, brought a suit for pre-emption. Held, that the suit should fail. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) AHMAD SAYED KHAN v. DIGAMBAR SINGH. 16 I. C. 361.

———Custom or contract — Wajib-ul-arz—Question of proof—Partition.

After perfect partition of the village into three mahals, a wazib-ul arz was prepared which was a copy of the one before the partition. Plaintiff brought a pre-emption suit, in which he was a co-sharer in a mahal different from that in which the property was situate, held that if the suit was based on contract, plaintiff should fail as he was not a party to the wajib-ul arz, and if the suit is based on custom, plaintiff should fail as he had not proved the custom. It is for the plaintiff to prove that a particular custom prevails. The question to be decided is the proof of the existence of the custom and not merely the construction of the wazib ul-arz. ———Custom or contract— Wajib-ul-arz — Construction.

The wajib-ul-arz of 1873 of a village gave the right of pre-emption, first to the own brothers of the vendor or nephews having a common ancestor ; second to a co-sharer in the patti, and the third to the co-sharer in another patti. The wajib ul-arz of 1873 which was headed " Right of co-sharers inter se based upon custom or contract " provided " If a share-holder wishes to transfer, he shall do so to his own brother, then to near relations, if they refused, then to the co-sharer of the patti and after them to the co-sharers in the village." After the preparation of this latter wajib ul arz the village was partitioned. The pre-emptor was a brother but not a co-sharer of the vendor, and had no right of pre-emption. ——Decree—Equitable relief—Power of Court to award.

The Court need not attach any sanctity to the pre-emptor's right to be given possession nor is the Court in granting a pre-emption decree precluded from moulding the relief according to the justice of the case. The general principle is that a plaintiff suing for possession will not obtain an unconditional decree in cases, where the party in possession has satisfied an encumbrance subsisting upon the estate at the time he came into possession, which otherwise the plaintiff himself will have to meet. There may be cases in which a Court would hold that the vendee had paid off encumbrances in bad faith or improvidently, and would refuse to add this payment to the money payable under the pre-emption decree. Only the interests of the third parties may be involved. But the general rule does apply to pre-emption decrees like other decrees for possession of property. (*Dalal and Simpson, A. J. ——Decree—Payment in accordance therewith—Right fructifies into title.

A pre-emption right fructifies, after decree and payment in accordance with the decree into a title to the property, which title however, may be subject to the decision in an appeal by a defeated litigant in the case. (Kanhaiya Lal and Kendall, A. J. C.) RAMSAHAY v. JAGADAMBA SINGH.

The respondent obtained a pre-emption decree and was put in possession of property after payment While the appeal was pending the magistrate recovered money in payment of fine due from the appellant who was convicted of a criminal offence. The pre emption decree was reversed in appeal. Held, the appellants were entitled to possession of property contrary to the Lower Court's order. PRE-EMPTION—Joint Vendees.

Joint Vendees.

——Joint vendees.

In a purchase by several vendees, each purchased a separate specified and divided share. One of the vendees died and his representatives were not brought on record within the prescribed period. Held, that the suit for pre-emption for his share abated ; but that it did not abate in respect of the shares purchased by other vendees. 4 A. 145 Dist. 12 I. C. 738 : 8 A. L. J. 1135.

——Joint vendees—Suit against vendees one of whom was wrong person—Correct vendee brought on record after limitation—Effect on suit.

Where in a pre-emption suit against two joint purchasers one of them was first wrongfully named as vendee and the correct person was then brought on record but after limitation—held that as the sale in favour of the vendees was a joint one, the suit is barred in toto. (Richards, C. J and Tudball, J.) MAMRAJ SINGH v. HIRDAY RAM. 11 I. C. 938 : 8 A. L. J. 814 ——Joint vendees—Purchaser joining one having inferior rights— Effect of— Purchase money—Sale-deed—Intention of parties—Estoppel.

If a purchaser having an equal right of pre-emption associates with himself in the purchase a person with rights inferior to those of a pre-emptor, he is not entitled to resist the claim of such pre-emptor to enforce his rights even as to his share of the purchase. 48 P R. 1907 Foll. Persons where by clothing their transaction in a particular form, induced a pre-emptor to come forward and claim pre-emption in respect of the transaction as a whole they cannot be allowed to turn round thereafter and claim to show that their real intention was something quite different, 5 P. R. 1914 Foll. Where the purchase money for a sale is paid by the various vendees in a lump sum without specification of the amounts paid by the various vendees, the transaction must be regarded as indivisible, though the shares to be taken by the various vendees may have been specified in the deed. ——Joint vendees—Indivisible transaction—Purchase money expressed as a lump sum.

Where a sale deed specifies the shares to be taken by the several vendees, but the purchase money is expressed to be paid in a lump sum without specification, the sale transaction must be held to be indivisible. Lis pendens.

———Lis pendens—Sale to superior pre-emptor—Effect.

Where pending a suit for pre-emption, a person having a superior right to that of plaintiff purchases the property within the prescribed period of limitation the suit for pre emption must fail. The fact that the third party purchased at a private sale does not make it any the less a purchase in the exercise of the right of pre-emption. (Martineau, J.) DHARAM SINGH v. KIRPAL SINGH. 1923 Lah. 31 (2).

———Lis pendens—Transfer of property pending suit.

Pending a suit for pre-emption the vendees transferred the property to a third person under an exchange. The transfer was not made in recognition of the superior right of pre emption. Held, that the transfer was effected by lis pendens and that the defendant could not resist the plaintiff's claim. (Shadi Lal, C. J and Harrison, J.) MUNSHI RAM v. MAGHAR MAL. 67 I. C. 304.

A proprietor vendee joining with himself non-proprietors in the purchase is in no better position than that held by the latter, and cannot resist the claim even in regard to his own share, where the sale is indivisible and the deed does not specify the amounts to be paid by the several vendees. 100 P. A resale by a non-proprietor to a proprietor having taken place after the suit had been instituted the rule of lis pendens applied and the re-sale by non-proprietor of his right after the institution of the suit cannot affect the plaintiff's claim, notwithstanding the fact that it (re-sale) took place before summonses were served on the defendants 29 A 339 P. A house belonging to a Hindu lady was sold by her husband in her absence. A third person brought a pre-emption suit impleading the husband and his vendee. During the pendency of this suit, the lady obtained a decree cancelling the sale and possession of the house from the husband and his vendee Thereupon she was impleaded as a defendant in the pre-emotion suit, in which the house was proved to belong to the lady and her husband had no authority to sell it even in her behalf. Both of them acknowledged her to be the real owner without any rights of them in the house. Held, the pre-emption suit must fail, (2) that the doctrine of Lis pendens did not apply to the decree obtained by the lady against her husband and his vendee (Rattigan and Shah Din, JJ.) MUSAMMAT DHAN DEVI v. BALMOKAND. 191 P. PRE-EMPTION—Mah. Law—Demand.

Mahomedan Law—Demand

——Mahomedan Law—Demand—Proof of—Talab-i-is—Testimony of witnesses—Joint demand—Legality.

In cases of pre-emption under Mahomedan Law, the statement of the plaintiff, if believed, is sufficient to prove the demand and it is not essential for him to bring witnesses in evidence in whose presence the talab was made. The fact that two demands were made at one and the same time regarding two separate transfers does not make them illegal (Rafique and Lindsay, JJ.) SAYAD AMJAD ALI v. SAYAD WAJID ALI.
4 L. R. All. 115 : 1923 All. 487.

——Mahomedan Law — Demand— Second demand—Validity.

Mahomedan Law requires that the second demand for pre-emption should be made either in the presence of the vendor or vendee or on the property that is the subject of pre-emption. The singular words 'vendor' and 'vendee' include the plural also. According to the interpretation of the Mahomedan Lawyers, if the demand is made neither in the presence of vendor nor on the property sought to be pre-empted but in the presence of the vendee then in case there are more than one vendee the demand should be made in the presence of all (Rafique and Lindsay, JJ.) ALIMAN BEGAM v. ALI HUSAIN.
45 A. 449 : 1923 A 355 (1).

——Mahomedan Law — Demand — Second demand—Absence of reference to first—Effect.

Under Mahomedan Law, the second demand or talab i-muasibat in a case of pre-emption must call the attention of the witnesses present to the first demand or talab-i-ishtishad which he had previously made. The fact that the same witnesses were present when the first demand was made is immaterial. (Rafique and Piggott, JJ.) SADIQ ALI v ABDUL BAQI KHAN.
45 A. 290 : 21 A. L. J. 109 : L. R. 4 A. 99 : 1923 A. 251.

——Mahomedan Law—Demand—Necessity for.

Under the Mahomedan Law a suit for pre-emption cannot succeed unless the demands for pre-emption of the property are made immediately after knowing of the sale of the property. (Rafique and Piggott, JJ.) ABDUL RAHIM v. MT. RAFIQ-UN-NISSA. 4 U. P. L. R 24 (A) : 1923 A 229.

——Mahomedan Law—Demand.

In the absence of other circumstances a mere statement such as "I have a right to pre-emption and how will the vendees take it" does not amount to a valid first demand according to the strict Mahomedan Law. (Tudball and Sulaiman, JJ.) MANGRU v. PARSOTAM DAS.
58 I. C. 777: 18 A. L. J. 1037.

——Mahomedan Law—Demand—Delay in second demand—Zamindari.

The vendee is the person most concerned in the making of the second demand; hence this demand may be delayed for any reasonable time, in order to have it made in the vendee's presence, though the pre-emptor could do it in the presence of vendor or on the land itself. Law of pre-emption applies to Zamindari property and is not limited to houses, gardens and small plots of land. (Richards, C. J. and Rafique, J.) FAZAL AHMAD v. TASADDIQ HUSAIN. 17A. L. J 445 : 50 I. C. 92 : 41 All. 428.

——Mahomedan Law—Demand.

Second demand (talab-i-istishad) by the pre-emptor is absolutely necessary for pre-emption under Mahomedan Law. (Richards, C. J. and Rafique, J.) MUHAMMAD AHMED SAID KHAN v MADHO PRASAD. 39 All. 133. 35 I. C. 911: 14 A. L. J 1141:

——Mahomedan Law— Demand—Letter—Talab-i-ishtishad

A Mahomedan pre-emptor cannot validly make the talab-i-ishtishad by letter when he is in a position to do so in person (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) MAHOMED KHALIL v. MUHAMMAD IBRAHIM. 38 All 201 : 33 I. C. 349 14 A. L. J. 148.

——Mahomedan Law—Demand Right to pre-emption—Demand—Sale in lieu of dower debt.

A pre-emptor neednot necessarily make a second Talab or demand it at the time of Talab maivasibat, he had an opportunity of invoking witnesses in the presence of seller or purchaser or in the premises to arrest the immediate demand Even when property is sold by a husband to his wife in lieu of her dower a suit by a person for pre-emption can be maintained if he is entitled to a preferential right to purchase. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) NATHU v. SHADI. 37 All. 522 : 29 I. C. 495 : 13 A. L. J. 714.

——Mahomedan Law — Demand Talab-i-ishtishad—Demand before vendor who was not in possession—Validity of demand.

A Talab-i-ishtishad, in the presence of witnesses before the vendor alone, who was not in possession of the property sold at the time of the demand, is not a valid demand. It should be made on the spot sold or before the seller or the vendee whichever of them is in possession. (Banerjee, J.) INAYAT KHAN v. MUHAMMAD YUSUF. 16 I. C. 485: 10 A. L. J. 92.

——Nature of right—Loss of ownership—If forfeits right—What is.

The right to enforce pre-emption must exist both at the time of the sale and on the date of suit. If it is lost after sale or after suit but before decree the plff is put out of Court. But nothing which may happen subsequent to the decree can affect the right under the decree unless the happening has the effect of invalidating the antecedent title held on the date of sale or date of suit. An appellate Court need not go beyond considering whether the right of pre-emption claimed by the plaintiff existed on the date of the sale or foreclosure and retained its enforceable character till the date of the suit and till a decree for pre-emption was obtained, which was the subject of appeal. ———Nature of right—When arises—Right when lost.

The right to enforce pre-emption arises immediately a sale takes place. It is undoubtedly qualified by the restriction that the pre-emptor himself must maintain his quality as a pre-emptor upto the institution of his suit, but he cannot be prejudiced by the vendee's action subsequent to the sale. There is, of course, one exemption to this rule, namely in certain cases where a vendee prior to the institution of the suit retransfers the property to a person who has equal rights with the plaintiff. But it is clearly understood that this exception rests upon one principle only and that this that the Law recognises claims for pre-emption brought privately and out of Court and that a vendee is entitled to satisfy such a private claim just as much as he is bound to satisfy a claim brought against him in a court of law. In such a case it is the plaintiff who has been prejudiced in respect of his pre emptive right by the vendee improving his own position but it is a person who is equally entitled with the plaintiff who has enforced his right out of Court, and unless a re-transfer by the vendee is proved to be in satisfaction of such claims a pre-emptor's suit is not affected by any transfer. For purposes of pre-emption the Court must ordinarily take the respective position of the plaintiff and the vendee as they stood at the time of the sale, and not as they stood at the institution of the suit. A Zamindari was sold, and for a certain consideration the vendor relinquished his Sir rights to the vendor; held, that the pre-emptor was not bound to pay the consideration for relinquishment. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) MEHDI HASSIN v. JAI RAM. 24 I. C 630.

——Price—Vendee selling property to another.

The purchaser from the vendee takes the property subject to the right of pre-emption and the pre-emptor is bound to pre-empt only the first sale making the subsequent purchaser a party to the suit so as to bind him by the proceedings. The price payable by the pre-emptor is that paid by the first vendee to the vendor. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) KHETTAR CHANDRA BASU v. SRIMATI NABIN KALI DEVI.
35 All. 385 : 20 I C. 424 : 11 A. L. J. 527.

——Price— Pre-emptor's duty —Vendee's rights.

When a vendee, disregarding the covenant in a sale deed voluntarily pays off the prior mortgage debt on the property, the pre-emptor is not bound to recoup the same. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) MUSSAMAT NAJIBAI v. NIHAL SINGH.

——Price—Onus—Fictitious price.

The onus, in a pre-emption suit, is on the plaintiff to show that the consideration set forth in the sale deed is fictitious. He should prove either the actual contract price or give evidence to enable the Court to ascertain the market value of the property. (Knox, J.) SAKARRAJ DUBE v. UDIT DUBE. 14 I.C. 158.

——Price—Unreasonable—Effect.

The refusal by pre-emptor to purchase at the price offered under the belief that the price was unreasonable, does not result in the loss of the pre-emption right. (Richards and Bannerjee, JJ.) SHRI BISHAM SINGH v. BACHA PANDE.
33 All. 637 : 10 I. C. 626 : 8 A. L. J. 700.

——Price— Valuation for purposes of jurisdiction.

Any compensation found to be payable by the pre-emptor to the vendee on equitable grounds and not as a part of the price paid by the vendee is not to be taken into consideration in determining the value of a suit in a pre-emption case. (Le Rossignol and Harrison, JJ.) CHIRAGH DIN v. SERAI DIN. 3 L. 386 : 5 L. L. J. 137: 1923 L. 107.

——Price—Vendor found to have had title only to part.

A right of pre-emption is a right of substitution and the pre-emptor steps into the shoes of the vendee in respect of all his rights and obligations under the sale. When the vendor is found subsequently to the sale to have owned only part of land sold, the purchaser, if he acted bona fide cannot be compelled to surrender the remnant portion of his purchased property to a pre-emptor at a less sum than that which he paid for the entirety of his purchase, if the purchaser selects to abide by his bargain and retain the residue at the amount paid for the whole. PRE-EMPTION—Price.

——— Price—Proof.

In order to prove the payment of consideration of a very large sum without receipt, in the sale of an immoveable property, subject to pre-emption, the vendor's mere oral testimony and that of the witnesses happening to be the vendee's friends, is not sufficient ; but a strong evidence is necessary. ——— Price fixed in bad faith— Remedy—Market value to be ascertained.

Where the sale price is not fixed in good faith the market price must be ascertained and taken as the price to be paid by the pre-emptor. (Robertson, J.) PATHANA v. NABA. 87 P. R. 1911 : 13 I. C. 802 : 245 P. W. R 1911.

——— Price—Pre-emptor if bound to pay more than the amount fixed in a decree.

A pre-emptor is not bound to pay more than the amount fixed in a pre-emption decree as the price at which the sale took place. (Rattigan, J.) DEO RAJ v. GOVIND PARSHAD. 55 P. W. R. 1912 : 13 I. C. 647 : 91 P. L. R. 1912.

——— Price—Property sold subject to mortgage—Vendee discharging mortgage—Pre-emptor, if can redeem only equity of redemption.

Where property had been sold subject to a mortgage and the vendee pays off the mortgage, a pre-emptor must pay the whole of the purchase money paid by the vendee before he can pre-empt the property ; he cannot pre-empt only the equity of redemption. (Robertson and Shahdin, JJ.) SHABHAZKHAN v. FAZALDIN. 74 P. W. R 1912 : 43 P. R. 1912 : 13 I. C. 430 : 97 P. L. R. 1912.

——— Price—Set off—Money left with vendee to discharge encumbrances.

A pre-emptor cannot in a suit for pre-emption claim in reduction of the purchase money such interest to which he may become entitled by reason of the failure of the vendee to pay him and to the other creditors of the vendor moneys which had been left with him out of the sale consideration for discharging encumbrances on the property sold. Priority.

——— Priority— Plaintiff and vendee — Co-sharers—Widow of vendor's husband's brother—If has preferential right

The plaintiff, a Mahomedan sued for pre-emption on the ground that she was vendor's husband's brother's widow and co-sharer with the vendee and thus had a preferential right; it was held that plaintiff was not entitled to pre-empt as her connection merely by marriage is no relation. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) KURIA v. JAFRI. 33 I. C. 801.

——— Priority—Claim by preferential claimant brought after decree by remote claimants—Limitation.

A remote pre-emptor obtained a decree, subsequent to which, a preferential claimant brought his suit for pre-emption against defendant who had obtained a decree, more than a year from the date of the sale but within a year of the decree. Held, the suit was barred by limitation. ———Subject-matter—Serai—Shop— Building —Liability to pre-emption.

Where in order to defeat pre-emption the property conveyed is expressed to be a serai the Court must look outside the terms of the deed to ascertain its real character. It is never an easy question to determine the character of a building for the purpose of pre-emption inas much as the word serai has not been defined by the legislature. The essentials of a serai seen to be that there is general access to the interior by the public and that it is used for the temporary accommodation of travellers. A building containing rooms let out to different persons or extended periods is not prima facie a serai. The mere fact that an infinitely small portion of the building is used for a shop does not affect the question. A single building should not ordinarily be divided into pre-emptible and non-pre-emptible portions. It must follow the main characteristics of the whole. That is to say, if the principal use of the building is residential, the whole, building will be pre-emptible notwithstanding that a small portion may also be used as a shop. Conversely, if the main characteristics of the building are the use of a portion of it for a shop, then the whole building will be non-pre-emptible. As regards the passing of title to the property, it does not pass if there is an intention common to both the parties that ownership should not pass until payment of consideration. (*Pipon, J. A plff. pre-emptor in order to be able to maintain a suit for pre-emption must establish his right to pre-emption on three important dates. He must also have the same right at the time when the suit is brought or else he would have no locus standi to sue. ——— Transfer, nature of—Lease or sale—Test of—Existence of right of re-entry- Under proprietary right.

In the case of a sale there is a right of pre-emption but in the case of a lease there is not. The first distinction between a sale and a lease is that in a sale ownership passes while in a lease it does not pass; but this distinction fails where a superior proprietor carves out of his title an under-proprietary right and transfers that for a price paid. An under-proprietor may be a sharer under S. 9 of the Oudh Laws Act in such a way that a sale by him of his under-proprietary right will give rise to pre-emption. When a holder of a superior right carves out an under-proprietary right and sells it, this also amounts to a sale and gives rise to a right of pre-emption. Yet such a transaction falls under the definition of a lease for it is a transfer of a right to enjoy the property. 8 O. C. 121 ; 14 O. C. 41; 17 O. C. 299 Ref. ——— Transfer, nature of—Sale of property of a share in litigation—Property not in possession.

It is not the law that no right of pre-emption arises in any case in which the vendor was out of possession and litigation would be necessary to recover possession of the property The question whether a sale is a genuine sale or a mere sale of a share in a law-suit is one to be determined on the facts of the case and it is not correct to say that no sale can be the subject of pre-emption where legal proceedings are necessary to obtain possession of the property, Where a sale-deed definitely purported to sell not a share in a law-suit but a two annas eight pies share in Zamindari property to which the vendor definitely and clearly stated his title, there is no reason or principle why a champertous purchase of this nature should be exempted from the liability to pre-emption to which other purchases are subject. A perpetual lease granted by a superior proprietor conferring which under-proprietary rights are on the lessees. the rent reserved is substantially equivalent to the Government revenue assessed on the land and no right of re-entry is reserved to the lessors, amounts to a sale of under-proprietary right, and gives rise to a right of pre-emption. PRE-EMPTION—Transfer, nature of.

——— Transfer—Sale or mortgage—Onerous terms.

The onerous character of a mortgage does not necessarily lead to an inference that a sale was clothed in the form of a mortgage to defeat pre-emption. If on the evidence the lower appellate court finds that a transaction is a mortgage and not a sale its finding cannot be disturbed in second appeal. (Kanhaiya Lal, J. C.) MAHTA DIN v. KEWAL. 53 I. C. 892 (1).

——— Transfer—Sale—Genuineness of—How determined

The question whether a sale is a genuine sale or a mere sale of a share in a law suit is to be determined on the facts of each case. The mere fact that legal proceedings are necessary to obtain possession of the property sold, is not enough for holding that the sale does not give rise to a right of pre-emption. (*Daniels, A. J. ——— Transfer —Alienation — Operation of Law—Compromise.

In a pre-emption suit in which the claim has been decreed as a result of a reasonable compromise in the course of the suit, it is not right to say that the vendee made any alienation of the property in suit. An entry as to the right of pre-emption recorded in a wajib-ul-arz is certainly good prima facie evidence of the existence of the custom unless there is internal evidence in the wajib-ul-arz itself or some other evidence or circumstance to rebut it. If a wajib-ul-arz is of an unusual nature and in the very same clause in which reference is made to pre-emption, reference is also made to number of other matters which could not possibly have been matters of custom, the presumption would be rebutted. An entry, which lays down that a right exists which cannot be based on a custom having the force of law, is valueless as evidence to prove such custom. Where a wajib-ul-arz recorded a custom of pre-emption in respect of sale and mortgage but in a later wajib-ul-arz the custom was said to exist in respect of intikal and the question was whether the custom applied to leases. Held that by the mere use of the word intikal lease was not included in the custom. Where a wajib-ul-arz of a village recorded the right of pre-emption in case of transfer of any kind to a co-sharer in a particular order and laid down the procedure to be adopted in exercising the said right and also provided for the terms applicable to a pre-emptor borrowing money from the mortgagee creditor by mortgaging the same property, Held, that an extract from the wajib-ul-arz is evidence to be taken into consideration in considering the issue as to whether or not the custom exists; but the mere production of the extract is insufficient to prove the existence of the custom for substitution. Wajib-ul-arz—Partition.

——— Wajib-ul-arz — Partition — Perfect— Effect.

PRE-EMPTION—Wajib-ul-arz—Partition

Where after the preparation of a wajib-ul-arz containing an agreement as to pre emption between co-sharers, the village was perfectly partitioned and no fresh contract was entered into, held that the wajib-ul-arz contract had ceased to be binding on the co-sharers. (Richards C.J. and Tudball, J.) PARGAS SINGH v. MANSAB ALI. 24 I. C. 416.

——Wajib-ul-arz — Partition— Perfect— 'Hissadar deh'—Meaning of.

'Hissa Dar Deh', appearing in a wajib-ul-arz means a sharer in the village. and a perfect partition subsequent to the preparation of the wajib-ul-arz has not the effect of converting it to mean a co-sharer in the mahal.

Per Karamat Hussain, J.:—Deh and Mahal are two distinct conceptions. In one Deh there may be several Mahals and in one Mahal there may be several Dehs or portions of them. It however sometimes happens that a definite area of land is one Deh and also one Mahal. This is pure accident and must not lead to the erroneous notion that when the term Deh and Mahal may be predicated of one and the same area of land, they become synonymous. (Knox and Karamat Hussain, JJ.) JIVAN RAM v. TIVADI SINGH. 34 All. 13: 11 I C. 305: 8 A. L. J. 1072.

——Wajib-ul arz—Partition—Effect of.

The right of pre-emption was conferred on the co-sharers in a village by the wajib-ul-arz of the village. Subsequently the village was divided in 3 mahals and separate wajib-ul-arzes were prepared incorporating bodily however the pre-emption clause in the original. Held the right of pre-emption continued to all co-sharers in the village as before and was not restricted to the co-sharers of the mahal in which the property is situated. (John Stanley, C. J. and Bannerjee, J.) CHIPHUR v. ABDUL HAKIM. 33 All. 296: 9 I. C. 23: 8 A. L. J. 23.

Wajib-ul-arz—Preferential Claim.

——Wajib-ul-arz — Preferential claims— Vendee and pre-emptor of the same category— Effect.

Where the wajib-ul-arz divided persons entitled to claim pre-emption into three categories and the vendee and the pre-emptor belonged to the same category, a suit for pre-emption does not lie. (Rafique and Piggott, JJ.) RAGHUNANDAN SINGH v. MULAK RAJ SINGH. 21 A. L. J 84: L. R. 4 A. 87: 1923 A. 255.

——Wajib ul-arz—Preferential claim—Different mahals.

A wajib-ul-arz prepared before the partition of a village into mahals gave rights of pre emption first to brothers and nephews, then to cousins who were co sharers, then to co-sharers in the patti and then to co-sharers in the village. Held, that a co-sharer in one mahal had no right to pre-empt property in another mahal where he was not a co-sharer. (Richards C.J. and Tudball, J.) KHAYALI RAM v. KALI CHARAN. 37 All. 573: 29 I. C. 1000: 13 A. L. J. 712.

The Wajib-ul-arz of 1860 and 1883 of a village recorded the fact that the co-sharers had a right of pre-emption, that after him the co-sharer in the same thok, and after him the co-sharers in other thoks, had the same right. Held, that the co-sharer in the same thok as the vendor had a preferential claim as against the vendee who was a co-sharer in a different thok. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) AUDH BEHARI PANDE v. JADUBANS MISIR. 29 I. C. 485.

PRE-EMPTION—Wajib-ul-arz—Preferential claim.

——Wajib-ul-arz—Preferential claim.

——Wajib-ul-arz—Preferential claim—Division into several Mahals — Suit on ground o nearness of relationship.

Where a village had been partitioned into several Mahals and there was an arrangement of pre-emption to the effect that one co-sharer had to sell only to his near co-sharer and then to sharers in the patti, mahal or village, Held, the provision gave a preferential right of pre-emption to sharer in one Mahal who was a relation over sharer in another Mahal and not related. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) YAD RAM v. CHHEDLAL. 35 All 478 : 21 I. C. 628 : 11 A. L. J. 766.

——Wajib-ul-arz — Preferential claim— Hissadar karibi.

A mere statement in a wajib-ul-arz that the right to pre-empt should in the first instance be given to a nearer co-sharer does not give a preferential right to a blood relation of the vendor who in other respects was on equal footing with the vendee, to pre empt. (Richaras, C. J and Tudball, J.) JAGDATT MISRA v. DALTHAMAN. 11 I. C. 286.

——Wajib-ul-arz—Preferential claim—Hissadar Karibi—Meaning of.

There is no preferential right of pre-emption to a relation nearer in degree from the mere fact that a wajib-ul-arz mentions that the property is to be offered first to a 'hissadar thok'; evidence of special custom indicating the above is necessary for the purpose of giving such preference. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) ATAULLAH v. SAMSHUDDIN. 11 I. C. 278.

——Wajib-ul-arz—Preferential claim—Qarabatdar Qaribi—Meaning of.

The Wajib-ul-arz of a village gave a right of pre-empti n to three classes of people:—First near relatives (Qarabatdar Qaribi) Secondly near co-sharer in the same Thok thirdly co sharer in another Thok. Both the vendees and the pre-emptor were co-sharers in the same Thok but the latter was nearer in blood to the vendor than the former. Held, that the plff. had no preferential right, there being nothing in the wajib-ul-arz to explain the meaning of the words Qarabatdar Qaribi nor any other evidence of the custom. (Richards, C. J. and Tudball, J.) SADHO CHARAN v. BIRJ RAJ. 11 I. C 274.

——Wajib-ul-arz—Preferential claim.

It is manifest in a Wajib-ul-arz different classes of pre-emptors were mentioned Alatarjib (i.e) one after another. Held, that the right of pre-emption existed between the different classes of pre emptors inter Se i.e. one class of pre-emptors excluded another. (Bannerji, J.) SHEOBARAN SINGH v. NANUARI LAL. 10 I. C. 442.

———Wajib-ul-arz—Preferential claim—Near relation—Member of the same caste.

A Wajib-ul-arz provided "the right of pre-emption is given first to co-sharers or who are near in blood to the vendor and then to other cosharers of the same caste and lastly to the co-sharers of the village" Held that near relation had a preferential right over persons of the same caste. Wajib-ul-arz—Miscellaneous.

———Wajib-ul-arz—Simple Mortgage—Rehan.

———Who can pre-empt—Agriculturist—Sheikhs—Notification by local Government.

A sheikh who bore the title of "sheikh" not by reason of conversion but by reason of his membership of some tribe of sheikhs domiciled in other part of India, could not claim to be a member of the agricultural tribe of sheikhs as notified by the local Government in the Peshawar and Kohat Districts. When a person claiming the privileges of an agriculturist of the Konat Districts is not even a member of any tribe of sheikhs but has merely received the application "sheikhs" by reason of conversion, it is inconceivable that he can thereby assume membership of the notified agricultural tribe. His title of sheikh however universally, conceded is nothing more than an honourific appellation. It can no more alter the legal status of the recipient than any other appellation which is conferred upon him by popular opinion. He does not become a member of unagricultural tribe and cannot without fulfilling the condition laid down in the proviso to S. 11 of Act II of 1905 sue for pre-emption in respect of agricultural land. ——Right to—Remedy of pre-emptor—Procedure.

A pre emptor is not confined to a suit in the Civil Court to enforce his right. He must do one of two things within limitation ; he must institute a suit for pre-emption or he must obtain a conveyance from the vendee. If he has done neither of these things, the mere fact that he has stated that he possesses the right, that he has approached the vendee or that they have referred their matter to arbitration, will not prevent the bar of limitation. A pre-emptor who refers the claim to arbitration and then makes an application under Sch. II, para. 20 is proceeding by suit and the case is governed by the limitation applicable thereto. ——Ss. 38 and 69—Reference to High Court—Application under S 69—Reference by two of the Judges—Legality of—Form of reference to the High Court.

The Small Cause Court is competent to make a reference under S 69 on an application under S. 38 of the Pres. Towns Ins Act.

S. 69 authorises a reference when two or more Judges of the Small Cause Court sit together in any suit and differ in their opinion as to any question of law or usage having the force of law or the construction of a document, which construction may affect the merits. The term "suit" is not defined either in the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act or in the Code of Civil Procedure, and its meaning cannot be determined apart from the context. Although S. 38 provides for a more extended jurisdiction than what would be technically called a new trial, a jurisdiction analogous to an appeal, yet there is no appeal on facts. But though the power of interference is thus restricted the application under S 38 is nevertheless an application in the suit and attracts the operation of S. 69, providing for a reference to the High Court. S. 69 requires a statement of the facts of the case drawn up by the Court, that is, by two or more Judges where the case is heard by more than one Judge. This cannot create any difficulty because when an application under S. 38 is heard, the Judges cannot disagree on the facts. There is no appeal on the facts and the facts as found by the trial Judge must be accepted, consequently, the first step, when a reference is to be made under S. 69 is to draw up a statement of the facts of the case to be signed by the Judges. They must then formulate the point on which there is a difference of opinion which is to be accompanied by the statements of the reasons assigned by each Judge in support of his view. An application under S. 38 need not be confined to the prayer for the relief of a new trial but may also include prayers for modifying or reversing the decree or order. An application under S. 38 is not an application by way of an appeal to an appellate court. If two or more judges of the Small Cause Court sit together for the purpose of exercising jurisdiction under S. 38 they sit 'in a suit' whithin the meaning of S. 69. Under S. 38 the suit is kept alive for eight days after decree for the purpose of empowering the court to exercise the appellate powers given to it by the section. Applications for new trials are therefore made 'in the suit' whether the claim has been allowed or dismissed. PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT (III OF 1909), S. 17.

An insolvency court can annul an adjudication order made by it if it thinks that it had been got by an abuse of the powers of court. Per Mookerjee, J. It is not that a court must pass an order of adjudication merely because the conditions mentioned in Ss. 14, 15 exist in the case of the applicant. It is its duty to see whether the application constitutes an abuse of powers of court. An adjudication order cannot however be legitimately annulled or refused on the ground that the applicant has shown undue preference to one creditor and is then guilty of misconduct. (*Sanderson, C. Where there are several adjudications by different courts all the properties of the insolvent vest in the Official Assignee of the Court which made the prior adjudication and will not be divested from him by the subsequent adjudication of another Court even though the later adjudication is based on earlier acts of insolvency. S 51 of the Act has not the effect of divesting property vested in an Official Assignee under a prior adjudication. Where it is found that the estate should be administered by the Court in which the later adjudication was made, steps should be taken to annul the previous adjudication. An order of adjudication should specify the acts of insolvency on which it is made, as the insolvency relates back to the dates of the acts of insolvency which are found to have been proved. ———S. 17—Adverse possession—Insolvent and Assignee—Official Assignee—After acquired property

An insolvent, from the time of adjudication as an insolvent until his final discharge by the force of the statutory provisions of the Insolvency Act, holds the position of an express trustee for his creditors and he cannot plead adverse possession against the Official Assignee. On an application by the Official Assignee under S. 26 of the Indian Insolvency Act that the properties acquired by an insolvent in the name of his mother or wife after his adjudication are those of the insolvent and as such vest in him (the Official Assignee), the Insolvent Commissioner has jurisdiction to adjudicate the claim as that was the only and proper procedure to be followed. The after acquired property of the insolvent vests from the date of its acquisition on the Official Assignee and it is not necessary to have judgment entered up under S. 86, and the claim of the Official Assignee is not barred by limitation. The jurisdiction of the insolvency court is exclusive and the remedy in the Civil Court is barred as between the Official Assignee and the insolvent. S. 17 of the Act does not apply to a suit instituted in the Revenue Court to set aside an illegal distraint by the Official Assignee for rent due to the insolvent on the ground that under an agreement with the insolvent the plaintiff was entitled to apply the rent due by him by the latter. No leave of the Official Assignee on the Insolvency Court before any suit against the former is instituted. ——Ss. 28, 30—Composition by Insolvent—Part-payment by surety—Contract Act, Ss. 134, 135.

A creditor releasing a surety of an insolvent debtor is not liable to return the money received by him from the surety. Part payment of a surety is part preformance of the contract and a partial discharge thereof. As regards part payments he is no longer the surety but the principal debtor. The cause of action against the principal debtor is not affected by any composition which the principal creditor may accept from the debtor. In the case of part payments the surety is represented in the insolvency by the principal creditor who proves for the whole debt. The omission to embody the terms of a composition in the order of annulment under S. 30 of the Act does not make the order a nullity. The practice of insolvents directly dealing with creditors to such a composition, though irregular is not illegal. Where the composition is made after notice to the surety and is accepted by the Court it becomes an act of Court and Ss. 134 and 135 do not apply. jurisdiction. Once a person is re-adjudged an insolvent there is an end of the composition and the liability of the guarantor also ends. A scheme of composition was made so long ago as the 10th of December 1910. By its terms the composition was to be paid within a month from the date, of the order annulling the adjudication order. The adjudication was annulled on the 14th September 1911 ; and it was not until 29th July 1922 that the respondents applied for the covenant to be enforced against the appellant. Held, that under these circumstances, the peculiar jurisdiction under S. 30 (2) of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act should not be exercised against the appellant, in his capacity as guarantor, even assuming that the Court can deal with such a matter under that section. An adjudicated insolvent obtained order of discharge in 1912 in the following form. "It is ordered that the insolvent's discharge be with protection suspended for one year and that he be discharged as from the second of October, 1913." No final order of discharge was made. The insolvent acquired the property in 1916-1917 and the Official Assignee claimed the property for division amongst the creditors. Held, that the order of discharge became operative by itself on the 3rd October 1913 ; and the claim of the Official Assignee should be negatived. The Act makes no further proceedings necessary after an order of suspension under S. 38 has been passed. The practice prevailing in the Bombay High Court which requires the insolvent whose discharge has been suspended, to appear and obtain the final and absolute discharge after the expiry of the period of suspension, has no warrant in law and cannot be upheld. ——Ss. 36, and 90—Witnesses residing more than 200 miles—Power to summon and examine —Civil Procedure Code, O. 16, R. 19.

S. 36 (1) of the Insolvency Act provides that the Court may, on the application of the Official Assignee or of any creditor who has proved his debt, at any time after an order for adjudication has been made, summon before it the insolvent or any person known or suspected to have in his possession any property belonging to the insolvent or supposed to be indebted to the insolvent or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information respecting the insolvent, his dealings or property. The person to be summoned does not, at any rate in all cases, fall within the category of an ordinary witness to whom the provisions of O. 16 relate. It deals rather with the discovery and recovery of property than with the ordinary testimony which a witness can give, and the proviso to S. 90 (1) of the Insolvency Act makes it clear that it was not intended to fetter the Court in the exercise of its jurisdiction under S. 36 by any limitation imposed by the Code of Civil Procedure. PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT (III OF 1909), S. 36.

——S. 36—'Any creditor who has proved his debt', meaning of.

The words " any creditor who has proved his debt " in S. 36 mean not merely a creditor who has lodged proof of his debt but a creditor whose proof has been admitted by the Official Assignee under the provisions contained in S. 25 of the second schedule to the Insolvency Act. The mere fact that a person's name was included in the schedule filed by the insolvent and that so far his claim has not been challenged does not assist him if his debt has not been admitted by the Official Assignee. ——S. 36—Order for discovery—Wilful disobedience—Consequence of.

An order for discovery made under S. 36 may if disobeyed, involve the person concerned, in grave consequences. Wilful disobedience of such an order may be followed by an order of commitment for contempt of Court. In view of such possibilities the Court should act with great caution and afford all possible facilities to the person concerned, to satisfy the Court that at the time of the order, the things ordered to be discovered, were either not in existence or were not under her control. ——S. 36—Section not applicable—Examination of insolvent—Admissibility in evidence.

The general practice is to examine the accused under S. 36, but the Court can also examine though S. 36 does not apply. Examination of an insolvent under S. 36 of the Act and without any objection on his part, is voluntary and is admissible under S. 103 of the Act. ——S. 36—Witness—Examination of transferee—Costs of employing attorney or counsel.

A witness examined under S. 36 of the Pres. Towns Insolvency Act is not entitled to the costs of employing attorney or counsel. ——S. 36—Application for examination—Grounds for refusal—Power of Court.

S. 36 is very wide and there is nothing in the Act limiting the Court's powers thereunder, to the period before the discharge. But these powers should not be used unduly or unnecessarily long after the discharge. The official assignee when applying under S. 36 for the examination of a person should state shortly the nature of the information likely to be given and the dealings or properties of the insolvent to which such information will relate. A mere allegation that the witness is likely to give useful information is not enough for an order under this section. But an order cannot be refused on the mere ground that litigation might ensue between the party to be examined and the Assignee. (Grieves, J.) HARIPADA RAKSHIT In re.

——S. 36—Questions of title as between official assignee and stranger—Jurisdiction.

——S. 36—Object of—Property belonging to Debtor.

The object of S. 36 is discovery for the purpose of enabling the Official Assignee or a creditor who has proved his debt to obtain information with reference to the property belonging to the insolvent so that he might take proceedings thereon to impeach the transactions which are voidable under the sections of the Act relating to voluntary transfers, fraudulent preferences, etc. Property transferred by the insolvent 4 months before the order of adjudication is not 'property belonging to the debtor' within S. 36 (5) of the Act, and no order under that section, on the examination of the transferee, can be passed declaring the transaction void under S. 55 and directing the delivery of the property to the Official Assignee. High Court under S. 112 of the Act, R. 30 applies to such applications and not Rr. 17, 18, and 19 and this view is supported by the English Bankruptcy Act, (1914) 4 and 5 George V, ch, 39 and the rules thereunder. If the Official Assignee applies under S. 36 (4) and (5) of the Presy. Towns Ins. Act for discovery of an insolvent's property he must take the examination of such person by itself and ask the Court for an order the admissions made or evidence given by such person and without looking to any further evidence at all. There are two courses open to the Official Assignee. The one is to start an action and the other is to proceed against the respondent by notice of motion in insolvency. But it is discretionary with the Court in the latter case to direct at the hearing or the motion that the matter be dealt with by an action. If the Official Assignee brings an unsuccessful motion, however, careful he may have been, has to pay the respondent's costs and he will have the right of indemnity given him by the previous order of the Court obtained from the creditor or other person in whose interest the motion is brought. The order for costs should not be directed to be limited to the assets in the hands of the Official Assignee when the respondent is not in any way in default for which he may be partially mulcted in costs. An insolvent's examination is no evidence against the transfer. The onus of supporting a purchase from the insolvent just prior to insolvency lies on the person claiming that the purchase can stand. The fact the transferee was the wife, with notice of her husband's embarrassed circumstances, is not sufficient to prove bad faith. The question of, 'valuable consideration' is a question of fact. It is not open to a judge to pass an order under S. 55 of the Act under which the validity of the transaction is made to depend upon an uncertain event, e.g, on the vendee being compensated for the loss sustained by him by reason of the transaction. PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT (III OF 1909), S. 56.

An acceptor or endorser of a negotiable instrument which has not yet reached maturity is a creditor. Any surety or guarantor, who might, should a bankruptcy supervene before the debt of the principal were discharged be entitled to claim among the other creditors in bankruptcy, is regarded constructively as a creditor when the question is one of fraudulent preference. (Beaman, J.) R. D. SETHAN v. KALLIANJI SINGJIBHAI 19 I. C 57 : 15 Bom. L. R. 113.

——S. 56—Fraudulent preference—What constitutes—Motive.

To find out whether a particular payment amounted to fraudulent preference, one must look to the mind of the bankrupt at the time and see if the dominant view was to give preference to a particular creditor. If his real object was only to continue his business and to save himself from serious consequences, the act does not fall within S. 56. But if the act was merely to stave off bankruptcy for a short time or to assist in reinstating him afterwards, it would be a fraudulent preference. (Schwabe, C.J. and Wallace, J.) SAMU PATTAR v. WILSON. 18 L. W. 696 : 1924 M. 180.

A vendee who purchased property from a person shortly before that person's insolvency for a price appreciably lower than the real value of the property actuated by an intention to get a much larger benefit for himself than he was fairly entitled to as a diligent creditor and conspired with the vendors to defraud or delay his other creditors, is not a vendee in good faith within S. 56 and the sale is void as against the Official Assignee. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE v. BANGY ABDUL RAZAK SAHIB. 29 I. C. 204: (1915) M. W. N. 332.

——S. 56—Fraudulent preference—Test of—delay in making application, if ground for dismissal thereof.

Where a payment to a creditor is impeached as a fraudulent preference, the question for the Court under S. 56 of the Act is what was the substantial effectual or dominant view with which the debtor made the payment. The fact that there was some pressure would not protect the creditor if it is also the fact that, but for the desire to perfer the creditor, the payment would never have been made. Delay in applying under S. 56 is not by itself sufficient ground for declining to make order. (White, C. J. and Oldfield, J.) ABDUL KADER v. OFFICIAL ASSIGNEE. 14 M. L. T. 48 : 20 I. ——S. 56—Fraudulent preference—Tests of presumption.

If a man on the eve of bankruptcy makes a payment to a particular creditor, the presumption immediately arises that he makes that payment with the dominant view of giving preference to that creditor over his other creditors. If it is found that the dominant motive was not to give preference, but to save his stock in trade from attachment and sale, the transaction cannot be annulled under S. 56. The burden of proving the intention of the debtor lies upon the Official Receiver who contests the payment, even if the debtor was insolvent at the time when he made the payment. 19. C. W. Intimation of insolvency to the creditor without leading to an inference that the debtor will suspend payments, is not an act of insolvency. It is such an act if such an inference can be drawn. It is to be determined from each notice. Creditor's action knowing the act of the debtor is not bona fide and will not be protected. PRESS ACT (I OF 1910), S. 4.

An article may well be beyond the bounds of the Penal Code and yet be drawn into the net of the Indian Press Act. Per Curiam—The truth of the facts alleged in the article is no ground for taking the case out of the operation of S. 4 of the Press Act, and evidence is not admissible to prove their truth. Both the Crown and the accused may, under S. 20 of the Press Act, give in evidence other copies of the newspaper published after the commencement of the Act in aid of the proof of the nature and tendency of the matter contained in the offending article. Per Woodroffe, J. (Fletcher J. agreeing) :—When the words of a document are plain and unambiguous extrinsic evidence to explain it is not admissible even where the intention of the writer is rightly in issue. In judging of the question of intent, the publisher must be deemed to intend that which is the natural result of the words used. The words "Government established by law in India" in S. 4 are not to be construed as indicating only the supremacy of the British Crown in India and the British connection with it, as opposed to independence. In an application under S. 17 of the Act to revise the order of forfeiture under S. 12 of the Act, the onus is on the petitioner to show that it was impossible for the pamphlet to come under S. 4 of the Act. The functions of the High Court are limited to considering whether the petitioner has discharged that onus. The High Court has no jurisdiction to pronounce on the wisdom or unwisdom of the order of forfeiture. The direction in S. 12 of the Act (stating the grounds of its opinion) is mandatory and mere citing of the words of the section without setting out the facts forming the basis of the opinion is not a sufficient compliance with that direction, but the High Court is barred by S. 22 from questioning the legality of the forfeiture on that ground. In an enquiry under the Act the question of the intention of the publisher or writer is not directly material. Cl. (e)—S. 4 (1) Expl. 2—Intention of writer, how far relevant—Penal Code, Ss.* 124-A, 153-A--Difference between these sections and S. 4, Press Act--'Tendency' explained—S. 4 of the Press Act is not ultra vires of the Indian Legislature.

A publicist cannot be allowed to attribute improper motives to the Government, but otherwise the preaching of Home Rule for India consistent with the loyalty to the Crown is not by itself bad under S. 4 of the Act. The words "Government established by law in British India" mean an established authority entitled and able to administer the public affairs of the country, and are not identical with any particular individuals administering the Government. They must be interpreted in the light of S. 3 of the General Clauses Act and so interpreted to include the Government of India and all local Governments. The Government in India, as well as the supremacy of the Crown and the British connection, is included in the expression "Government established by law in British India." All forms of ill-will towards the Government including hatred, contempt, enmity, dislike, hostility are included in the word 'Disaffection.' The words 'Hatred and contempt' mean something more than disapproval or dislike. Suggestions of replacing non-Indian elements in the Government by Indian elements with a view to securing greater efficiency and advantage are legitimate, but it is objectionable to speak of the foreign character and origin of the Government and thus arouse hatred and contempt against it. The intention of the writer or editor is not relevant except under Explanation 2 which protects comments on the Government's measures and actions which do not excite hatred or contempt against the Government. But the protection is afforded only to comments on the Government's measures and actions and not to attack on the Government itself. Articles other than those in question can be considered in aid of the proof of the general nature, tendency and policy of the news paper concerned; and the burden of disproof of any such bad tendency as is mentioned in the sub-clauses to S. 4 rests on the person forfeiting the security. The word 'tendency' simply signifies the natural effect on a normal understanding. Per Ayling, J.—There is nothing in the Act which throws the onus on the applicant. The words themselves form the main evidence in the case. No warning or explanation is necessary before the Government takes action under S. 4 of the Act; and the section covers also writings put in through mere carelessness. 41 C. 466 Ref. to. Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J.—S. 4, Clause (e) is aimed at language which is likely to render the co-operation between different races living in India impossible. The language must be such as to lead to the breaking of the peace. The language of S. 4 (1) of the Press Act is wider than the corresponding provisions in Ss. 124. A., 153 of the Penal Code. T. 124.

——— S. 4 (1)—Good faith not material—Individual officers not contemplated.

If the words in their plain grammatical meaning are of the nature mentioned in S. 4 (1) it is immaterial whether the editor acted in good faith or otherwise. The operative portion of S. 4 (1) (c) does not make the motive or intention of the writer material to deciding the question. Where the article complained of referred only to the police officials at a certain place, they cannot be regarded as "the government established by law in British India." 22 Bom. 112 and 8 Bom. L. ——— Ss. 4 (1) (c) 17, 19 and 20—Disaffection—Intention of writer—Government established by law.

The word 'disaffection' includes disloyalty and all feelings of enmity and the duty of the High Court under S. 19 is limited to a consideration of the question whether the order of forfeiture is justified by the words and tendencies of the articles. The intentions or motives of the writer are irrelevant, the possible results of the article are to be considered. Under S. 17, the petitioner should show that the article did not, as a matter of fact contain any word-signs or visible representations likely or having a possible tendency to excite disaffection towards His Majesty or the Government in India or the Cabinet in England. Per Johnstone, J.—The truth of a statement is not a sufficient justification. ——— Ss. 4 (1), 3 (1)—Notice, essentials of.

S. 4 does not require that the words complained of shall be stated verbatim in the notice but only that they shall be started or described. S. 4 of the Press Act is very comprehensive. It is not necessary that the words complained of should be in themselves seditious nor is it necessary that they would bring into hatred or comtempt His Majesty or the Government established by law in British India. It is sufficient if they have this effect with regard to any class or section of His Majesty's subjects in British India. It is not necessary that they should directly bring about this result. If they are likely or may have a tendency either directly or indirectly, and whether by inference, suggestion, etc., then they come within the mischief of the section. It is legitimate to advocate in writing a change in the system of the Government or in existing social conditions and to urge the community or any section thereof to combine for this purpose. It is also legitimate to compare unfavourably existing conditions with those of a by-gone age, but this can be done only if the method employed does not infringe S. 4 of the Press Act. Whatever the intention of the writer may be, he must take care to guard his language that it should avoid a tendency to bring into hatred or contempt the Government of any class of His Magesty's subjects in British India. Per Curiam:- Upon an application under S. 17 of the Press Act (I of 1910) to set aside an order of forfeiture of security, the Court has to see whether the article in question is obnoxious to the provisions of S. 4 of the Act Defect in the form of notice under S. 4, sub-sec. (1) is no ground for setting aside the order of forfeiture. It is Expln. II to S. 4 which imports consideration of the writer's intention. The explanation does not cover all the cases comprehended in cl. (c). The explanation does not apply where the words used have a tendency to bring into hatred or contempt, etc. The question of intention is only material if the Court has to deal with comments on the measures (meaning thereby the legislative measures or action of the Government or the administration of justice). These comments again are not protected if they, in fact, excite or attempt to excite hatred, contempt or disaffection. Per Mookerjee J.— Comments of the character mentioned in Expln. II to S. 4 of the Act may be permissible even though they are likely or may have a tendency to produce the corresponding result mentioned in cl. (c), but they must not excite or constitute an attempt to excite hatred, contempt or disaffection. The term "Measures" in the explanation was intended to apply to legislative measures. Upon an application under S. 17, the Court does not approach the case with the presumption that the order is erroneous. The burden lies upon the Petitioner to establish that the publication is not of the nature described in S. 4, Sub S. (1) of the Act. 39 Mad. 1085 Rel. (*Woodroffe. Mookerjee and Fletcher. ——— Liability of agent—Discharge of agent by one of the principals—Effect of.

The liability of an agent to account is not a liability that arises by virtue of a contract between the parties but is a liability that is annexed by law to the office of the agent. So far as the liability of an agent to account to joint principals is concerned the authorities are unanimous that an agent cannot get a discharge by accounting to only one of two co-principals. Co-principals may jointly appoint an agent to act for them and in such case become jointly liable to him, and may jointly sue him. The agent is not bound to account separately to one of several co-principals and if he has done so he is not thereby discharged from liability to the other or others unless the co-principals are also partners. Where the moneys are received on behalf of joint principals, the agent is liable to account to them jointly, and not discharged by payment to one or more of them only, unless by authority of all. ———Death of agent—Liability of representatives to account—Extent of.

It is well established that the representatives of a deceased agent are not liable to render an account in the sense in which the agent, had he lived, might have been called upon to do so. The liability to render accounts is a personal one attaching to the agent and cannot be enforced against his heirs. This does not mean, however, that the heirs must necessarily escape liability altogether for the defalcation or breach of duty of the agent if the principal can prove that he had suffered loss thereby. The burden of proof that the representative have got assets of the deceased agent in their hands and that they are therefore liable is on the plaintiff. ———Compromise—Minor.

In all cases where it is desired to bind a minor or persons under disability by a compromise, when the proceedings are before the Privy Council, there should be a clear expression of opinion by the proper Court in India that such a compromise is a beneficial one for those persons. ———Compromise—Minor parties—Leave to withdraw

Applications to allow an appeal to be withdrawn on terms when there are parties concerned who are not sui juris are not granted without grave consideration. The Judicial Committee being assured by the counsel at their bar that the terms on which the appeal was proposed to be withdrawn were beneficial to a minor party thereto, and having before them the opinion of counsel who appeared in the High Court, to the same effect granted leave to withdraw the appeal on the proposed terms. Concurrent opinions of the Courts in India that the possession of properties by a Hindu widow was for her life, merely in lieu of maintenance, and not adverse to the reversioners, was reversed by the Privy Council on the ground that the question being one of inference from documents and not one of fact, a wrong conclusion had been arrived at by the Courts below. In criminal cases the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council does not lightly interfere with the decision of the Courts below ; it only does so where justice has been gravely and injuriously miscarried even although the proceedings taken are unobjectionable in form.

Held, quashing the judgment and sentence appealed against, that the Court below had lost sight of the distinction between a civil and a criminal liability for appropriation of another's money, and that the sentence pronounced against the appellant formed such an invasion of liberty and such a denial of just rights as a citizen that their Lordships felt it their duty to interfere Looking to the exceptional nature of the case, their Lordships directed to Crown to pay the appellant's costs of the appeal in a criminal case (Lord Shaw.) LOUIS EDWARD LANIER v. ———Criminal Case—Leave to appeal when granted.

Leave to appeal to the Privy Council in criminal matters is not granted save where there is a palpable violation of the principles which conduce to justice ; or where, by a disregard of the forms of legal process or by some violation of the principles of natural justice or otherwise, material or serious injustice has resulted. Misdirection as such or even irregularity as such is no ground. There must be something by which in the particular case the accused is deprived of the substance of a fair trial and the protection of law or, which, in general, tends to divert the due and orderly administration of the law into a new course, which may be drawn into an evil precedent in future. The jurisdiction which the Privy Council exercises in appeals in criminal cases involves a general consideration of the evidence and of the circumstances of each particular case for placing the irregularities complained of if substantiated in their proper relation to the whole matter. Where there is a great preponderance of unquestioned evidence on a point, the Privy Council cannot in any view come to the conclusion that there has been any miscarriage of justice, substantial, grave or otherwise. ———Criminal case—Appeal against convictions—Functions of the Judicial Committee—Limits of interference.

The power of the Privy Council to review proceedings of a criminal nature, unless such power and authority have in any local area been parted with by statute, is beyond doubt. But there are reasons, both constitutional and administrative, to show that this power should not be lightly exercised. The practice of the Judicial Committee with regard to appeals in criminal matters are laid down in R. v. Joykissen Mookerjee, (1862) 1 Moore. P. C. (N. S.) 72 and Falkaland Isels Co. v. R., (1862) 1 Moore, P. C. (N. S.) 299 has not been altered or liberalised by the decisions in In re : Dillet, (1887) 12 App. Cas 459 and later cases.

The practice of the Committee in respect of criminal trials is to this effect :—It does not proceed upon its own doubts of the appellant's innocence or suspicion of his guilt It will not interfere with the course of criminal law if there has not been such an infringement of the elementary rights of an accused as has placed him outside the pale of regular law or if within that pale, there has not been so manifest a violation of the principles of natural justice that the Committee as well as the local tribunal would have come to the opposite conclusion in the absence of the irregularity complained of. ———Courts' Powers.

A Judge of the Bombay High Court exercising testamentary and intestate jurisdiction cannot declare that a will is invalid owing to the testator's incapacity to make one and dispose of the bequeathed property according to the will. The High Court can do it in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction. The Judge cannot adjust civil rights to the property, nor can he ignore the will and direct letters of administration to issue, when a competent Court has not pronounced as to its invalidity though executors named therein

PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT (V OF 1881), S. 4.

The estate of the deceased vests in the executor from the time of the death of the testator. The right of an executor to sue in respect of the estate accrues from the time of the death of the testator ; the fact that probate is not taken before the suit does not affect the right.

The plaintiff who claimed the estate of Chandubhai under her Will, had applied for probate. Beharilal had sued the plaintiff for possession of Chandubhai's estate on the ground that he had been adopted by Chandubhai. Both these proceedings were compromised by Beharilal executing a sale on behalf of the plaintiff of whatever right he may have had. Probate was granted to the plaintiff. He then sued defendant on three bonds executed by him in favour of Chandubhai. The defendant pleaded that he had adjusted the claim by a payment to Beharilal before the compromise. Held, as the plaintiff had obtained probate of Chandubhai's Will he was prima facie the only person entitled to claim performance of the contracts made with the deceased and entitled to give a discharge The onus was on the defendant who pleaded a discharge by Beharilal to prove the latter's right to give it. The mere fact that Beharilal was making a claim did not give him a right to give a discharge or justify the defendant in making the payment to him. The adjustment having been made with a person not in possession of the bonds and whose title was, to the knowledge of the defendant, disputed, was not bonafide. (*Kotwal, A. J. ——Ss. 4, 35, 82—Executor can sue for recovery of debt due to the estate after the death of the sole legatee.

PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT (V OF 1881), S. 4.

An executor or administrator takes, by virtue of his office, an estate in the property of the deceased and a legal character vested in him. The estate vests in the legatee for enjoyment but it vests in the executor for administration and enjoyment is postponed to administration; and therefore an executor can sue for recovery of debt due to the family even after the death of the sole legatee. S. 5 does not require that the Will should remain in Court for all time, after it has been once deposited. It is quite sufficient if the will had in fact been deposited in a foreign court of competent jurisdiction and that the Court had before it the original Will at the time it made a judicial pronouncement on the validity of the Will. The copy of the Will, required by S. 5 of the Act does not necessarily mean a copy authenticated by the notarial seal of a notary as provided by the judicial process of a foreign court is a properly authenticated copy. ——Ss. 6 and 50—Will, proof of—Grant of probate or Letters of Administration—Duty of Court.

A Probate Court is bound to determine whether a Will was as a matter of fact made and it cannot stay its proceedings and wait indefinitely for the decision of a suit subsequently instituted in regard to validity of the Will. The finding in the suit can only be binding on the parties to it. But the decision of the Probate Court operates as a judgment in rem and therefore the Probate Court must come to its own conclusion as to the due execution of the Will. In order to conclude whether a Will is genuine internal evidence is no doubt of great importance; but an improbability to prevail against direct evidence of disinterested persons must be clear and cogent. If a testator appoints the son of his executor to be an executor after the death of the latter if tha son is fit for the work, it simply means that the person named as executor is free from the legal disabilities named in S. 8. On the death of an executor appointed under a will a universal or residuary legatee may be admitted to prove the will. ——Ss. 13, 31, 33 and 41—Letters of Administration—Manager of Court of Wards—Grant to a nominee of—Grant to a statutory person—Minor and disqualified proprietor.

Letters of Administration cannot be granted to a minor. They may be granted to the legal guardian of the minor, provided the minor in a sole residuary legatee or a person who would be solely entitled to the estate of the intestate. Legal guardian means a guardian under the Guardians and Wards Act. The application for Letters of Administration must be on behalf of the guardian and not on behalf of the minor through the guardian and the guardian must, in the first instance, apply to be appointed the minor's guardian for the purpose of enabling him to obtain Letters of Administration for the use and benefit of the minor. Until he has obtained an order of the Court appointing him guardian he cannot be considered a legal guardian within S. 31. 34 Cal 708 Ref. The right of administration follows the right to the property. It is a good general rule to grant administration to the largest interest and that the rule ought not to be departed from except under urgent necessity for the protection and preservation of the estate. The Manager of a Court of Wards is not entitled by virtue of his office to apply for Letters of Administration to the estate of the deceased in which the disqualified proprietor may have a large interest. While the Probate Act makes special provision for a minor or lunatic there is no provision in the statute that takes away administration from a disqualified proprietor who is not a minor or lunatic and gives it to the Manager of the Court of Wards. The essential condition for the exercise of the Courts discretion under S. 41 of the Probate Act is the presence of such special circumstances in the case as render such a grant absolutely necessary not convenient merely as being as a saving of time or express to the applicant. The Court under no circumstances can grant letters of administration to a nominee of the Court of Wards by virtue of his office, but it may be granted to him "as some person" within S. 41. That power can only be exercised when the Court is of opinion that the estate is likely to be wasted or dissipated in the hands of the person entitled under the general provisions of the statute to the grant. 10 C. ——Ss. 50 and 99—Letters granted to widow —Not to be collaterally attacked—Remedy by revocation.

Where Letters of Administration have been granted to a Hindu widow and she deals with the property under orders of Court, the remedy of the reversioner questioning the propriety or legality of the grant of Letters is to apply for revocation of the probate. He cannot question the propriety of the order granting Letters in a suit instituted to declare the invalidity of an alienation by the widow (Chaudhori and Cuming, JJ.) ANANDCHARAN MONDAL v. ATUL CHANDRA MALIK. 23 C.W. ——S. 50—Revocation of Probate—Application after long delay—Onus of proof.

An application, made more than thirty years after the grant of Letters to call in the Letters and prove the will in solemn form, ought not to be entertained especially where the object of the application is to prevent the terms of the will, standing for so many years from being carried into effect. In any case, it is for the applicant to establish why the Letters should be called in and the will proved having allowed an undue length of time to elapse. Where an application is made years after the grant of the Letters of Administration to revoke the letters, cause must be shown why this should be done. ——S. 50—Suit for declaration, that will, of which prabate has been granted, is invalid and inoperative—Maintainability of.

PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT (V OF 1881), S. 50.

A suit is maintainable in an ordinary Civil Court for a declaration as to the effect of the terms of a will of which probate has been granted. A probate cannot be revoked by the probate Court on the ground that the terms of a will are contrary to the provisions of Mahomedan Law. The Civil Court can question the validity of a will of which probate has been granted though effect may be given to its provisions. ———S. 50—Revocation of probate - Locus standi to apply.

A legatee under a will which is superseded by a later will is entitled to apply for revocation of the probate of the later will, on the ground of non-service of citation, even before he has obtained probate of the earlier will. ———S. 50—Purchaser when could apply to revoke the probate granted—Procedure.

A person who has acquired an interest by purchase in the deceased's properties subsequently to death of deceased, is entitled to be heard in proceedings for grant of probate ; where a probate was obtained fraudulently by concealing from the Court the sale of the deceased's estate made to another, just before the grant of probate the purchaser has a "just cause" for revocation of probate under S. 50. After the granting of a probate, no question of genuineness of will arises for consideration till a "just cause" for revocation on one of the grounds mentioned in S. 50 is made out ; hence an application for revocation of probate could not be dismissed owing to the insufficiency of the evidence to throw doubt on the genuineness of the will. ———Ss. 50, 62 and 69—Revocation of Probate—Duty of person applying for probate—Special citation Misleading statements as to relation—Burden of proof—Knowledge—Acquiescence.

Although a Hindu reversioner has no present alienable interest in the property left by the deceased, he is substantially interested in the protection or devolution of the estate and as such is entitled to appear and be heard in a probate proceeding. 8 Cal. 570 : 21 Cal. 539 ; 6 C. W. N. 912 ; 10 C. L. J 263 Ref. If the applicant for probate chooses to make a statement as to the relations of the deceased, the information he gives to the Court must be correct and not misleading. Where a will is propounded, which alters the devolution of property, the District Judge should under S. 69 direct special citation to persons whose rights are immediately affected by the will. Where a statement as to the relation of the deceased was made and misled the Court so that it did not direct the issue of special citation on the person who was entitled to intervene, the proceeding to obtain the grant was defective in substance within S 50, Expln. Cl. (1). The rule that a person is bound by proceedings to which he is no party and of which he has received no notice depends on his full knowledge of the proceedings and his capacity to make himself a party. Where, in answer to an application for revocation by a person on whom citation should have been issued, it is pleaded that he did not intervene though aware of the proceedings, the burden of proof that he had full knowledge is on the person who alleges it , the party who applies for revocation need not prove that no special citation was served on him nor that he had no knowledge of the proceedings. ———S. 50—Revocation of probate—Grounds—Acquiescence—Waiver.

Non-citation is not by itself a sufficient ground for revoking the probate of a will. Whether the petitioner for revocation has, by his conduct, acquiescence, waiver or ratification debarred himself from disputing the probate or the genuineness of the will is one of many other circumstances to be considered before revoking the probate. 14 C. ———Ss. 50 and 69—Revocation of probate—Party cognizant of proceedings—Citation—Minor—Sound and disposing mind.

The principle that a party cognizant of the proceedings for probate or letters of administration is bound by their result has no application where the person affected by the will was the infant son of the testator the infant's mother being also an infant and his three uncles were named as successive executors in the will. All persons whose interests are or may be adversely affected by the decree of the Probate Court should have notice of the proceedings and an opportunity of intervening for the protection of their interests. This purpose is not achieved merely by issue of citations to infants. The proper course for the propounder of the will to follow is to have a guardian-ad-litem appointed for the infant concerned. The onus is on the executor to establish that the deceased had a sound and disposing mind at the time when he is said to have executed the will. 6 Moo. P. C. 355 Ref. The Court before pronouncing for the will must be satisfied beyond all reasonable doubt that the testator was fully cognizant of its contents and was in a condition to exercise and did exercise judgment and reflection respecting the act he was doing. An order of Dt judge holding that a certain party has a locus standi to contest a will is an interlocutary order and not appealable. A judgment creditor who would have a right to seize in execution of his decree the property which would descend to his judgment-debtor had there been no will bequeathing the property to another person and who alleges that the will is a forgery, set up for the purpose of defrauding the creditors, has a locus standi to make an application for the revocation of the probate of the will 10 Cal. 19: 28 C. 441. ——S. 50, Expl. 4—Just cause—Mal-administration—Joint administrators—Grant becoming useless and inoperative.

The words "become useless" and "inoperative" in S. 50, Expl. (4) of the Act imply the discovery of something which, if known at the date of the grant, would have been a ground for refusing it e. g. the discovery of a later will or codicil, or the subsequent discovery that the will was forged or that the alleged testator was still living (26 B. 792 Foll.) ——S. 50—Revocation of Probate—Partial.

When an executor who is also a legatee before liquidating the testator's debts as provided in the will, appropriates the whole of the sale proceeds of a part of the estate, it is a sufficient reason for revoking the grant of Probate if the remaining assets far exceed the liabilities as shown in the schedule especially where the main creditor does not object to the manner of administration of the estate. ——S. 50 (4)—Revocation of Probate—Sufficient cause—Omission of executant to furnish additional security required by Court.

No inelastic rule can be formulated to test the applicability of S. 50, cl. (4) ; the matter should be determined with regard to the events which have actually happened in each case. The clause is not only applicable to cases where the circumstances which have made the grant useless and inoperative, were in existence at the date of the grant though unknown to the Court and to the parties concerned, but to cases where the circumstances contemplated have happened since the date of the grant. 26 Bom. 794 and 40 Cal. 50 not foll. Where a Dt. Judge found that the security furnished by the executor had become worthless and called upon him to furnish additional security within a reasonable time and the executor defaulted, it was a sufficient ground for revoking the probate. A Court of probate is not merely entitled, but is bound to enter into questions of title if necessary in order to determine which of the two contesting parties is entitled to the grant of the Letters. But when the objector sets up a paramount title, e. g., that he being an adopted son is entitled to the whole estate not by inheritance but by survivorship, the Probate Court is not entitled to go into the merits of the title set up by the objector and the nature of the estate left by the deceased (3 C. W. N. 277; 6 C. W. N. 345; 28 Bom. 644 Foll.) The objector is fully entitled to deny the right which the applicant for letters of administration claims. The objector cannot be allowed to raise in a Probate Court a separate case based upon a paramount title and not a preferential claim to Letters of Administration which if the objector has also applied for letters, would have been properly in issue to be decided by the Probate Court. Ss. 64, 69 and 70 do not authorise a Probate Court to discuss the question of paramount title set up by the caveator who puts forward title to the property for the purpose of preventing a grant to others. (17 C. W. N. 613 Foll.) "Contention" used in S. 72 does not empower the objector to oppose the proceedings on the ground that there was no estate at all to which Letters of Administration could be taken. 'Other personal injuries' in the section refers to bodily injuries andalso to injuries like defamation or malicious prosecution. Defamation may safely be included in the class of injuries not causing death. The section divides personal injuries into two classes those causing death and those not causing death. The two personal injuries named defamation and assault are given as illustrations of bodily injuries and of those which are not bodily injuries. Assault and defamation will fall among injuries that do not cause death; the cause of action for damages for such injuries will not survive under the section. (*Abdur Rahim, O. C. ——————S. 90—Power of Executor—Hindu Wills Act.

Under the Act, an executor under a Will has a statutory position and the estate of the testator vests in him. His position is not like that of a guardian of a minor or a Shebait or a widow succeeding to her husband's estate, but he is the legal representative of the testator for all purposes. An executor is personally liable for the payment of debts borrowed by him, though he is entitled to be indemnified out of the estate for such borrowings, if he shows that it was reasonably and properly made. This rule is applied to executors under Hindu Wills Act by the Calcutta High Court. In a suit for recovery from the estate, of money so borrowed, evidence of mismanagement on the part of executors should not be shut out, as the estate cannot be rendered liable without deciding the question of the propriety or impropriety of the executor's conduct. Such a suit should be decreed in the first instance against the executors personally subject to their right of indemnity against the estate. In such a suit, the executors cannot fully represent the estate, as their personal interests as executors are

——————S. 90—Administrators—Powers of—Erroneous appointment—Acts done under.

Under S. 90 of the Act an Administrator can validly execute a mortgage of the immoveable property vested in him but he can do this only with the previous sanction of the Probate Court. This implies a sanction by the Court to all the essential elements of the mortgage transaction. However he cannot stipulate to pay a high and unreasonable rate of interest. The interest stipulated in this case was 30 per cent. compound interest and it was held unreasonable by the Court. A mortgage granted by an Administrator who was erroneously appointed as such to satisfy a debt of the estate which the executor himself was compellable to pay is binding on the estate. All acts done by an executor or administrator in the due and legal course of Administration are binding even though the Letters of Administration are afterwards revoked or the incumbent discharged from his trust. It does not transfer the liability from the estate of the deceased and fasten it on to that of the executor so as to make it a debt payable by the executor, or Administrator in the usual course of administration. Consideration.

——Consideration—Suit on.

A suit on the original consideration of a promissory note is maintainable though a suit on the promissory note itself has been dismissed on the ground of material alteration. The causes of action in the two suits are distinct, (Lord Moulton.) SAMINATHAN CHETTY v. PALANIAPPA CHETTY. 41 I. A. 142 : 18 C. W. N. 617 : 26 I. C. 228 : 17 New. L. R. 56 : 33 L. J. P. ——Consideration, failure of—Burden of proof.

In a suit on a promissory note, if the defendant pleads want of consideration the onus lies upon him. Nevertheless, if as a result of the plaintiff's evidence in the witness-box the court is satisfied that no consideration passed, the defendant can avail himself of that and get a decree. PROMISSORY NOTE—Consideration.

——Consideration—Presumption as to passing of.

The presumption of law contained in the Negotiable Instruments Act that a promissory note was passed for consideration is not applicable to a criminal trial. (Gokul Prasad, J.) SAKHAWAT HAIDAR v. EMPEROR. 59 I. C. 198 : 22 Cr. L. J. 54 : 18 A. L. J. 1151.

——Consideration—Suit on.

It is only where a promissory note is invalid owing to some inherent defect therein, that the party suing is entitled to fall back on an action for money had and received to his use. (Lindsay, J.) MUNDAR BIBI v. BAIJNATH PRASAD. 54 I. C. 424 : 18 A. L. J. 81.

——Consideration—Suit on.

When a plaintiff relies solely on a hundi, as the basis of his claim, he cannot be allowed, in appeal, to fall back upon the original transaction. When the consideration for the execution of a hundi forms part of the transaction relating to its execution the person in whose favour it is executed has no cause of action independently of the hundi. ——Consideration—Joint promissors.

A promissory note executed by more persons than one, is enforceable against all of them, if there was consideration for the instrument as a whole. It is not necessary that consideration should move to each executant. (Kumarasami Sastri and Krishnan, JJ, Odgers, J. dissenting.) RAMA PATTAR v. VISWANATHA PATTAR. 66 I. C. 155 : 41 M. L. ——Consideration—Suit on — Plaint alternative claim in—Procedure.

The holder of a promissory note executed for an existing liability can include in his plaint both claims in the alternative. If he sues on one cause of action and the right to sue thereon is not free from doubt, the Court should direct the plaint to be amended so as to convert it into a suit on both causes of action or treat it as amended and decide the case finally. If in such suit the promissory note is not returned to the deft he is entitled to be indemnified against possible future liability thereunder. ——Consideration—Suit on—Decree where to be given.

When a promissory note is executed for money borrowed at the time of the execution of the note itself, the creditor cannot bring two separate suits or put forward two separate causes of action in the same suit on two independent heads of claim, one based on the borrowing of the money and the other on the note itself. He has only one cause of action on which a suit can be brought. 38 M. 600 : 26 M. L J. 19 ; 33 M. L. J. 644 ; (1915) M. W. N. 217 ; 40 M. 727 Rel. 39 B. 261 (P. C.) Expl. PROMISSORY NOTE—Consideration.

——Consideration—Suit on.

Even apart from the pro nissory note, the plff. had a cause of action on the settlement of account on which the note was based. The fact that there may be an unsettled account between the parties is insufficient to restrain a suit on that cause of action. (Phillips and Krishnan, JJ.) SUNKARA RATHA DOSS v. EPARI KOPILS. 49 I. C. 191.

——Consideration—Suit on.

Where a promissory note is executed for an existing antecedent debt, a suit on the note, failing an action on the debt would lie as also in the case where the advance of money and the execution of the note are simultaneous, though in the latter case it may be open to the parties to show that the debt was intended to be merged in the note executed for it. (Abdur Rahim and Srinivasa Iyengar, JJ.) SHANMUGANATHA CHETTIAR v. SRINIVASA AIYAR. 40 Mad. 727 : 4 L. W. 27 : 20 M. L. T. 172 : 35 I. C 219 : (1916) 2 M. W. N. 14 : 31 M. L. J. 138.

——Consideration—Suit on—Effect of on the original debt.

A bill or a note constitutes only one debt though it may give rise to different remedies or causes of action. 26 I. C. 228 (P C.) Foll. If a bill or a note is given for a contemporaneous debt, the bill merely suspends a remedy and does not discharge the debt The executant of a promissory note does not cease to be definite merely because the word "Ull toor" is added to his name; whether such addition is binding on the members of his family or not, the maker does not cease to be personally liable. (Coutts Trotter and Srinivasa Iyengar, JJ.) CHOCKALINGAM v. ANNAMALAI. 34 I. C. 417.

——Consideration—Suit on.

Where a document which cannot be used in evidence is executed to prove a complete pre-existing right, a suit may be maintained on the original right itself unless it is shown that it was entitled to merge the right in the document. But when the document is executed as the evidence and record of that obligation, a suit to enforce it can lie only on the document itself. PROMISSORY NOTE—Construction.

——Consideration—Suit on—Payment of debt by, conditional discharge.

A bill of exchange or Hundi given for a debt, operates only as a conditional discharge of the debt. PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT (III OF 1907).

———Applicability—Proceedings under Agra Tenancy Act.

After decrees for arrears of rent had been obtained under the Agra Tenancy Act against some tenants, they were adjudicated insolvents The decree-holder then brought a suit with the permission of the Insolvency court for a declaration that certain transfers by the insolvent were invalid, as being merely sham and collusive transfers. Held, as the Provincial Insolvency Act did not apply to govern or affect rights under the Agra Tenancy Act, the suit did not lie. 43 All. 510 (F B.) Foll. Per Walsh, J.—A decree holder, who is the landlord of an agricultural tenancy to which the Agra Tenancy Act applies, is not a creditor under the Provincial Insolvency Act in respect of his rent or decree. ———Fraudulent transfer by Insolvent—Inquiry—Procedure.

An Insolvency Court has to administer the law under its own procedure and to decide questions covered by the provisions of the Act. But the Court has also to apply and to decide all questions of general law including such questions as are raised by S. 53 of the T. P. Act. Where a sale by an insolvent is impeached as one made with intent to defraud and delay creditors, a full inquiry should be made as to the bona fides of the transaction and the provisions of the C. P. C are applicable to such inquiry ; there ought to be sworn testimony and the same care used with regard to documents and the admission or rejection of documentary evidence, as in a suit. ——S. 4 (1)—Decision on question of title—Powers of insolvency court—Taking of evidence.

Though the insolvency court has power under S. 4, Sub-S. (1) of the Provincial Insolvency Act to decide a question of title, it has also full discretion to follow the course laid down in S. 4, sub-S (3) (i e) to refuse to decide questions of title and to direct the sale of the insolvent's right, title and interest whatever that might be. ——S. 4 (2)—Claim by strangers to property can be gone into by Civil Courts.

Under the new Act if a question of title has been actually raised by a stranger to the insolvency and decided by the Insolvency Court the decision is final, and the question cannot be reopened in a separate regular suit. This however does not mean that exclusive jurisdiction has been conferred on the Insolvency Court, and that the only remedy open to the aggrieved stranger is to apply to that Court. Where a person has been made no attempt to bring the matter up before the Insolvency Court and there is no order of the Insolvency Court which can be pointed out as amounting to a decision within the meaning of sub-clause (2) of S. 4, he is at perfect liberty to have recourse to the ordinary Civil Courts. ——S. 4 (2) and (3)—Attachment of stranger's property—Remedy of person—Question of title—Decision of Insolvency Court—Procedure.

If the Receiver in an insolvency wrongly attaches a stranger's property as the insolvent's, the stranger may appeal to the Insolvency Court against the act of the Receiver or he may sue him in a Civil Court as a trespasser. If he elects the former course, he cannot afterwards turn round and litigate the matter afresh in a Civil Court; and under S. 4 (2) of the Pro. Ins. Act, a decision on a question of title by the Insolvency Court is final and binding as between the person asserting it and the insolvent's estate. If the Insolvency Court finds that serious and difficult questions of mortgage and other securities arise over the debtor's property which it does not deem expedient or necessary to decide itself, but prefers to leave to the contending creditors to fight out in an ordinary Civil Court, it may, if it has reason to believe that notwithstanding such securities the debtor has an interest, forth with direct the sale of such interest which would not affect the right of the contending creditors; and if it decides to exercise its jurisdiction under S. 4 (3), it ought to make it clear beyond question that it is doing so and the reason for the course it is taking. In deciding any question of title the claimant must be heard on the merits however weak his title may appear to be. (Walsh and Ryves, JJ.) MISRI LAL v. KANHAIYA LAL SHARMA. L. ——S. 4 (3)—Question of title—Sale of the insolvent's property.

An Insolvency Court has, no doubt, under S. 4 (3) full powers to decide a question of title but the court when it does not deem it necessary or expedient to decide any question of the nature referred to in sub-section (1) but has reason to believe that the debtor has a saleable interest in any property may, without further inquiry, sell such interest in such manner and subject to such conditions as it may think fit (Chatterjee and Cholzner, JJ.) JITENDRA NATH BHATTACHARJEE v. FATEH SINGH NAHAR. 26 C. But if the debtor has made a disposal of his property with a view to defraud his creditors who might otherwise have been paid, then the court is not justified in holding that he is able to pay his debts, but should admit his petition, so that the interests of the creditors may be benefited by the special powers given to the Court while administering an insolvent's estates. The court need not inquire whether all the debts entered in the schedule are real or fictitious or whether the debtor has concealed his properties by omitting them from his schedule. Under S. 14 the court can grant time for the production of evidence. The court has power in rare cases to take evidence on and determine other points than those indicated. Such power is inherent and may be based on S. 47 of the Act. Per Sundara Iyer, J :— The debtor or creditor asking for time under Sub-S. 3 of S. 14 must show sufficient cause to induce the Court to extend time. Date of Adjudication.

——S. 28 (7), 55—(1907) Ss. 16 (2), (6) and 38—Date of adjudication—Relation back to presentation of petition—Transfer of, ipso facto—Scope of S. 38

It is the making of the order of adjudication which vests the property in the Receiver and only upon such an order being made can any vesting take place at all but once the order is made the effect created by it is by a legal fiction taken to relate back to the presentation of the insolvency petition. An insolvency petition was presented by a creditor on 3rd March, 1919 and the debtor sold his immoveable property on 12th March 1919, and the order of adjudication was passed on 21st March 1919 Held, that the sale was void under S. 16 and the property vested in the Receiver. The protection given by S. 38 of the Prov. Ins. Act is not available to a transferee where the circumstances show that the transfer which he had taken is in itself an offence against the Bankruptcy Law, e.g., as giving an undue preference to some creditors or as being a transfer of the whole of the debtor's property with the intention of defeating or delaying some of his creditors. PROV. INSOL. ACT (V OF 1920), S. 28—Effect of order.

All property such as may be acquired by or devolve on the insolvent after the passing of an adjudication order and before his discharge, immediately vests in the Court or Receiver and becomes divisible among the creditors under S. 16, Sub-S. (2) (a), of the Pro. Ins. Act of 1907. ——— S. 28—(1907) S. 16—Effect of order--Suit against his property--Decree--Execution--Effect of.

Appellant sold a house to K on 12th May 1914 for the unpaid portion of the purchase-money. He instituted a suit against K on 22nd March 1916 and obtained a decree on 11th July 1916 establishing his vendor's lien over the house. Meanwhile K had applied on 19th November 1915 to be adjudicated insolvent; an adjudication was made on 29th February 1916, and on 15th July 1916 his property vested in the Official Receiver. The Official Receiver sold the house to the respondent on 17th August 1916. The appellant executed his decree and purchased the house himself on 22nd December 1916. The Receiver was not impleaded as a party to the suit or to the execution proceedings. In a suit by the appellant for the recovery of house from the respondent held, hat the decree in the appellant's favour wasa nullity as also the sale held in execution thereof and that the respondent's title was not affected thereby. 25 M. 406 Rel. The two sections read together confer jurisdiction on the Insolvency Court to direct that property in the hands of a third person may be delivered to the Insolvent or Official Receiver. The Insolvency Court has exclusive jurisdiction to deal with claims of persons holding adversely to the insolvent. ——-S. 28 (5)—(1907) S. 16 (2)—Exemption from vesting—Attachment of salary of insolvent—Salary not sufficient for his maintenance, C.P. Code, S. 60.

When an aporopriation of the income of an insolvent is made for the benefit of the creditors, the Court usually acts on the principle of giving to the creditors the surplus after allowing a sufficient portion thereof for the maintenance of the insolvent according to his position in life. The statute law of this country fixes this amount by S. 60 of the C. P. Code, read with S. 16 (2) of the Prov. Ins. Act. Consequently an order rejecting the creditor's application praying for an attachment of half the salary of an insolvent on the mere ground that his pay is not large enough to allow half of it being attached, is illegal. 18 C. ——Ss. 28 and 53 (1907) Ss. 16 (6) and 36—Jurisdiction—Transfer more than two years prior to adjudication—Annulment.

The transfers in question were effected six and a half months before the petition for insolvency was presented, and more than two years before the order of adjudication was passed. The Court below considered that S. 36 of Act II of 1907 was governed by S. 16 (6) of the same Act and that, consequently, the transactions could be annulled since they took place within two years of the date of the presentation of the petition. Held, that the decision was erroneous and ought to be set aside. S. 36 of the Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) provides that a transfer of property may be annulled if the transferor is adjudged insolvent within two years after the date of transfer. Under S. 16 (6) an order of adjudication shall relate back to and take effect from the presentation of the petition on which it is made, but this cannot mean that for all purposes the date of adjudication is to be taken as identical with the date of presentation of the petition. If there were any doubts on the subject it would be removed by the difference in the phraseology employed in Ss. 36 and 37 of the Act. S. 37 allows the annulment, in certain cases, of transfers in favour of creditors "where the transferor is adjudged insolvent on a petition presented within three months after the date of the transfer." If the framers of the Act intended that the period provided by each section should terminate on the date of the presentation of the petition for insolvency it is obvious that the words "once a petition presented" which occur in S. 37 either should have been inserted also in S. 36 or on the supposition that S. 16 (6) would apply, should have been omitted altogether. ——S. 28—Ss. 16 and 18 — Proceedings against Insolvent—Receiver—Vesting of property and rights of action—Suit by private creditor—Effect of.

Where a firm is adjudicated insolvent all his property vests in the Receiver and if any part of it has improperly got into the hands of another, the right to recover it is in the Receiver and it is only by its coming into the hands of the Receiver that its rateable distribution among the general body of creditors can be secured. ——S. 28—(1907) S. 16—Vesting of property—Ancestral property—Vesting in Official Receiver—Death of insolvent—Effect of.

According to S. 16 of the Prov. Ins. Act on the adjudication of person as an insolvent the whole of the property of the debtor vests in the Court or the Receiver. The death of a debtor does not put an end to an insolvency proceeding initiated on an application by the debtor. There is nothing in the Act to show that after an order of adjudication has been made and the property has vested in the Receiver the death of the debtor would divest the Receiver of the property. Under the customary law a father has the right to dispose of ancestral immoveable property including the interest of his son under recognised circumstance and a vesting order made under S. 16 of the Act vests that right in the Official Receiver, who can, therefore, give a good and complete title to such ancestral estate to a purchaser. 7 Bom. 438 Rel. P Code ceased to be enforceable upon the making of the order of adjudication. The creditors could only work out their remedy under the conditions laid down in the Insolvency Act and they could not therefore claim that the mortgages were void against them. If the property were sold up, the mortgagees would have the same remedy against the assets realised by the sale as against the property itself ; and in all such cases where claims were set up by the mortgagees the provisions of S. 31 of the Insolvency Act must be strictly complied with. An attaching creditor has no lien or charge upon the debtor's property which he attaches and is not entitled to rank as a secured creditor. It is expedient in the interest of all the creditors that the Court should be allowed to bring the insolvent's mortgaged property to sale and give the mortgagee the same remedy against the sale proceeds as he had against the property itself. The right of secured creditors are not affected in any way by the passing of an order of adjudication. (Lindsay, J. C. and Rafique, A. J. C.) GOPINATH v. GUR PRASAD. 15 I. C. 860.

It is unfair to suspend the discharge of an insolvent on account of an undetermined liability which might never arise and the Court is not competent to make it a condition of the discharge that the insolvent should furnish security for the amount of his liability. ——S. 33—(1907) S. 24 (3)—Proof of debt—Bar by limitation

There is nothing in S. 24 (3) of Act III of 1907 making it obligatory on a creditor to tender proof of his debt before the discharge of the insolvent. The law of insolvency allows proof of debts at any time during the administration so long as there are assets to be distributed. An order of discharge of an insolvent on condition that he should, subject to his right to an allowance of Rs. 25 per month, for the maintenance of himself and his family, place at the disposal of the Court all property he might afterwards acquire does not amount to such a discharge as is referred to in S. 24 (3) of Act III of 1907. Where a person had a decree which was executable against the insolvent on the date of adjudication, the mere fact that during the pendency of the insolvency proceedings the period of twelve years prescribed by S. 48, C.P. C. had expired, does not prevent the decree-holder from proving his debt in insolvency. The equitable doctrine of set-off has for its object not merely avoiding cross-actions but doing substantial justice and would apply to prevent the great injustice arising from the same persons being the insolvent's creditor under one account and debtor under another and thereby compelled to pay 16 annas in the rupee on what he owed and received less on what was due to him. But it could not cover cases where a debtor of the insolvent fraudulently buys up a third person's claim against the insolvent with a view to relieve himself in the matter of his debt. In execution of a decree obtained in 1912 against certain persons the decree-holder attached a decree passed in favour of those debtors. In 1914 an application was filed in insolvency against the judgment debtors and in 1915 an interim Receiver was appointed. The money due to the debtors under the decree was deposited in Court to the credit of the decree-holder who obtained an order for payment and received a certain amount from Court in July 1915. In September 1915, the debtors were adjudicated insolvents, and in November 1917 the decree-holder assigned his rights under the decree. The whole of the decree not having been paid off the assignee applied to the Official Receiver in February 1918 to be allowed to prove his claims to the balance of the decretal amount. His claim was rejected and he was ordered by the District Judge to pay to the Receiver whatever sums he had received under the decree. Held, that the order directing payment of the amount realised was illegal. ——S. 54—(1907) S. 37—Secured creditor—Sale in favour of—Not fraudulent preference.

Where the purchasers from the insolvent were secured creditors and they were entitled to be paid to the full extent of their debts so secured in preference over other creditors, the case may not fall within S. 37 of Act III of 1907. There is a distinction in the Act between a creditor and a secured creditor and the purchasers in the above case do not come within the expression "creditor" as contemplated in S. 37. S. 37 does not apply to these purchasers. (Walmsley and Ghose, JJ.) JADUNATH HALDAR v. MANINDRA NATH CHANDRA. 27 C. W. N. 816 : 1923 Cal. 689

The question of fraudulent preference depends, not upon the mere fact that there has been a preference but also on the state of mind of the transferor. S. 37 requires four conditions for its operation—(1) the debtor must be unable to pay his debts as they become due. (2) the transfer must be in favour of a creditor, (3) the debtor must have acted with a view to giving that creditor a preference over other creditors,(4) the debtor must be adjudged insolvent on a petition presented within three months from the date of the transfer Where in the case of a transferor for a fair value the first,second and fourth conditions stated above are present the transfer does not become void under S. 37 merely because the transferee did not believe that it was possible for the debtor to pay off all his creditors with the money obtained by the transferor or did not see to the disposal of the money by the debtor. Where a transfer in favour of a creditor has been made under pressure it is not done with the view of giving preference to the creditor. (Beachcroft and Walmsley, JJ.) KALI NATH CHAKKARAVARTHY v. AMBICA PROSAD DASS. 41 I. C. 399.

———S. 54—(1907) S. 37—Fraudulent transfer— Intention of transfer — Transfer under pressure—Transfer under threat of Civil or Cr. Proceedings.

Mere suspicion that the transfer was a fraudulent preference is not enough to invoke the provisions of S 37. Whether a transfer comes within S. 37 depends upon the state of mind of the transferor. Intention here does not mean legal intention but the real intention working in the mind of the transferor. A previous oral agreement to mortgage sufficient property may remove a mortgage given later out of the scope of S. 37. Transfer in favour of a creditor which is the result of real pressure brought to bear on him by the creditor or in performance of a previous enforceable agreement does not come under S. 37 A transfer by a debtor brought out by threats of Civil suits or criminal proceedings is an act to be impugned under S. 37. (Holmwood and Newbould, JJ.) NRIPENDRA NATH SAHU v ASHUTOSH GHOSE. 43 Cal. 640 : 33 I. C. 548 : 20 C. W. N. 420.

——S 54—(1907) S. 37 (1)—Fraudulent Preference—Good faith, how far a protection to creditor.

Four conditions, that have to be fulfilled before a transfer by a debtor of any interest in his property is avoided under S 37 (1), are laid down. The onus of proving a fraudulent preference is on the Receiver even if debtor was insolvent at time of payment and knew himself to be so. To determine the question whether a person is able or unable to pay his debts as they become due a transaction in favour of a creditor will be set aside if the dominant view is proved to be to give that creditor a preference over other creditors. The proper test to ascertain whether the dominant view is " was the act done voluntarily". The state of debtor's mind is the prominent consideration in every case under S. 37. Good faith of the creditor affords him protection if the intention of the debtor to give him a preference is established, although under Sub-S. (2) of S. 37 good faith will be a protection to a purchaser from the creditor of an insolvent Case law considered. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) NRIPENDRA NATH SHAHOO v. ASHUTOSH GHOSE. 19 C. To avoid a payment as a fraudulent preference it must be shown that the dominant view of the insolvent was to prefer a particular creditor over the others. If it is established that the payment is made of the debtors' own accord and not in the ordinary course of business and without any sort of pressure being brought to bear upon him and that the debtor was on the eve of bankruptcy, the onus shifts on to the creditor to show that the payment was not made with a view to prefer him. S. 66, Cl. 2, of the Prov. Ins. Act is taken from the English legislation on the subject and the Insolvency Courts in this country, in spite of the fact that they cannot attach the half salary which is removed from the grasp of creditors by S. 60, C. P. Code, have an absolute discretion to make a further reasonable allowance appropriate to the condition and the circumstances of the insolvent out of the remaining half which is otherwise divisible among the creditors. Trades people who either in the stress of business, or out of kindness, encourage persons in a humble condition of life to go on purchasing on credit in a way which they must know is beyond their means, have only themselves to thank if, in the end they lose their money altogether and if they are merely delayed in payment. They suffer no loss because the ordinary risks of trade which occurs through bad debts and unwilling payers, fall as a rule, upon the honest consumers who pay promptly and whose charges must include the loss of the tradesman who would otherwise have to close business. A tradesman who continues to supply goods after it is obvious that the customer is unable or unwilling to pay for the arrears which are due brings upon himself such losses as he may suffer, and a Judge sitting in Insolvency has to consider these matters, that is to say the conduct of the creditors as well as the conduct of the debtor in the general public interest to serve which bankruptcy law has been devised. ——— Ss 75, 68 – (1907) Ss. 46 and 22—Person aggrieved Insolvent, if has right of appeal.

A person aggrieved within Ss. 22 and 46 of the Prov. Insolvency Act must be a person who has suffered a real grievance, a person against whom a decision has been pronounced which has wrongfully deprived him of something, and wrongfully refused him something. The words do not mean a person who was disappointed of a benefit which he might have received if some other order has been made. During the administration of an insolvents' estate, an insolvent has no legal interest in the property vested in the trustee and lo us stands in the administration of the estate. He is therefore not a person aggrieved by the sale of property in which he has no interest and no right of appeal against an order of the District Judge confirming a sale of the property which is under the direction of the Receiver. ——Ss. 75. 80—(1907) Ss. 46 and 52—Jurisdiction—Dismissal of Insolvency petition by Official Receiver—Appeal—Revision.

On a construction of S. 52 (1) with Ss. 15 and 16 the Official Receiver who is invested by S. 52 (1) with the same powers as the court referred to in the Act can dismiss an insolvency petition just as the court itself can do. No appeal lies to the High Court against an order of the Official Receiver as no provision is made in the Act for appeals to the High Court directly and as S. 22 provides for an appeal to the District Court against all the orders of the Receiver. Quaere:—Whether the High Court would interfere in revision? The law pre-supposes a prompt and continuous trial, usually finished in one hearing followed by an immediate decision while the evidence of both sides, most of it unrecorded is still fresh in all its details in the mind of the judge. This is of the very essence of the Small Cause Court procedure. The judgment in a case was delivered by a Small Cause Court Judge seven months after he had heard the evidence and the record of evidence was very incomplete and imperfect. Held that his judgment was without the basis necessary for a legal decision and, therefore, a retrial should be ordered. The High Court will interfere in exceptional cases in suits tried by Small Cause Courts if the decision arrived at is capricious of perverse and contrary to Law but it is no good ground for interference under S. 25 of the Act that the Judge had a doubtful issue of Law for determination which the High Court will decide if it came in a second appeal. The omission to determine a material issue as to the genuineness of the mortgage, amounts to an error in law and High Court can interfere under S. 25 of the Prov. Sm. C. C. Act. If the Court was of opinion that the question of the genuineness of the bond was beyond the scope of the suit it was incumbent on the court in the discretion vested in it by S. 23 to return the plaint to be presented to the proper court. ——S 25—Finding of fact -Finding opposed to evidence.

Even if a finding of fact arrived at by a lower Court is entirely opposed to the evidence the High Court has no power to interfere in revision under S. 25. (Sundara Aiyar, J.) GANAPATHY PILLAI, In re. 15 I. C. 186 : (1912) M. W. N. 181.

——S. 25—Finding of fact—Powers of interference under.

Small Cause Courts have been given very wide powers with regard to decision on questions of fact and in revision the Court is always reluctant in questioning a decision on the facts. But where the findings are based on or involve assumptions or inferences which there is nothing in fact or probability to support or are not justified by sufficient evidence or where finding is opposed to the evidence on record or is based on meagre or little evidence or on flagrant misinterpretation disregard of evidence or if injustice would disregard otherwise be done, the High Court has power to interfere otherwise. ——S. 25—Finding of fact without any evidence.

The powers of Court under S. 25 are wider than under S. 115, C. P. C. (1908) where a Small Cause Court decree is based on a finding which is clearly opposed to the evidence resulting in grave injustice to the defendant, the High Court can reverse it. 21 B. 250 ; 23 B. 334 ; 27 A. 192; 27 A. 531, Ref. Question of Costs.

——S. 25 — Question of costs — Costs not allowed--Illegality.

——S. 25—Question of costs—Arbitrary, refusal of.

Ordinarily costs should follow the event. When the Lower Court does not act on this rule, it ought to give a sufficient reason for not doing so. Where the reason given by subordinate judge for disallowing the costs of a successful plff. is not sufficient, the High Court can interfere under S. 25. A demand note or a bond does not cease to be an ordinary demand note or bond just because a part or the whole of its consideration is made up of rent whether in arrears or in advance. The defendant took a lease of a field for Rs.150 for a year from the plaintiffs, and at the beginning of the year paid Rs. 75 in cash and executed a demand note for the remaining Rs. 75 promising to pay interest on it. The plaintiffs sued on the demand note in the Small Cause Court. Held, that the suit was not one for rent and was therefore triable in that Court. ——— Sch. II, Art. 8—Fishery suit for fee due for catching fish—Nature of—Rent, meaning of.

There is no definition of rent in the Small Cause Courts Act. It is therefore to be taken in the ordinary sense as including compensation paid to the owner of immoveable property for its use and occupation. A suit for the recovery of the amount agreed to be paid to the plff. by the defts. in consideration of their being allowed to catch fish in the village river is not cognizable by a Small Cause Court. ——Sch. II, Art. 31—Suit for accounts—Special feature.

A "suit for an account" is a special form of suit and does not include every case in which accounts have to be looked into in order to ascertain whether the amount claimed by the plaintiff is correct or not. The distinguishing feature of these cases seems to be the defendant's possession of, or duty to furnish, detailed accounts, the plaintiff being more or less precluded, by reason of the nature of the relations between the parties from putting the precise pecuniary outcome of those relations of the Court. ——— S. 9—Mortgage by conditional sale—Regulation XVII of 1806—S. 8—Expiry of notice after the Act.

On 20 3-1896 a mortgage by way of conditional sale was executed by an agriculturist in favour of a certain person. The mortgagee in October 1900 caused a notice to be served on the mortgagor under Sec. 8 of Regn. XVII of 1806. The Punjab Alienation of Land Act came in force on 8th June 1901. An application was made to the Deputy Commissioner under Sec 6 of the Act in 1904 by which he prayed that he should be granted a mortgage in any of the forms permitted by Sec. 6 in lieu of the previous conditional mortgage. And thereupon the Deputy Commissioner ordered the mortgagor to execute in favour of the mortgagee a mortgage for twenty years under Sec. 6 (1) (a). But the mortgagor did not comply with the order and the mortgagee sued the mortgagor for possession. Held, that no sooner the year of grace expired the title of the mortgagee became absolute and his former rights as mortgagee matured into ownership.

Held, further that the suit was not on a mortgage covered by Sec. 9, sub section 1 or 2 of the Land Alienation Act and the mortgage being no longer current it was incumbent on the Civil Court to refer the case to the Deputy Commissioner who could interfere with a conditional mortgage only during its currency. The Deputy Commissioner was not bound to interfere though he was entitled to do so under Sec. 9 (2) and he could in his discretion refuse to take action under the section and to relegate the parties to their original possession (Robertson and Rattigan, JJ.) BHERO DAS v. MONA. 14 I. ——S. 9 (3)—No applicability to a suit to enforce registration of a mortgage.

S. 9 of the Act does not apply to a suit to enforce registration of a deed under S. 77 of the Registration Act as the expression in that sub section that if a suit is instituted in any Civil Court on a mortgage to which sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) applies the Courts shall refer the case to the Deputy Commissioner for the exercise of the power conferred by the sub-section applying thereto, means a suit instituted to enforce some of the terms of a mortgage. S. 10 of the Act must be strictly enforced regardless of consequences flowing therefrom. A sale in execution of a decree of land belonging to a member of an agricultural tribe is illegal under S. 16 (1) of the Punjab Alienation of Land Act, and S. 72 of the C. P. Code clearly postulates and implies that the Collector's representation is to be made with reference to and in view of a proposal to sell attached land. No temporary alienation of the land of such member can be made by the Collector under the authority of the latter section. The object of S. 21 (a) was merely to enable the correction of decree which on the face of the record infringe the provisions of the Act. A decree, even though it be only declaratory which has the effect of conferring a legal title where no such title would otherwise exist may well be contrary to the provisions of the Act. Evidence on the record being not sufficient for the disposal of an application made by a Dy. An agriculturist sold his land to a non agriculturist in 1879 but in the Revenue Records the transaction was described as a mortgage. The parties compromised the litigation and the Court passed a declaratory decree whereby three-fourths of the land was treated as permanently alienated to the vendee, while the remaining one-fourth was released absolutely to the vendor : Held, the compromise decree merely construed the sale-deed of 1879 in accordance with the wishes of the parties and the compromise and the decree based thereon did not amount to an alienation by an agriculturist to a non-agriculturist in opposition to the Alienation of Land Act. The proper Court for the Dy. This being a question, which under S. 48 of the Land Revenue Act can be decided only by the Local Government no civil Court can exercise jurisdiction in respect of it. S. 111 does not deal with questions of the title or with the questions relating to the right of a joint land-owner to obtain or compel partition which in fact is governed by sections 116 and 117 of the Act. S. 111 merely concedes to a widow a locus standi before a Revenue Officer for claiming, that is, for applying, for partition which she may or may not be entitled to obtain in virtue of her life estate ; the proper course for the Revenue Officer in such a case would be to proceed under S. 117 and to either stay the proceedings for the determination of the question of the widow's right to obtain partition by a competent Court or to determine the question himself as if he were a Civil Court. The mere fact that the partition has taken place is no sufficient reason for holding that a civil suit subsequently instituted to decide the question of title which has not been disposed of during the partition proceedings, is barred. A widow is a joint owner of lands though with limited rights

PUNJAB LIMITATION (ANCESTRAL LAND ALIENATION) ACT (I OF 1900).

—— Starting point is date of attestation.

Where the transactions were alienations of ancestral land by a male proprietor as mortgages or as sales, time begins to run from the date of the attestations. Even if Art. 144 were held to apply the suits would still be barred as time would begin to run from the date when the alienees came into possession as owners and under S. 9 of the Limitation Act would continue to run not only as against the original alienors but against all the world. 18 P. R. 1919 Foll. (Broadway and Campbell, JJ.) SHEOLAL v MOTI. 1923 Lah. 133.

——'Heir,' meaning of — Limitation Act, Sch I, art. 144.

'Heir' in the Sch. to the Act means only the next heir after the alienor's death and does not include a remote reversioner. The Act therefore is not applicable to a suit for possession by a remote reversioner of the last male holder whose right to possession did not arise till the death of the intervening reversioner. (Scott-Smith, J.) RULDU SINGH v. SAWAL SINGH. 3 Lah. 188 : 1922 Lah. 380.

——Applicability of—Alienor's death leaving a widow.

The Act is not applicable where the alienor died leaving a widow during whose life-time the reversioner could not obtain possession of the property alienated and it is immaterial whether the alienor died before or after the Act came into force. 145 P. ———Suit for recovery of land alienated—Starting point.

Limitation for a suit to recover possession of ancestral land alienated by a male proprietor during his life-time, runs primarily from the date on which the alienation is attested. The proprietary title of a mortgagee arises only when the right of redemption is extinguished and when mutation is sanctioned. (Leslie Jones, J.) JAGAT RAM v. DHARAM SINGH. 40 I. C. 446.

———Scope of.

If a person's right to sue subsists when the new Act came into force, he is entitled to its benefit. The Punjab Limitation Act applies also to a sale of the equity of redemption by sonless male proprietor whose reversioner can maintain a suit that the sale is not binding on him. A claim for possession of ancestral property by a reversioner on the ground that donee's line being extinct, the property reverts to the family of the donor, is barred by the Punjab Act (I of 1900), if no suit to contest it was brought within 12 years from the date on which the mutation was effected in favour of the donee. An alienation was openly made and mutation published. There had been two settlements giving effect to the alienation. Held, that the alienation was not kept from the knowledge of the plaintiff by fraud Where an alienation by a sonless male proprietor took place in 1888, and mutation was effected at the same time, a suit instituted in 1909 by the reversionary heirs repudiating the alienation is time-barred. An action to recover possession of ancestral land alienated by a male proprietor subject to the customary law of the Punjab is governed by the Punjab Act I of 1900 if the death of the alienor which gives rise to the cause of action for a suit for possession, takes place after the enforcement of the Act. The whole scheme of the Act makes it clear that the object of the legislature was to remove an uncertainty about titles to land by compelling the relatives of the male proprietors to impeach their alienations within a limited period of 12 years. The title of the alienee is to be immune from attack if the alienation in his favour was not contested within the 12 years of the date specified in the third column of Art 2. Art. 2 should be read with Art 1 which prescribes the period of limitation for suits for a declaratory decree and the word "heir" in the former article connotes the same person or persons as the expression "son or reversioner" in the latter article. The word "heir" denotes a person who succeeds by descent to an estate of inheritance, and as long as a proprietor is living he has no heir. It is only after the death of the proprietor that the "son or reversioner" becomes an heir. (Shadi Lal, C. J. and Harrison, J.) RULDU SINGH v. SAWAL SINGH. 3 Lah. 188 : 1922 Lah. 380.

——Art. 2—Alienation by proprietor—Suit for possession—Limitation is 12 years from attestation.

——Art. 2—Reversioner.

Suit for recovery of ancestral land after alienors widow. A suit by reversioners for recovery of ancestral land after the death of the alienor's widows is not governed by the Punjab Limitation Act, but by Art. 141 of the Limitation Act, notwithstanding that the alienor died after the former Act came into force. ——Art. 2—Suit for possession by customary heir—Starting point—Attestation of mutation—Date of taking phylical possession.

A mortgaged certain land to B. by duly registered deed on the 16th June 1893 ; subsequently B sold his mortgage rights to C by deed of sale, dated 25th January 1898. He never obtained mutation of names but on the 18th August 1898. C had mutation effected in his favour. A died in 1906. On the 9th March 1908, A's minor son, aged six years, sued for possession of the land on the ground that the land was ancestral, that C took possession under the pretence that he was the mortgagee, that no mortgage existed in fact and that even if there was any such mortgage, it was invalid as being neither for consideration nor for necessity. Held, that the suit is not one for redemption of the mortgage of 1893 and that the defts. who pleaded the mortgage must establish that fact and that the suit was instituted within twelve years from the date of the mortgage and was not barred. Under the Act, the Court before deciding whether a suit is barred, has to look, in a case in which at the time of alienation, possession is given, or agreed to be given first to the date (if any) of the attestation by the Rev. Officer in the Register of Mutations, and in the absence only of such attestation to the date of alienee's physical possession of the land alienated. A suit which would fall under Art. 2 is in time, if brought within 12 years from the date of such attestation though attestation actually took place 12 years after the alienee had taken possession. An administrative act including an area within the limits of a Municipality does not necessarily operate to destory the pre-existing character of the area and such an administrative action is not in itself sufficient to make the area so included a sub-division of a town for the purposes of pre-emption. At the same time the inclusion of an area in municipal limits is strong evidence of the urban character of that area. It is not the law that any portion of an agricultural village may lose its character as such and become, by the force of circumstances, a suburb of a town, and a suburb of this nature is to be regarded as a sub-division of a town, (*Pipon, J. ——S. 3 (5) (a)—Sale by Guardian appointed by Court with sanction of Court—Presumption.

PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT (I OF 1913), S. 3.

S. 29 of the Guardians and Wards Act prohibits the sale by a guardian of the property of a ward without permission of the Court. The Court under this section makes no order for sale, but merely authorises a transaction which would otherwise not be binding upon the minor. The sale is in fact of a transaction inter parties approved of by the Court. The Court having approved of the contemplated sale has no further stay in the matter. Consequently such a sale is not exemp from the law of pre-emption and S. 3 (5) (a) of the Pre-emption Act has no applica ion to the case (*Shadi Lal, C. ——S. 4—Adalphi transaction is not a sale.

A transaction known as Adalphi tenure under which a person becomes the proprietor of a piece of land in consideration of his clearing some other piece of land is not one of sale and not therefore subject to pre-emption. In a transaction of sale, some money consideration must pass. (Broadway and Wilberforce, JJ.) GHULAM MAHOMED v. TEK CHAND. 62 I C. 932 : 2 Lah. 199.

——S. 4—Intikalnama—Sale of decree.

A decree-holder for possession of land conditional on his paying Rs. 300 sold the decree to the deft. together with all right, title and interest in the land, the subject-matter of the decree. The deed of sale was described as intikalnama. Held, that what was sold was not land or immoveable property but a right to obtain the property by complying with the decree. The sale did not therefore give rise to a right of pre-emption. (Broadway, J.) SHAMSUDDIN v. GULAM HASSAN. 42 P. R. 1917 : 38 I. C. 658 : 51 P. W. R. 1917.

The building in suit was situated in a lane not a bazaar and was originally purely residential. There had been some subsequent alteration in the structure and three rooms abutting on the lane were used as shops. The upper storey had been used as residential quarters by different persons including the owner. Held, that at the time of the sale the building was not used for commercial purposes, it was not a shop and the plaintiff was entitled to pre-empt (Rossignol, J.) HANNUMAL v. ATMARAM. 47 P. ——S. 5 (a)—Building—Shop or residential house—Test of.

The question whether a building in Lahore City is a shop or a residential house must be decided with the reference to the chief or most important purpose to which the building is devoted. Where the primary value of the building in question lay in certain shop the rest of the house being neglected and of comparatively insignificant value, no right of pre-emption exists in respect of the property. ——S. 5 (a)—Pre-emption—Building or shop —Test.

A suit was brought for possession by pre empt on of a house it appeared that the plaintiff when mortgagee of this property described it as consisting inter alia of shops. The buildings in dispute were suited for use as shops as well as for use of residential buildings. Held, that in the presence of two lease deeds which show that the buildings were leased as residences and in the absence of any clear evidence that they were ever actually used as shops, the inference drawn from the facts by the learned District Judge was correct. ——— Ss. 12, 17 and 25—Pre-emption—Rival claims—Priority—Rule of decision—Relationship—Proof of—Tradition—Oral testimony.

S. 12 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act does not contemplate merely inheritance by one person, or even by a group of people, who at the critical moment would be together equally entitled to inherit the property sold, if the vendor were dead, but it assumes that there will be different priorities as between the different claimants and that such priorities shall be determined in due order of succession. To be in a position to enforce by suit a claim to pre-empt under the Act the claimant must under S 17 of the Act have given a notice within a limited time of his intention to enforce his right of pre-emption A claimant to be successful need not have been at the date of the sale or at any time the heir presumptive of the vendor The heir presumptive may not have the means to purchase or for any reason may not be desirous to purchase and may have omitted to give within the time limited a notice of his intention to pre-empt. Where among the community to which the rival pre-emptors belong, there are no accessible records of births and deaths or family memorials the proof of relationship depends on oral tradition which requires close scrutiny. ——S. 16—Co-sharers— Plaintiff co-sharer acquiring portion under decree for pre-emption—Subsequent suit.

The right to pre-empt is a right to be substituted for the vendee. A successful pre-emptor is vested with the rights of the vendee whom he dislodges not from the date of the sale but from the date on which he enforces his right (i. e.) from the date on which he satisfies the condition of his decree and brings it into operation. No doubt, he is substituted for the vendee in all the rights that were transferred by the sale, but it is unreasonable to conclude that the process of substitution takes places on any date prior to the satisfaction by the presumption of the conditions on which his decree has been granted to him. Any other conclusion will really increase the difficulties of persons desiring to dispose of their property by sale for they would have to enquire

In a pre-emption suit, the plaintiff was directed to put in a security bond for Rs. 12,000 the price mentioned in the sale-deed or in cash one-fifth of the amount. The 9th Dec. 1920 was fixed for it, but neither the security bond was produced nor one-fifth of the sale-price was deposited. On the 8th of January 1921, a security bond in the amount of Rs. 11,000 was filed which bore an endorsement which showed it was accepted. Held, plaintiff had failed to carry out the order of the Court which required the filing of a security bond for the full amount of the sale-price and that his suit should be dismissed. ——S. 22—Extension of time for deposit—Discretion—Appellate Court.

Held, under the circumstances of the case, the lower appellate Court, ought not to have gone out of its way to exercise the discretion of extending time in favour of the plaintiff to deposit the sale price. An Appellate Court has all the powers which the original Court has and can do all that the original Court can do. A parcha was given to him to pay Rs. 500 on or about 31st July 1915, and it was stated that Rs. 1,000 were already in Court on his behalf, i.e., the other plff. paid Rs. 5,000 on 25th June 1915 and on 29th July 1914 the plff. depositing Rs. 1,000 made an application for refund. Held he was entitled to a return. ——S. 29—Suit for pre-emption—Limitation—Starting point.

The underlying principle governing the limitation in pre emption suits is that it runs from the date of notice. If physical possession is given under the sale the whole world is given notice o the alienation. If a registered deed is executed, constructive notice is given and the same constructive notice is given by mutation. Where under the terms of an agreement ownership was to pass only on fulfilment of certain conditions but possession was given to facilitate the fulfilment of the conditions, and after they were complied with mutation of names was effected held in a suit for pre-emption time bega to run from the date of mutation under S. 29 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act. ——S. 30—Physical possession—Possession of tenants is not.

PUNJAB REDEMPTION OF MORTGAGES ACT (II OF 1913.)

——— —Punjab Act (III of 1900), S. 9 (2)—Mortgagee in possession — Proceedings by Revenue authorities—Effect.

Where the mortgagee was in possession of the land and had the Revenue authorities not intervened, it would have been the business of the mortgagor to bring a suit for possession by redemption. Held the summary proceedings taken by the Revenue authorities cannot affect the rights of the parties and a suit for declaration of charge and for possession until payment of the charge money is thus virtually a defence against an order divesting the mortgagee of possession before payment of the full sum due. In such circumstances the question of limitation does not arise and the provisions of O. 2. rule 2 are inapplicable. (Shadi, C. J. and Lumsden, J.) RAM SARAN DAS v. MULA. 4 Lah. 346 : 5 L. L. ———Collector's order—Effect on rights of parties—Right to remain in possession—Duty to restore benefits.

Proceedings under Act II of 1913 are summary and in a disputed case neither party should be prejudiced by the Collector's act when the matter is later on submitted to the decisions of the Civil Courts A suit under S. 12 of the Act is merely declaratory. In a suit under S. 12 by an usufructuary mortgagee of the property of a Mahomedan minor from his de facto guardian for declaration of the validity of his mortgage. Held, that as the minor must, before he recovers possession restore the benefits he has derived under the mortgage, the mortgagee would be entitled to remain in possession even in case of the invalidity of the mortgage provided the minor is under a duty to restore benefits. The manufacture of saltpetre is not an agricultural purpose or a purpose subservient to agriculture and property is not land within the meaning of S. 4 (1) of the Punjab Tenancy Act unless it is occupied or has been left for agricultural purposes or for purposes subservient to agriculture or for pasture. What has to be considered is the character and use of the property at the time immediately before the cause of action arose and the nature of the suit will not be affected by the act of the defendants which gives the plaintiff his cause of action. It must be held therefore as defined in the Tenancy Act, and that the suit is triable by a Civil Court. (Martineau, J.) SETH KARORI MAL v. WASAWA.

——S. 4 (5)—Position of Muqarridar is a tenant and not inferior proprietor.

A Muqarridar is a tenant and not an inferior proprietor. ——S. 19—Appraisement—Confirmation—Objections.

The refusal by a tenant to accept the result of an appraisement is no reason for declining to confirm it. The failure by a Revenue Officer to give effect to the direction contained in S. 19 (2) of the Act does not affect the admissibility or the value of the evidence contained in the appraisement record. In suits for the value of produce rents there is no conclusive presumption that produce calculated according to the Financial Commissioner's instructions in paragraph 12 in Standing Order No. 2 is the actual produce of the particular land in the particular harvest in suit. ——S. 19—Appraisment—Refusal of order S. 19—Evidentiary value of proceedings.

The refusal by a tenant to accept the result of an appraisement is not an adequate reason for declining to confirm it by an order under S. 19 (2).

An omission on the part of a Revenue Officer to make an order under S 19 either confirming or varying an appraisement does not affect the value of the evidence contained in it nor is it a bar to its admissibility, where value of produce rents is in question, it cannot be conclusively presumed that the actual produce of a particular land is the same as that calculated according to the Financial commissioner's instructions in O. 2 para 12. The object of the executive instructions there given is to provide a Revenue Court with a means of calculating the probable produce and its probable selling value from the records of crop inspection, the settlement officer's estimate of average outturns and other available sources, in those cases in which reliable evidence of the actual produce and actual selling price is not available.

For the validity of an appraisement under chapter II of the Punjab Tenancy Act the consent of neither the landlord nor the tenant is necessary. (Maynard, F. C.) MULK SHAH v. NATHU. 4 P. R. 1918 (Rev) : 45 I. C. 980 : 1 P.W.R. 1918 (Rev.)

In answer to a suit for possession brought by the plaintiffs the defendant-appellant set up a sale to him under the provision of S. 53 of the Tenancy Act. It was not the intention of the legislature to render the action of a tenant irrevocable once he had made an application under clause (2) of S. 53 and that a tenant has as much right to refuse to carry on the proceedings as the landlord has to refuse to accept the valuation of the right of occupancy by the Revenue Officer. It will be seen that under sub-S. (5) of S 53 the Revenue Officer after having decided on the value has to fix a date by which the landlord has to pay the ascertained price, but that the landlord is not compelled to pay that price and may resile from the position taken up by him under sub-clause (3). ——S. 77 (3) (n)—Jurisdiction — Civil or Revenue Court.

The defts. held cultivating possession of the land in suit under the plffs. who were mortgagees thereof. They had agreed to surrender possession to the plffs. and not to cultivate in future and promised that if they did cultivate the land in future they would pay Rs. 80 a year. The plffs. sued for recovery of Rs. 160 alleging that defts. had cultivated the land for two years contrary to the agreement. Upon the question whether the suit was cognizable by a Civil or Revenue Court, held, that as the object of the agreement was to enable plffs. to get back possession of the land from the defts. who had agreed to give it up and to ensure this object it was stipulated that the defts. should be liable to pay Rs. 80 a year as damages, the agreement was not a lease and from the date of agreement the relation of landlord and tenant, if it existed before, ceased to exist between the parties, and therefore the suit was cognizable by the Rev. ——S. 84 (5)—Revision — Material and technical irregularities.

A technical irregularity is not a good ground for revision. The powers under S. 84 (5) of the Act will be exercised only where it is necessary for doing substantial justice. The inclusion in the notice of ejectment and in the subsequent delivery of possession of a particular field, held in previous judicial proceedings to be part of the land from which the tenants were not liable to ejectment is a material irregularity, but the omission of the direction for ejectment, from the order of dismissal of the suit contesting the liability of ejectment, is only a technical irregularity. In a suit for arrears of rent in respect of a holding, the entries in the Jamabandi were—"In the ownership column Shamilat Deh and the cultivators column, certain tenants on behalf of Haidar Shah co-sharer one-third and Tola Singh two-third." Deft. pleaded that they had paid in the entire rent to Haidar Shah who was then joined as deft. and he repudiated Tola Singh's claim alleging that Tola Singh was out of possession altogether and that the entry in Jamabandi was wrong. Held, that a presumption of correctness attaches to Revenue Records. The proper course would have been to postpone the case for two months to allow Haidar Shah to prove his exclusive title if so advised. If no suit was brought, the Court should decide in favour of the plff. (Meredith, F. C.) TOLA SINGH v. MUHAMMAD. 6 P. W. R. 1912 Rev : 15 I. C. 467: 54 P. L. R. 1912.

The provisions of the Act in regard to the alienation of, and succession to, an occupancy tenancy may be overridden by an agreement valid under Ss. 111 and 112 of the Act. ——Ss. 111 and 112—Claim based on agreement—Agreement how proved.

A collection of a deceased occupancy tenant claiming to succeed to the tenancy upon an agreement must prove the agreement in one of the three following ways:—(1) By producing a document containing terms agreed upon between parties; (2) By an entry made before 18th November 1871 and attested by proper officer in the record of regular settlement sanctioned by the Local Government; (3) By an entry in Record-of-Rights made after the above-mentioned date or an entry in the Annual Record prepared under the provisions of the Punjab Land Revenue Act, 1887. An entry in No. 2 is by law presumed to be an agreement and its production is sufficient but an entry in No. 3 not being so, the party relying on it has to prove that it embodies the terms of the agreement between the parties. In the absence of express intention to the contrary agreements recorded in a Settlement Record are not intended to take effect after the expiry of the period of settlement. RAILWAYS ACT (IX OF 1890).

———Resolution of the Govt. of India, at pp. 18, 19 Supp. Gazette of India, 1884—"Rule."

The Government of India resolution pp. 18 and 19 of the supplement of the Gazette of India, 1884, does not constitute a rule under Act IV of 1879 as it merely defines the conditions under which all but ticket-holders may be excluded. The Railway Company has the right to exclude from Railway premises all persons excepting those having business with them and may impose on the rest of the public any terms they think proper. 22 Bom. 525 ; 26 B. 609 Foll. "Railway" includes all ferries, ships, etc., used on inland waters for the purposes of the traffic of a Railway and belonging to or hired by the authority administering the Railway ; hence a navigation company which undertakes to convey goods despatched by Railway to other places is also a "Railway". A plea that the deft. company is not a Railway Company within the meaning of the Act cannot be raised for the first time on appeal (Reid, C. J. and Rattigan, J.) INDIA GENERAL NAVIGATION RY. A person suing a Railway Company for damages will not be entitled to it unless he has given notice of the same in writing to the Agent of the Company In the absence of any rules of conduct giving the agent the right to delegate the receipt of such notices to the District Traffic Superintendent, notice to the latter is insufficient. Per Kumaraswami Sastri, J.—S. 140 of the Act is an enabling section and the word 'may' should not be construed as "must." The respondent Railway Co., constructed a line of railway across a public street vested by statute in the appellant Municipal Corporation without obtaining the consent of the latter and without taking proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act for the acquisition of the highway.

Held, that the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act did not cut down the power of the Railway Company under S. 7 of the Railways Act, to carry a line of railway across a public street, subject to the control of the Governor-General in Council, that the construction of the railway line across the street was not an acquisition of immoveable property within S. 7 and that the Railway Company had power to lay the railway lines under S. 7 without obtaining the consent of the appellant Municipality. A bye-law or rule providing for special accommodation or for the special convenience of a particular individual or of a particular class of individuals and for the general convenience of the travelling public is legal under S. 47 of the Railways Act. The "preference" forbidden by Ss. 42 and 43 refers to goods traffic and rates charged upon traders and does not apply to passengers. A person who enters a compartment of a Railway carriage reserved by a Railway Co., for the use of passengers of a particular class to which he does not belong, and refuses to leave when required to do so by a Railway servant, is liable to penalty under S. 109 of the Railway Act. ——Ss. 42, 47 and 109—Reservation of compartment for Europeans and Anglo-Indians—Legality of—"Another passenger" meaning of—Object of the rule making power.

It is lawful for a Railway Company to reserve a compartment by its train for the use of Europeans and Anglo-Indians only.

The accused entered and persisted in remaining in a third class compartment to which a card had been attached purporting, over the initials of the senior ticket examiner, to reserve it for Europeans and Anglo-Indians, Held, per the Officiating Chief Justice and Oldfield, J. (Krishnan, J. dissenting) that the accused had committed an offence punishable under S. 109 of the Indian Railways Act.

Per The Officiating Chief Justice and Oldfield, J.—The term 'passenger' in the expression another passenger' in S. 109 (1) is not restricted to a person who actually enters a Railway carriage for the purpose of travelling but also includes possible passengers who may join at any later station. The object and the result of making rules under S. 47 (1) of the Act with the sanction of the Governor-General in Council are only to make their breach an offence punishable by the Courts. The Traffic Working Orders are not general rules published under S. 47 of the Act

RAILWAYS ACT (IX OF 1890), S. 42.

They are not available and in no way resemble a power of attorney from which the station-master's authority is derived; they form merely a domestic code which every organisation must formulate for the guidance of its employees. The reservation of accommodation for Anglo-Indians or any class of passengers is not an undue or unreasonable preference in favour of a particulardescription of traffic within the meaning of S. 42 (2) of the Act. Per The Officiating Chief Justice.—There is nothing in any of the rules of the Traffic Working Orders to indicate that a compartment can only be legally reserved by a label or notice signed or initialled by the Station-master. The direction in R. 172 (a) to the effect that the Station-master should label the carriage or compartment does not imply that he must do so with his own hands or sign the label.

Per Krishnan, J.—The third class compartment in the case was not reserved for Europeans and Anglo-Indians, as the label that was in the carriage door was not the usually printed label signed or initialled by the Station-master under S. 172 (a) of the Traffic Working Orders. The Station-master has to observe the formalities required by the rules before properly he can reserve a compartment as his authority to do so is given to him by the Railway Administration subject to the rules.

The expression "Traffic" in S. 42 (2) is not restricted to conveyance of animals and goods and the fixing of charges therefor. (Ayling, Offg. C. J. and Oldfield, J.) KOMARAN, In re.

——S. 42 (2)—Reserved accommodation for a class is legal.

The railway is entitled to reserve accommodation for a particular class of persons without showing undue preference. The onus of proving undue preference is on the person who asserts it. It is a question of fact whether there has been undue preference. Per Shah, A. C. J.—A penal provision ought to be strictly construed and it is for the prosecution to make out that the compartment could be legally reserved in the manner it was reserved on the occasion. A reservation of this kind is apt to involve a transgression of the limitation laid down in S. 42 (2). (Shah, A. C. J., Crump and Marten, JJ.) EMPEROR v. NARAYAN KRISHNA GOGTE.

A "delivery to be carried by Railway" means something more than a mere depositing of goods on the Railway premises, it means some sort of acceptance by Railway, a taking as well as a giving. The commencement of the Company's liability for goods delivered to be carried under S. 72 does not depend upon a receipt being granted and must be determined on the evidence in the case. 23 A. 367 Dist. ——Ss. 56 and 80—Carriage of goods by rail—Delivery to consignee—Damage to goods—Demand for clear receipt—Refusal—Sale of goods.

A consignee has no right to demand that the goods shall be opened and inspected on the railway premises before he can be called upon to take delivery, 11 A. L. J. 772 Ref. There is no provision of law which obliges a railway company to make or allow to be made in its delivery register any note alleging that goods are in a damaged condition. A consignee cannot refuse to take delivery because the Ry. Co. refuses to make an entry in their books that the goods are damaged and the consignee could not insist upon an entry. If he had any complaint, he was entitled to make his representation to the company in any other way. Where in such a case the consignee refuses to clear the goods and the Ry. Company sells them under S. 56 of the Act, it is guilty of conversion, 11 A. L. J. 775 : 39 C. 311 Ref. Where goods are despatched through several railway systems and the consignee sues one of the railways for damage to goods he could only recover damages from that Railway by proving that the damage was caused on its system. 34 A. 422 Ref. ——Ss. 63, 93, 108 and 109—Pulling the chain—Overcrowding—Reasonable and sufficient cause.

Accused pulled a chain used as an alarm signal in a railway carriage on the ground that the compartment had become over-crowded on account of 70 passengers having entered into it, whereas the compartment was marked for 27 passengers only. He also complained to the Railway authorities but received no attention. Held, that he had reasonable and sufficient cause for pulling the chain within the meaning of S. 108 of the Railways Act. To prevent any danger to the health and life of passengers S. 63 of the Railways Act provides that the limit of passengers to occupy a compartment must be fixed and must be exhibited in some conspicuous place inside or outside the compartment on pain of penalty. A corresponding obligation has been cast under S. 109 of the Act, upon passengers to obviate entering a compartment which already contains the maximum number of passengers exhibited therein. These provisions of the Act therefore confer a right upon the occupants of a compartment to resist the entry of passengers when the compartment had already contained the maximum number allowed under the rules (Jwala Prasad, J.) ISHWAR DAS VARSHANI v. EMPEROR

Wilful neglect is mostly to be inferred from the circumstances. ——S. 72—Risk-note, Form B—Deterioration of goods—Damages—Liability of Railway—Loss—Meaning of.

The plaintiff made over to the defendant railway several parcels of mangoes for transit from Saharanpore to Labore. At the time of sending the goods, the plaintiff executed a risk-note in Form B. The goods were delayed in transit and did not reach Lahore till a fortnight after and by that time the fruits had become rotten. Delivery was offered to the consignee but was refused by him and the goods were then destroyed by the railway. In a suit by the plaintiff to recover the value of consignment, the Railway Company claimed the protection of the risk-note Form B, pleading that as there was no loss of the goods by them, the plaintiff could not recover. The Court below found that the delay in the transit of the goods and the resulting deterioration of the fruit was due to gross negligence on the part of the railway servants. Held, that though the deterioration was due to the neglect of the Railway servant, the contract of indemnity contained in the risk-note excluded the defendant's liability. The word " loss " in the risk-note meant loss by the Railway Administration and could not mean loss to owner in the sense of injury to him arising out of his being deprived of his goods. 1897 P. ——Ss. 72, 47 and 54—Delivery of goods to railway—Grant of receipt by railway not essential to complete delivery—Rules to that effect ultra vires—Liability of railway—Contract Act, S. 149.

Plaintiff handed over goods to a Railway Company for despatch to another place, which was accordingly done. He however failed to take a receipt for the goods despatched which never reached their destination and in a suit for damages the company pleaded that under a rule framed under S. 47 (1) (f) "delivery" will be deemed to be complete only as a receipt in the proper form being granted by the company's authorised servants, and that as the rule had not been complied with in the case, they were not liable. Held, overruling this plea, goods had been 'delivered' to the Railway authority within the meaning of S. 72 and the company could not escape liability for their negligence.

Per Piggott, J.—It is not open to a Railway Company to enact, by means of a rule, that although as a matter of fact goods have been delivered to a duly authorised servant of the administration to be carried by the Railway, nevertheless the Court shall not deem them to have been so delivered unless and until the Railway servant in question has performed a particular act, such as granting a receipt.

Per Walsh, J.—No rule which any company can make can cut down, control or limit its liability which is a creature of statute under S. 72 and if a rule is relied upon by the company which is inconsistent with that liability, it has clearly gone beyond the authority created for making rules.

S. 72 of the Railways Act, defines the responsibility of a Railway Company entrusted with goods as that of a bailee for reward as defined in Ss. 151, 152 and 161 of the Contract Act. The definition of "bailment" involves the definition of "delivery" as contained in S. 149 of the Contract Act and the two Ss. 148 and 149 of that Act are equally incorporated with the Railways Act and define and control the liability of the Railway Company. 23 All. 367 Dist. The plaintiff sued the defendant Railway Company for damages in respect of short delivery of goods. The plaintiffs had signed the risk note B, and in order to recover, the plaintiff had to prove that the loss was due to theft by or to the wilful neglect of the Company's servants, transport agent, or carriers employed by them before, during and after transit over the said railway or other railway lines working in connection therewith, etc, provided that the term "wilful neglect" could not be held to include fire, robbery from a running train or other unforeseen accident. Held, that although in equity the railway company ought to give such information to their customers as is in their possession with regard to the loss of goods delivered to them under the law it was not incumbent upon them to do so and they were not obliged to go out of their way to assist the plaintiff in proving wilful neglect. In this country it may be adopted as a safe rule that the railway should produce before the Court for examination those of their servants who were in a position to be acquainted with the facts relating to the disappearance of their customer's goods. *Smith, Ltd. v. ——— S. 72—Risk-note Form B—Loss of goods—Theft—Want of care—Burden of proof.

The right of a Railway Company to limit its liability in consideration of a reduction of the freight by special agreement has been recognised. The burden of proving wilful neglect on the part of the Railway Administration or its servants lies on the plaintiff. Wilful neglect may be inferred from the fact that the steps taken to secure the goods against loss by theft were inadequate. A theft is not the same thing as robbery from a running train because the latter imports the idea of the use of force. (Kanhaiya Lal, J. C.) ROHILKHAND AND KUMAUN RY. S. 72 (2) of the Railways Act limits the responsibility of the railway company to the extent specified in a risk note filled up and signed by the consignor. ——— S. 72—Risk note form B—Protection under when available to Railway Company—Liability of consignor—Ratification.

Where a plaintiff who consigned his goods for carriage by the defendant Railway Co. under a risk-note in Form B brought a suit for compensation for non-delivery of the goods, the defendant company cannot escape liability by having recourse to the risk-note unless they have pleaded loss or destruction in their written statement. In such a case the plaintiff may rest his claim on the presumption that the goods were still in the possession of the Railway Company, a presumption which may be raised under S. 114, Illn. (d) of the Evidence Act. The reason why it is so necessary to lay stress on the pleading in such a case is this—that the plaintiff has already a very heavy burden indeed and that it would not be just to increase the burden by excusing the defendant from the necessity of pleading 'loss' or 'destruction'. It may be loss in the ordinary sense of the word or it may be destruction by fire or water or vermine but the plaintiff should at least have some knowledge that the goods are no longer in company's possession. Where a broker signs a Risk-note B on behalf of a buyer of goods, the latter may ratify the contract including the contract of carriage with the Railway under the Risk-note B. ——— Ss. 72 and 80—Loss of goods—Misdelivery—Negligence—Liability of Railway Company.

Under Ss. 72 and 80 of the Railway Act, loss of goods includes loss suffered by the consignor or the owner whether such loss occurred by reason of misdelivery or non-delivery. 41 M. 871; 43 M. 617; 43 B 386 Foll. Where a contract, as for instance a risk-note, contains an exception and a proviso, the party who desires to take the benefit of the exception must not only plead it but prove it, and if that is done, the other party who desires to take the benefit of the proviso must prove that the subject-matter is not within the exception. In the case of a risk-note in form B, the onus is in the first instance upon the Railway Administration to prove that there was loss of the description for which the Railway is entitled to claim exemption from responsibility and when that is done the onus shifts to the consignor to prove that the loss was due to the wilful neglect of the administration or their servants within the meaning of the proviso, 45 Bom. 1201; 44 I.C. 395

——— Ss. 72 and 76—Risk-note—Forms A and B—Effect of—Liability of company—Onus—Difference.

The effect of risk-notes A and B is to limit the ordinary liability of the Railway Company under Ss. 72 to 76 of the Railways Act. The company becomes bailee under Ss. 151, 152 and 161 of the Contract Act and are common carriers. The ordinary liability to which under Ss. 72, 76 the Railway Coy. will be subject for loss, destruction, etc., as carriers, is intended to be limited under these Risk-notes, the consideration being the reduction in the tariff rate. Under them, the company is only liable for the loss of one or more complete packages due to wilful neglect of its servants, transport agents or carriers. The plaintiff in such a case must set forth all the particulars constituting wilful neglect or default and substantiate the same, the onus being on them. ordinary prudence would, under similar circumstances, take of his own goods of the same bulk, quality and value as the goods bailed.

In the present case, the train was travelling from Shewan to Dadu in open day light with a valuable cargo. The doors of the waggon were not locked. It was known that thefts from running trains had frequently occurred. In spite of this knowledge no measures were taken to guard against theft by the Railway Company. Held, that the Railway Company is responsible for the loss as no man of sense would leave valuable goods stored in an unlocked ware-house, situated in some out of the way place, altogether unguarded knowing that there were thieves in the neighbourhood. Also the Ry. Administration cannot be absolved from all obligations to watch the goods in their charge merely because the ware-house in which they are stored is in a state of rapid movement. ——— S. 72 (1)—Loss of goods—Responsibility of Railway Co.— Risk-note—Burden of proof.

The plaintiff sued the defendant Railway Co. for damages for failure to deliver a bale of cotton which he had consigned at Nagpur for delivery to himself at Ahmedabad. The plaintiff had executed Risk-note in Form B. Held that to lay a foundation for the company's liability the plaintiff would have to prove non-delivery, loss, destruction, or deterioration of the goods bailed but the responsibility under S. 72 (1) might be limited by special contract as provided in S. 72 (2). Risk-note, Form B is one form of such contract. Where the Railway Company admit non-delivery but set up in defence the Risk-note, it is for them to plead and prove the circumstances in which the Risk-note is intended to operate and exempt them from liability or in other words, the goods have been lost or destroyed. Neither a mere allegation or loss by the Company nor an admission of non-delivery by the plaintiff is proof of such loss. If the Railway Company prove the loss, which they may do, they are exempted from liability by the risk-note unless the plaintiff prove that his cases come within the exception mentioned therein, it may be that the loss alleged by the Railway Company is admitted by the plaintiff. Plff. delivered to the deft. Railway Company a parcel containing the account books for carriage from Bombay to Nagpur. The parcel was misdelivered to a person who thinking that the parcel was the one which was sent to him from Khandwa for destruction of the papers therein destroyed the account books. The plff. sued the deft. Railway Company for damages for Rs. 25,000; Held, Per Scott, C. J. S. 75 of the Railways Act applies to articles of special value declared by the legislature in the schedule. They must therefore be articles free from any pretium affectionis on the part of the owner that is to say, which could be valued by any sufficiently trained expert quite apart from the feelings of the owner. The damages recoverable against the Railway Company, was the value of the property lost and nothing more. The plff. could not sue for any remote or consequential damages which he might allege he had suffered from the loss. The plff. could recover Rs. 70 as the actual cost of the books and no more. Per Macleod, J—The protection under S.75 lasted as long as the Railway Company were liable as carriers and in this case their liability would continue after the goods had arrived at their destination for such reasonable time as would be required for the consignee to come to take delivery. The whole object of S.75 would be defeated if the consignor could claim consequential damages for the loss of an excepted article without insuring it on the ground that its value was over Rs. 100. The section was an absolute bar to an action against the Railway Company for any amount exceeding Rs. 100 for the loss, and the consequences of the loss of excepted goods entrusted to them for carriage unless a declaration had been made under the section. The word "value" in S. 75 did not necessarily mean "market value." If an article has a special value to the owner beyond the market value and if he wished to recover that value he must declare and insure the goods. If however a loss occurred the liability of the Railway Company was limited by S. 75 (2) to the true value. (Scott, C. J. and Macleod, J.) GREAT INDIAN PENINSULAR RY. ——Ss. 76 and 80—Railway Company—Suit for loss or destruction of goods—Onus of proof—Risk-note.

In a suit against a Railway Company for compensation for loss, destruction, etc., of goods entrusted to them for transit, the plaintiffs ordinarily need prove only the loss. The Railway may then either show that the loss occurred in circumstances which exempted a bailee from the responsibility for the loss or they may rely upon a special contract which exempts them from liability. When there is a risk-note which is a special contract exempting the Railway from all liability except in certain specified cases, the plffs. can succeed only if they establish that their case comes within these exceptions. Under S. 80 of the Railways Act no suit will lie against a Railway Company to whom the goods were not entrusted unless it is shown that the loss occurred while the goods were in their possession. In no case can a decree be passed against both the companies. (Mitra, A. J. C.) AGENT, G. I.P. RY. CO. v. KARAYAL.

signal—Breach of R. 9 whether to be under Sub-S. (a) or (b) of S. 101—Construction of rules framed by Railways.

The omission of the guard to place detonators to protect the train when it is stopped outside a distant signal amounts to a disobedience under R. 9 of G. I. P. Ry. Working Instructions and is punishable under S. 101 (a). Where a guard is charged under S 101 (b) the onus of proving that a guard charged under S. 101 (b) did not comply with general rule 86 is on the prosecution which burden can be discharged by the Ry. authorities inspecting the line to see if any metallic remnants are formed there. When a train stands outside the distant signal, it is "authorised" detention and not due to "accident, failure or obstruction." The wording of G. I P. ——— S. 109—Reservation of Ry. Compartment for Europeans—Whether company can remove a passenger entering a reserved carriage.

S. 109 of the Act confers a general power on the Railway Company to reserve a compartment to passengers of a particular class, community or race and there is nothing illegal in such a provision. The removal of a person by a threat of using force, is a forcible removal. The Railway authorities are not entitled to remove a passanger from a compartment which is reserved for another passenger or class of passengers. (*Fawcett, A. J. A person charg d under S 112 for entering a railway carriage without a ticket pleaded guilty as to entering the carriage but said that he did not purchase the ticket because the train was about to start. Held, that this conviction is bad as his statement amounts to a positive denial of an intention to defraud. (Walsh, J.) BANWARI LAL v. EMPEROR. 57 I. C 825.

———Ss. 112 and 68—Wrong ticket.

Where a passenger travelling by a Railway train on being called upon, produces a ticket bearing date of a previous day throwing away another in his possession, he cannot be held to have dishonest intention so as to justify a conviction under S. 112 as the essence of the offence under that section is an intent to defraud the Railway Company. Unless there is clear evidence to show that a passenger knows that the ticket he is holding has been used before, an intention on his part to cheat the Railway Company cannot be inferred from the mere fact that the passenger knows that he is committing a breach of the Railways Act or rules framed under the Act. If the ticket does not show to its holder that, under the Railway rules it is only available for a particular train or on a particular day, his knowledge of the Railway rules posted on the Stations will not be assumed unless it is proved that the attention of the traveller was drawn to them (Harrington and Teunon, JJ.) MANINDRO NATH MITTER v. BENGAL NAGPUR RAILWAY COMPANY. 35 I. ——S. 80 (2)—Annual value—Meaning of—Taxation of lands and buildings—Basis of assessment—Standard rent—Rangoon Rent Act, 1920—Sub-tenants—Rents paid by.

The Corporation must in the absence of special circumstances take as its basis the standard rent in these cases on which the standard rent has been fixed by the Rent Controller. In other cases it must fix the rateable value on a consideration of all the surrounding facts and circumstances including the effect that the Rangoon Rent Act has or may have on the matter. It cannot be said in every instance that the amount that a tenant is able to obtain from his sub-tenants is always to be taken as the rateable value ; but that amount may be taken into consideration with all the other facts governing the question. In other words in arriving at a decision as to the amount for which the premises may reasonably be expected to let the Assessor will consider the rent a tenant can extract from his sub tenants ; but this will not be the only matter to be considered in arriving at a decision. ——S. 91 (2)—Notice—Orders reserved—Failure of Commissioner to inform complainant the date of final disposal—Date from which fourteen days' period begins.

Before advantage could be taken of the requirement of notice within fourteen days of any particular date the requirements of the Act with reference to that date must be fully and properly complied with. When orders are reserved, the complaint is not disposed of, and will not be disposed of, within the meaning of the Act until the order is delivered. Where nothing remains but for the order to be written and delivered, the date on which it is disposed of will be the date, of the delivery of the order, and notice of that date, the Commissioner is, by the Act, bound to give to the complainant. But where no such notice of the final disposal is given, but notice is served on the complainant with a copy of the Commissioner's order, the date of receipt of that notice and copy of the order constitutes a sufficient compliance with the requirements of the Act as to notice of the date for final disposal. And if notice of an intention to appeal is served on the Corporation within fourteen days of the date on which the appellants received a copy of the Commissioner's order, the Court would have jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. ———Appointment of—Execution against property—Omission to obtain leave of Court does not make it void.
The rule that possession of a receiver may not be disturbed without leave, does not apply so far as third parties are concerned, until a receiver has been actually appointed and is in actual possession. Even where a receiver is in possession, a sale of property in his hands at the instance of a stranger to the suit without leave of Court is not void but only voidable. Where a conditional order discharging a receiver had been passed, but the order had not been carried out nor possession taken and subsequently the Receiver was even continued in office by an order of Court a decree obtained by the Receiver in a suit for rent subsequent to the above order was quite valid and binding. Even on the footing that the Receiver had been discharged before the rent decree, it would only result in a devolution of interest and the decree would enure for the benefit of the persons on whom the interest had devolved. Under the circumstances there was neither in fact nor in law, such a discharge as made it incumbent on the Receiver to disclose it to the Court. RECEIVER.

Where after the final decree on a simple mortgage is passed in a mortgage suit and before the sale, a receiver appointed of the properties of the mortgagor i a partition suit between them and Receiver applies to be made a party to the execution proceedings, he ought to be made a party. The mere fact that there is a mortgage on the property in the hands of the Receiver would not take the case out of the general rule that no process can be permitted in respect of the properties in the hands of a receiver, without the sanction of the Court which appointed him. Property in the possession of a receiver is in the custody of the law and cannot be seized under a writ of attachment or execution. It is in the discretion of the Court to refuse to permit a sale of the property in its possession under a judgment though the levy was made before the Receiver was appointed. 26 C. 127 doubted. The Receiver in such a case is not a new party under O. 1, R. 10, C. P. Code and that rule does not stand in the way of the eceiver being made a party. The refusal to make the Receiver party to the execution proceedings is a material irregularity in the exercise of the Jurisdiction of the lower Court justifying the interference of the High Court under S. 115, C. P. Code. (Devadoss, J.) FRASER AND ROSS v. KRISHNASWAMI IYER.

———Leave to sue—Want of objection if fatal to the suit.

Failure to obtain the sanction of the appointing Court for suing a Receiver can be effectively cured by obtaining the same during the course of the litigation. Where the Receiver originally appointed had ceased to exist and had been substituted by the heirs of one of the parties who were on record the objection that the suit against the receiver was instituted without leave will not stand. ———Remuneration of—Insolvency — Official Receiver.

Where any part of the insolvent's property is subject to a mortgage the value of the insolvent's right to redeem that property can only be his assets available for distribution. If the receiver sells the property free from the mortgage and realises the purchase money the whole of it is not assets available for distribution but only such part as remains in his hands after paying off the mortgagee. He is not entitled to a percentage on the whole of the purchase-money. Notification 35 B-XIX, dated 19th April 1920 fixes the remuneration of the receiver. RECORD OF RIGHTS.

———Appointment of—Effect on title and possession.

A receiver is entitled to be represented in a suit the result of which may be to affect the property in custodia legis, but here no attempt has been made to interfere with right of the receiver to the property entrusted to his care. Though the appointment of a receiver may in many cases operate to change possession it has no effect whatever on the title of the party to the property which is placed in the possession of the receiver. RECORD OF RIGHTS.

——Entry in—Presumption—Limitation.

An entry in the record-of-rights merely raises a presumption of correctness, and is not a starting point for the computation of the period of limitation. (N. R. Chatterjee and Suhrawardy, JJ.) SORAJ KUMAR ACHARI CHOWDHURI v. UMED ALI HOWLDAR. 25 C. W. N. 1022 : 35 C. L. J. 19 : 1922 Cal. 251.

——Entry in, does not nullify previous decisions.

Where a prior decision operates as res judicata, the subsequent publication of the record of rights does not nullify the effect of that decision nor does it sweep out all decisions between the parties. (Mookerji, A. C. J., and Fletcher, J.) JALADUR BHOWMIK v. BIRENDRA NATH ROY. 60 I. C. 389.

——Entry in—Presumption as to correctness—Suit for declaration of right—Onus of proof.

In a suit by plaintiffs for declaration of their right to lands as khudkasht, the record of rights showed an entry that the lands were Khudkasht. Held, that the onus was on defendant to show that the entry was wrong. (Fletcher, Greaves and Huda, JJ.) GAJADHAR PRASAD SINGH v. SHEO NANDAN PRASAD SINGH. 51 I. C. 115· 23 C. W. N. 304.

——Entries in—Presumption as to correctness of—Rebuttal.

——Entry in—Presumption.

• An entry in the Record of Rights against the plff. only raises a presumption against him and he has to prove by evidence that it is incorrect. (Chatterjea and Suhrawardy, JJ.) SARAJ KUMAR ACHERJI v. UMED ALI. 25 C W. N. 1022. 35 C. L. J. 19 : 1922 Cal. 251.

——Entry in—Value of.

An entry in the Record of Rights in Berar though not supported by a statutory presumption as in the Central Provinces does raise a presumption of correctness. (Stanyan, A. J. C.) RAGHOBA v. PALHOBA. 45 I. C. 217.

RECORD OF RIGHTS.

——Entry in—No further proof necessary.

There is no authority for the proposition that although the record of rights is in favour of the tenant, it is still necessary for him to establish by clear evidence that the entry to the effect that he has occupancy right of the holding is correct. 49 I. A. 339 dist. (Das and Kulwant Sahai, JJ.) STONEWIGG v. KAMESWAR NARAYAN SINGH. (1923) Pat. 122 : 1923 P. 340.

——Presumption of accuracy—Rebuttal—What evidence Admissible—Acquisition of occupancy rights.

Evidence of facts documentary and oral prior to that of the publication of the Record of Right is admissible to rebut the presumption of accuracy attaching to the Record of Rights. Provincial Settlement Records are of high value in determining the status of tenants and an entry therein is sufficient to rebut the presumption of correctness attaching to Records of Rights. Rafa-tankidars are occupancy raiyats and not tenure holders. Under raiyats may by custom acquire certain privileges possessed by occupancy tenants, but that does not confer upon them the status of occupancy tenants. (Das and Adami, JJ.) RAGHUNATH MISRA v. RAM BEHERA. 1 P. 187: 5 P. L. T. 140: 1922 P. 548.

——Entry—Construction.

In a suit for rent where the Khatian contained an entry as to rent as follows. "Every year the land which actually grows crop is measured. The tenant pays to the malik and Dhan and Moong Laggi 9 feet 9 inches". Held the entry meant that the rent was payable at the rate of Rs 3-5-6 Bigha of land grown with Dhan and 4 annas per bigha of the land grown with moong the actual quantity of land grown with Dhan and Moong being ascertained by measurement every year. (Jwala Prasad, J.) GOBIND RAUT v. THAKUR PRASAD CHOUDHURI. 1922 P 481.

——Publication, Certificate of—Presumption.

The production of the certificate of publication of the Record of Rights by the defendants raises a presumption that there was publication according to the procedure laid down in the Regulation, throwing the onus on the plaintiffs to establish that there was no regular publication of the Record of Rights. (Das and Adami, JJ.) DWARKA PRASAD v. JAI BARHAM. 1922 P. 322.

——Value of entry—Adverse possession.

A mere entry in the Record of rights of the possession of the redeeming mortgagor, is of no effect to prove adverse possession against a co-mortgagor. But it is valuable evidence on adverse possession if the Record is one of exclusive title of one mortgagor and he proves knowledge of it by the co-mortgagor. (Jwala Prasad and Das, JJ.) RAM NARAYAN v. RAM DEVI. 63 I. C. 282.

——Presumption—Evidence to rebut is admissible.

RECORD OF RIGHTS.

An entry in the Record of rights raises a presumption which can be rebutted by evidence oral and documentary of a date prior to that of the publication of the Record. Such evidence is admissible and should be weighed. (Das and Adami, JJ.) ALI KHAN v SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA. 61 I. C. 78: 2 P. L. T. 133.

———Presumption as to entry in—Circumstance negativing.

A circumstance relied upon as negativing the presumption of correctness of Record-of Rights, must not only be inconsistent with the Record but it must be incapable of explanation on any other hypothesis than that the Record-of-Rights is wrong. (Das, J.) GOBIND PRASAD v. CHATURBHUJ. 60 I. C. 482.

——— Entry in—Effect.

An entry in the Record of Rights operates in the same way between landlords of neighbouring estates, as between landlord and tenant or between landlords of the same estate or between tenant and tenant. (Das and Adami, JJ.) BIBI WAKILAN v. NANDAN PROSAD. 5 Pat. L. J. 681: 59 I. C. 295: 2 Pat. L. T. 81.

——— Entry in—Presumption as to correctness—Evidence—Duty of Court.

An entry in the Record of Rights is presumed to be correct so long as it is not rebutted by sufficient evidence. (Mullick and Sultan Ahmed, JJ.) JANKI KUER v. SAUDAGAR RAM.
1 Pat. L. T. 221: 56 I. C. 417 : 1920 Pat. 177

———Suit for declaration that entry is wrong entry barred by limitation—Suit for consequential relief, if barred.

The fact that a claim for a declaration that an entry in the Record of Rights is wrong is barred by limitation would not prevent the Court from determining that the entry is wrong if it is essential for the main or consequential relief claimed. A claim is not necessarily barred by an entry in the Record of Rights which if produced in evidence and unrebutted would be fatal to the relief claimed. (Miller, C. J. and Jwala Prasad, J.) UTTIM SAHU v. ARJANI.
46 I. C. 229

———Entry in—Presumption as to correctness of.

An entry in a Record of Rights raises only a presumption, but where evidence is let in to rebut the presumption the judgment must show that the rebutting evidence has been carefully considered and that the Court has come to a conclusion whether or not the evidence has rebutted the presumption. If nothing to that effect appears in the judgment, the suit should be remanded (Imam, J.) DURGA PRASAD v. HARIHAR PRASAD. 45 I C. 916: 4 Pat. L. W. 448.

———Entry—Presumption as to correctness

There is a presumption of correctness attached to an entry in a Record of Rights, to rebut which strong evidence to the contrary will be necessary (Atkinson, J.) DEBI RAUT v. ASHUTOSH BHATTACHARJEE. 39 I. C. 561.

——Mistake as to proprietorship of land—Suit in Civil Court does not lie.

Where a document is by mistake admitted to registration the mistake arising from the fact that the transferees are co-proprietors of other land in the same village, the proper remedy of the party is by application to a Revenue Officer and the jurisdiction of the Civil Court is ousted. ———S. 2 (3)—Right of way—Easements Act.

A right of way created by writing requires registration if the value of the right be more than Rs. 100 as it comes under the term "immoveable property" in S. 2 (6) of the Act. Chatterjee and Richardson, JJ.) SITAL CHANDRA v. ALLEN J. DILANI. 34 I. C. 450: 20 C. W. N. 1158.

REGISTRATION ACT (XVI OF 1908), S. 2.

———S. 2 (6)—"Immoveable property"—Standing timber and standing trees—Distinction between.

"Standing timber" means trees, the wood of which is useful for building or repairing houses or for other industrial purposes, and implies an intention, sooner or later, to sever the trees from the soil. The terms "standing trees," however, does not suggest any such severance. A mortgagee took a usufructuary mortgage of the tenant's right in a grove, consisting mostly of fruit bearing trees, and the parties to the mortgage never contemplated the severance of the trees and use of their wood for industrial purposes. The trees of the grove could not be considered to be "standing timber" and that therefore the mortgage of the grove-holder's rights was a transfer of an "immoveable property" within the Regn. Act, S 2 (6). 9 I. C. 478 Diss; (1887) A. W. N. 59 Ref. 18 O. C. 122; 30 I C. 281 Foll. (Stuart and Muhammad Ali, A. J. Cs.) RAMAN LAL v. RAM GOPAL.

35 I. C. 713: 3 O. L. J. 367.

———S. 2 (6) and (9)—Standing trees—Moveable and immoveable property—Registration.

Where there is a transaction regarding trees in connection with which an instrument of transfer has been executed, the character of the transaction will determine whether the trees referred to are moveable or immoveable property. 6 M. H. C R. 71; 28 I. C. 180 Ref. Where a nim tree is mortgaged without any intention of its being severed from the land and used as timber, the tree is immoveable property. REGISTRATION ACT (XVI OF 1908), S. 2.

——Ss. 2 (7) and 17—Agreement to lease not importing a present demise—Registration.

An agreement to lease, which does not import a present demise or the creation of an immediate interest, is not compulsorily registrable. 10 Bom. 101 Ref (Pratt, J.) SECRETARY OF STATE v. MAHOMED YUSUF.

54 I. C. 134 : 21 Bom. L. R. 1130.

——Ss. 2 (7) and 17 (1) (d)—Document creating immediate interest in grantee—Registration.

A document specifying the boundaries of a certain plot of land and fixing the rent and stating that a lease is granted to the grantee who undertakes to execute a Kabuliyat within a certain time, is in substance a lease It creates an immediate interest in the grantee in the land leased out and is therefore compulsorily registrable. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) BHUBAN MOHAN BANERJEE v. EDAN SARDAR. 27 I. C. 91.

——S. 2 (7)—Agreement to lease.

Unless the agreement operates as an immediate demise of the property it need not be registered 47 Cal. 485 (P. C.) Foll. (Wallis, C. J. and Seshagiri Aiyar, J.) SWAMINADHA MUDALIAR v. RAMASWAMI MUDALIAR

——S. 2 (7)—Agreement to lease creating interest immediately is within section.

An agreement to lease, in order that it may fall under S. 2 (7) of the Act, must grant an immediate interest, even before the execution of any other document, agreements creating interests which are to come into existence at some future date are not covered by S 2 (7) of the Act. 51 I. C. 954 : 21 Bom. L. R. 716.

——Ss. 2 (9), 17 (1) (a) and 49—Grove—Moveable or immoveable property—Timber and trees.

Standing timber and standing trees are not convertible terms. The question whether a grove transaction amounts to merely a transfer of standing timber or to a larger transfer of an interest in immoveable property is one to be determined on the circumstances of the case. Where there was no intention in a deed of transfer of a grove that the trees should be severed and used as timber, the transfer is one of immoveable property and requires registration. 6 M. H. C. REGISTRATION ACT (XVI OF 1908), S. 17.

——Ss. 17 49 and 50—Object of registration—Registration, if notice to the public.

Notice cannot in all cases be inferred from the fact that a document is found on the register of deeds. Whether registration is a sufficient notice is a question of fact depending on the circumstances of each case. The test is whether omission to search the registry amounts to gross negligence on the part of the person to be affected with notice. (Lord Buckmaster.) TILAKDHARI LAL v KHEDAN LAL. 48 Cal 1 : (1920) M. W N. 591 : 13 L. W. 161 : 25 C. W. N. 49 : 22 Bom. L. R. 1319 : 32 C. L. J. 479 : 2 Pat. L T 101 : 28 M. L. T. 224 : 18 A L. ——Ss. 17 and 49—Application in mutation proceedings—Admission of title — Registration not compulsory.

Where in an application in mutation proceedings, there is an admission of title, the same cannot be said to be a document of title and as such is not compulsorily registrable. (Daniels, J.) RAM KISHEN RAI v. SHEO SAGAR PANDEY.

1924 A. 304.

Where a petition was presented in the mutation case and it only informed the Court of the compromise which the parties had effected, held that the petition did not require to be stamped or registered as a transfer of interest in immoveable property (Banerji, J.) JAGRANI MISRANI v BISHESHAR DUBE.

26 I. C. 791 : 12 A. L. J. 1316.

——S 17—Law requiring registration—Transfer—Can be effected only by registration or decree of competent Court.

——Ss 17 and 49--Usufructuary mortgage for over Rs. 100—Absence of registration—Nature of possession.

In a suit on an unregistered usufructuary mortgage for more than Rs. 100 it can be received in evidence for proving that the defendant was in possession as mortgagee and as such that he prescribed for the limited interest of usufructuary mortgagee. Per Venkatasubba Rao, J.—It can be looked at for ascertaining the quantum of interest which the adverse possessor has been prescribing for. Per Spencer, J.—In a suit for redemption on such a document, the terms of the document have to be proved and no other evidence will suffice to prove it (Ramesam, J. on a difference between Spencer and Venkatasubba Rao, JJ.) NADEPENA APPAMMA v. SARIPALLI CHINNAVADU.

The document was an entry in Bahi reciting that a settlement had been arrived between uncle of the one part and nephew's brothers of the plaintiff, of the other part, by which the house in suit was given to uncle and another house known as Nereliwala to the four nephews in a partition. The entry stated that two of the nephews made themselves responsible for their two brothers, and had therefore executed the document. The entry was signed by them and by three witnesses. One of the nephews below his signature declared that the settlement had been made at the instance of the brotherhood and that "the above writing is accepted" The purport of the document was plainly to serve as a title deed ; it was clearly a declaration of will creating a definite change of legal relation to the property, and the intention of the executants undoubtedly was to constitute the document and its counter-part with the nephews the sole repository and the appropriate evidence of the partition. Held, the document required registration and was inadmissible without registration. Mortgage.

——— S. 17 (1) (b)—Mortgage—Equitable mortgage in writing—Registration.

If a memorandum is of such a nature that it could be treated as the contract for the mortgage which the parties considered to be the only repository and appropriate evidence of their agreement it would be the instrument by which the equitable mortgage was created, and would come within S. 17 of the Regn. Act. Where title deeds are handed over with nothing except that they are to be security the law supposes that the scope of the security is the scope of the title. Where, however title deeds are handed over accompanied by a bargain, the bargain must rule. Lastly, when the bargain is a written bargain it alone must determine the scope and extent of security. Although it is a well established rule of equity that deposit of a document of title without writing, or without word of mouth, will create in equity a charge upon the property referred to, that general rule will not apply when there is a deposit accompanied by an actual written charge. In that case the terms of the written document must be referred to and any implication that must be raised supposing that there was no document is put out of the case and reduced to silence by the documents by which alone the case has to be governed. ——Ss. 17 (1) (d) and 49—Agreement to lease—Unregistered—Delivery of possession to lessee—Effect of—Doctrine of part performance—Estoppel against statute.

An agreement to lease intended to operate as a present demise is a lease within the meaning of cl. (d) of S. 17 of the Registration Act, 1908, and as such is inadmissible in evidence in a suit for specific performance of its terms, under S 49 of the Act, if it is not registered even though the tenant is in possession under the said agreement. Cases of part performance under S. 4 of the statute of frauds have no application to those arising under S. 49 of the Registration Act, 1908, as the positions under the two Acts are quite different The plaintiff who was in possession of certain premises under a previous tenancy expiring in December 1916, on the expiry of the said tenancy entered into negotiations for a further tenancy, with the landlords, the Mondol defendants the terms of which were educed into writing. This document, dated 15th January 1917, which was unregistered, purported to be in form a memorandum of agreement but was intended to operate as a present demise of the said premises to the plaintiff for five years from 1st January 1917 and was held to be a lease within the meaning of cl (d) of S. 17 of the Registration Act, 1908. In May 1919 the Mondol Defendants sold the said premises to the Lahiri Defendants who had full notice of the unregistered instrument of 15th January 1917 and of its terms. On the 29th May 1919, the Plaintiff was given notice by the Lahiri Defendants to quit by the 30th June 1919, on the allegation that he was a monthly tenant. The Plaintiff brought a suit for the specific performance of the said agreement in terms of the unregistered document

Held that the document, dated 15th January 1917, was not admissible in evidence in a suit for specific performance, under S. 49 of the Registration Act as it was not registered As there was as no other evidence before the Court of the terms of the said agreement, there could not be a decree for specific performance.

Per Mookerjee, J.—Although an agreement in writing, which is not a present demise, but only an agreement for a lease, is (having regard to the term 'lease' as defined in S. 2 of the Act) required to be registered if the term exceeds one year, and the exemptions provided in Cls. (h) and (i) to S. 17 of the Act of 1877 do not apply to leases. S. 49 of the Act does not preclude its being received as evidence of any transaction not affecting such property. It can therefore be proved by the plff. in a suit for specific performance of the agreement to grant the lease. Where a compromise petition recited that the parties, as part consideration for the compromise agreed to let certain properties not in suit to the deft. on certain terms and where a decree in terms was passed. Held that the petition was not in itself an agreement to lease as it was a mere recital of the terms agreed upon and it was admissible to prove the agreement to lease. REGISTRATION ACT (XVI OF 1908) S. 17 (2) (vi) —Compromise.

The word " decree " in S. 17 (2) (vi) of the Registration Act is not confined to so much of a decree as is operative under O. 23, R 3 of the C P. Code The object of the registration is to provide for public registration of documents and its provisions have to be construed accordingly. Where on a compromise of a pending suit, it was provided inter alia that one of the parties should grant a lease of certain lands not the subject of the suit on a certain contingency, and the agreement between the parties was recorded in a decree of Court under O. 23, R. 3 of the C P. Code. Held, that even though the decree might be incapable of execution as a decree qua, the lands not included in the suit, it might be received in evidence of the agreement which it embodied. ——— S. 17 (2) (vi)—Compromise beyond the scope of the suit—Decree not embodying terms of the compromise—Non-registration—Actings of the parties—Part performance—Parties not entitled to resile from compromise.

In the course of certain proceedings between a mortgagor and mortgagee under mortgage of 1848 and 1871, the parties entered into a compromise in 1873, whereby it was agreed that a portion of the equity of redemption was to be released in favour of the mortgagee who was thenceforth to be the absolute owner thereof and that the mortgagor was to be absolutely entitled to the remainder free of the incumbrance It was also agreed that a conveyance should be executed in respect of the properties agreed to be relinquished by the mortgagor in favour of the mortgagee. No conveyance, however, was executed but the parties had acted on the terms of the arrangement for a long time and enjoyed the properties allotted thereby absolutely as their own.

Held, that as the transaction took place before the T. P. Act, no writing or registration was necessary to validate it and that even if the transaction was defective or inchoate, the conduct of the parties and the actings of the mortgagor had been such as to supply all such defects. ——— S. 17 (2) (vi)—Compromise—Effect—Family arrangement.

In a mutation proceeding, where the petition is merely to effect mutation in particular manner and not to declare any rights, the petition is admissible as a collateral evidence to show that the settlement had taken place, even if it is not registered as required by law, though it may not effect a valid transfer of rights A contrary view is held that the petition of compromise is an authoritative admission by each party. It is a document of title and is inadmissible in evidence

As family settlement does not necessarily involve the transfer of rights, it is not affected by the provisions of T. P. Act. ——S. 17 (2) (vi)—Compromise in mutation proceedings - Registration

A petition of compromise presented to a Court which declares the respective interests of the parties in property exceeding Rs. 100 in value, must be registered before it can be used as evidence of title, unless it is acted upon judicially by the Court. Written instruments are not exempt from registration merely because they evidence or carry out a family settlement Neither does the fact that it is drawn up in the form of a petition and presented to the Court along with a petition, take away the necessity of its being registered, if it is otherwise compulsorily registrable. ——S. 17 (2) (vi)—Compromise— Decree—Registration -Agreement to lease-Part performance.

Where a compromise agreement operated as a demise it should have been registered. Not having been registered it is prima facie inadmissible in evidence as a lease. If the agreement in question is inadmissible as a lease, it is still admissible in evidence so far as it contains an express admission by the defendant in the suit of 1905 of the title of the plaintiffs in that suit as patnidars. In respect of such admission, the agreement, if it comes at all within S. 17 of the Registration Act, would fall within Cl. (b) or Cl. (c) and the exception in sub-S. (2) (vi) would apply to it. Where the Courts below found that the rent at the rate now claimed was paid for a number of years to the plaintiffs in the suit by the present defendant or his father, and that defendant was in possession before the suit and he continued in possession after the suit, but he attorned to the plaintiffs, Held, that the relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties was proved and that the rent due was that which the defendant had been paying. A Hindu about three weeks before he died, executed a document which was headed a statement that it was a will in favour of the executant's wife, by it the executant, after stating that he had long been seriously ill and had no issue, said, " I have consented to your adopting a son at your pleasure and conducting the management of the estate in the best manner. None of my heirs shall have cause to raise disputes touching this matter. This Will has been executed by my consent." The document was not registered. After the executant's death his widow adopted a son to him. Held, that the document was merely an authority to adopt and not a will and was therefore required to be registered by the last provision in S. 17 of the Registration Act of 1877. ——Ss. 32, 83 and 75—Presentation by agent—Acceptance for registration—Presumption—Refusal of Registrar to register—Appeal—Order for registration—Effect of—Subsequent presentation if necessary.

A Sub-Registrar to whom a mortgage was presented for registration by a person holding a power of attorney from the mortgagor refused to register the document on the ground that the mortgagor did not attend to admit execution under S. 45 of the Registration Act. On appeal the Registrar ordered registration of the document. The Sub-Registrar accordingly registered it. Subsequently an objection was raised that the original presentation was invalid and that the document was not duly presented even at the time it was registered. Held, that the endorsement of the Sub-Registrar that the document was validly presented raised a presumption that the power of attorney was duly executed and that the document having been originally validly presented a fresh presentation was unnecessary before it was registered in pursuance of the order of the Registrar (Lord Buckmaster). On the marriage of a minor woman, the father ceases to be her natural guardian and the husband takes his place. The father therefore is neither an assignee nor a representative of the woman within the meaning of S. 32 of the Act and presentation by him of a deed of gift in favour of his minor daughter, is not a proper presentation, within the meaning of S. 34, and registration of the deed on presentation by him is invalid, illegal and a nullity. who presents a document for registration has not been duly authorized. If a person is ill and unable to attend at the proper Registration office to present for registration, execution in the presence of the Registrar is not necessary; all that the Registrar has to do is to satisfy himself that the document has been voluntarily executed. A document was presented for registration by an unauthorized person who stated the executant was ill and deposited the fee for the Registrar to visit the executant or issue a commission for his examination to ascertain if the document had been voluntarily executed. The Registrar visited the executant at his house and he admitted execution and requested that after registration the document be given to his attorney. Held, that the executant was the real presentor and the registration was therefore valid. 42 I. registering documents, presented a document for registration, the presumption of the validity of the registration proceedings is rebutted. The fact that the executant was present at the time of registering a document and admitted its execution is unable to justify the inference of the executant's presence at the time of its actual presentation for registration. ——— Ss. 32, 34 and 35—Admission of execution by some of the executants—Registration not valid.

Ss. 32 to 35 of the Registration Act have been very carefully designed to prevent forgeries and the procurement of deeds by fraud or undue influence. It is necessary to insist on strict compliance with them. Where only one of the executants of a deed appeared before the Registrar and admitted execution and the others did not, the deed has no legal operation as a deed executed and registered by other executants. A document duly presented for registration can be registered only in respect of the executants who appear personally or by a representative and admit execution. If the document is registered upon the appearance and admission of one of the executants only, there is no effective registration as regards the other executants who neither appear, nor admit execution. duly authorised by a power of attorney executed and authenticated in the manner prescribed by S. 33. Where the document is presented for registration by an agent not so authorised the executant who attends merely to admit that he had executed it cannot be treated for the purpose of S 32 of Act III of 1877 as presenting the deed for registration. The terms of Ss. 32 and 33 of the Act are imperative. One object of those sections and Ss 34 and 35 of the Act was to make it difficult for persons to commit fraud by means of registration under the Act and it is the duty of Courts in India not to allow the imperative provisions of the Act to be defeated when it is proved that an agent who presented a document for registration had not been duly authorised in the manner prescribed by the Act to present it. Construction.

The provisions of S. 49 of this Act do not affect the admissibility of the evidence regarding the contract of sale of immoveable property of less than one hundred rupees where the deed is not registered and delivery of possession has not been given because S. 49 relates only to documents compulsorily registrable under S. 17. 25 I C. 772 : 38 M. 1158 Dist. (Bakewell and Phillips, JJ.) POOMALAI UDAYAN v KARUPPASERVAI. 34 I.C. 921 : (1916) 2 M.W. N, 136.

——Ss. 49, 59 to 61—Construction—"In accordance with the provisions of the Act"—Scope of.

The words "In accordance with the provisions of the Act" in S 49 of the Act refers only to the sections relating to procedure on admitting to Registration, i e., Ss.59 to 61 and not to admission to registration. The certificate is generally conclusive of the registration, though it may be set aside in case of fraud. Wrong acceptance of a document does not invalidate registration. ——S. 49 Construction.

The non-registration of a compulsorily registrable document leads to two consequences, (1) it is inadmissible in evidence of any transaction affecting immoveable property and (2) it cannot affect immoveable property comprised therein. The entry of an unregistered but compulsorily registrable agreement in a decree or order of Court would be relevant to prove the agreement. ——S. 49—Construction—Optional registration.

A deed of gift or transfer of sir land without reservation of occupancy rights and of other property as well, would be wholly inoperative and wholly inadmissible in evidence only by reason of the provisions of S. 49, which apply only to documents of which registration is compulsory under S, 17 of the same Act. They do not forbid the operation or admissibility in evidence of documents of which registration is optional under S. 18, and a Will is such a document. Provided therefore that the Will has been properly proved, it can operate in respect of all property mentioned in it which the testator was legally competent to devise, even if it was illegally registered. The executant did not appear before the Sub-Registrar and he refused to register the document. The grantee then moved the Registrar by an application falling under Ss. 71 and 72 of the Regn. Act, although it was one under S. 73 and was accompanied by a copy of the reasons recorded by the Sub-Registrar under S. 71 for refusing to register, and verified as required by S. 73. The facts were all stated in the application. The application was dismissed and a suit was brought under S. 77 for having the document registered. Held, that the suit was maintainable. The scope of a suit under the Regn. Act depends upon the proved or admitted facts and circumstances, and not upon erroneous mention of a section of the statute in an application to the Registrar Failure on the part of the executant to appear and admit execution of a document amounts to denial of execution. 5 C. 445 ; 16 C. 189; 25 C. 93, Rel. REGISTRATION ACT (XVI OF 1908), S. 72.

——Ss. 72, 76 and 77—Refusal to register—Refusal to admit to registration or accept for registration—Distinction—Remedy by suit.

There are three different expressions used in the Act, refusal to register, refusal to admit for registration and refusal to accept for registration. S. 72, where it says, that "An appeal shall lie against an order of the Sub Registrar refusing to admit a document for registration," refers to or case when registration has been refused rather than to cases where a Sub-Registrar have declined to accept a document at all at the first stage of his proceedings; in other words, refusal to admit to registration and refusal to register are the same thing. The Act, however, evidently intended some distinction between refusal to accept for registration and refusal to register. S. 19 of the Act lays down that the registering officer shall refuse to register a document which is in a language which he does not understand. S. 20 lays down that a registering officer may in his discretion refuse to accept for registration a deed in which an interlineation, erazure, etc occurs. S.21 again uses the expression "accept for registration" in prescribing the conditions necessary for the proper description of property to which a document relates. Where a Sub-Registrar refused to register a document mainly on the ground that the document was vague, that it was not executed in counter-part, and that execution was denied, there is a clear and unmistakeable refusal to register and one which was made not at the preminary hearing but after a regular proceeding to which both the parties had been summoned. (Pipon, J. C) MT. BIBI AIMNA v MAHOMED RUKAN ALAM. 73 I. C. 182:

——Ss. 72, 76 and 77—Refusal to register—Dismissal of appeal by Registrar—Suit to enforce registration.

If a Sub-Registrar refuses to register a document as presented out of time, and on appeal the Registrar rejects the appeal, the order of the latter is tantamount to refusing to order the document to be registered and a suit under S. 77 of that Act to enforce registration is maintainable. (Sanderson, C. J. and Woodroffe, J.) UMESH CHANDRA GHOSH v. NISTARINI DASI.

——Ss. 72, 73 and 76—Refusal of Sub-Registrar to register document—Failure to appear—Appeal—Application under S. 73—Dismissal for default—Power of Registrar to restore.

Refusal of the Sub-Registrar to register a document upon the wilful failure of the executant of the document to appear before the Sub-Registrar is not appealable to the Registrar as such failure amounts to a denial of execution within S. 72. The party presenting the deeds should in such cases apply to the Registrar under S. 73 to direct registration. On an application under S. 73 being dismissed for default, the Registrar can restore the matter and re-hear the case, at least before he finally disposes of the matter

The mere absence of verification as required by S. 73 (2) did not make the application one not in conformity to the provisions of that section, as the defect is merely one of form and not of substance (Abdul Raoof and Moti Sagar, JJ.) UTTAM SINGH v. MT RUTTAN DEVI.

Alienation by manager.

———Alienation by manager —Permanent Lease—Necessity—Presumption—Lapse of time.

There is no absolute prohibition against the grant of a permanent lease by the Manager of a religious endowment. Such a lease can be granted for strict necessity and though the burden is on the alienee or lessee to prove such necessity, yet the long lapse of time between the alienation and the challenge of its validity raises a presumption that the original grant was made in the exercise of the extended powers of the manager, i.e., for necessity. 19 M. 485 Ref. ——Alienation by manager— Necessity — Onus of proof Mahant—Chela Positions of—Right to contest alienation by Mahant.

In the case of a mortgage granted over the security of endowed property by theMahant thereof, it lies upon the mortgagee or those claiming through him to prove that the debt was a necessary expense of the institution itself. It is not uncommon in the case of celibate ascetics to take a minor as disciple in order that he might succeed to the office of Mahant after the death of the then Manant Where property is purchased from the income of an asthan it is trust property. A chela or disciple can protect the property of the endowment either by virtue of his interest as a possible future successor of the estate or by virtue of his being a person interested in the endowment. If he acts in the former capacity he is entitled to a declaration under S. 42 of the Sp. Rel. Act because a sale of the property would affect his contingent right. If he acts as a member of the public interested in the endowment he can adopt the procedure prescribed by O. 1, R. 8, C. P. Code. Being a disciple he has at all events, a contingent right to succeed to the officer of Mahant on the death of the present holder of the office and he can take steps to protect the endowed property against any acts of waste committed by the present holder of the office or against any threatened sale in execution of a decree not legally enforceable against the endowment. Dedication.

——Dedication—Proof—Conduct — Private and public trusts.

A man can create a private trust by building a temple and an idol and endowing it with funds or income for strictly private purposes not merely retaining the management and control in the hands of himself and his family, but restricting the enjoyment to himself and his family and he may out of the warmth of his heart allow other persons outside the original beneficiaries, to enjoy from time to time the advantages thereby created. But in such a case especially with a temple and idol publicly constituted and publicly accessible in which the appearance may be what one may describe as ambiguous,one would expect and ought to insist upon clear evidence of permission given or license given and permission withheld, because it is equally true that a private individual may construct out of his private purse a private temple and idol retaining the control and management in his own hands and in that of his family or some other selected individuals and yet so conduct himself as to provide conclusive evidence of dedication by implication by conduct. Once he has shown his intention to dedicate, the matter passes out of his hands and the beneficiaries to whom the use is dedicated, have a right in such use. Where there is no express deed of dedication or document creating the trust the courts have to depend almost entirely upon the history of the place and the user by people generally from time to time, to decide whether it is private or was intended to be a public trust (Walsh and Ryves, JJ.) RAM DAS v. MUSSAMMAT BASANTI.
20 A. L. J. 789 : 1922 All. 519.

——Dedication—Charitable gift—Perpetuity—Application of income.

Perpetuity is not necessary to a charitable gift. A donation may be a charity, and an endowment. RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENTS—Founder's rights.

———Dedication—Absolute or partial—Performance of services—Evidence of conduct.

Where a donor gifted lands, to a deity in a Hindu temple for the conduct of daily naivedyam and deeparadana by a specified archaka and concluded by saying that the said archaka and his sons and grandsons should enjoy the same for ever and render the services to the deity : Held, that the donee was the deity itself and the archaka was not entitled to the surplus income from the remaining after the performance of the services. It would be dangerous to hold that if the trustees of religious trusts have for many years been applying the income to their own personal use the Court must construe the trust deed in the light of such conduct. ——— De [illegible] plication of income—Long period.

The mere fact that the proceeds of any land were being applied in varying quantities and at recurring intervals to the maintenance of a temple is insufficient to show that the lands have been dedicated to it. Founder's rights.

———Founder's rights—Devolution of trusteeship.

When the worship of an idol has been founded the shebaitship is vested in the founder and his heirs unless he has disposed of it otherwise or there has been some usage or course of dealing which points to a different mode of devolution. 17 C. 3 ; 32 C. 129 ; 35 A. 283 ; 11 C. L. J. 2 ; 40 C. 251 ; 29 A. 663 ; 22 C. L. J. 404 ; 36 A. 161, Rel, In the application of this rule it may not always be easy to determine who are the founders. One person may provide the site of the temple another may build the temple and establish the idol, while a third may dedicate property for the performance of the daily services of the idol. Where the owner of the site relinquishes his right in the land, he may not be a founder unless he indicates at the time, expressly or impliedly, that he will associate himself with others in carrying out the objects of the foundation. Prima facie all the persons who establish the worship are entitled to take part in the management. If a number of persons provide the original endowment, they together constitute the founder. But persons who subsequent to the foundation furnish additional contributions do not thereby become joint founder; their benefaction is regarded as nothing beyond an accretion to an existing foundation. 24 M. 219; 7 M. 499; 17 C. 3, Ref. The shebaitship is vested in the founder and his heir unless he has disposed of it otherwise equally in the case of private and public endowments. No distinction between the two classes of cases has been drawn in this respect in the judicial decisions. 18 A. 277; 11 C. L. J. 2; 40 C. 251; 5 C. 228; 40 M. 612, Rel. Consequently whether a foundation is public or private the threefold principle is applicable, namely, (i) the devolution of the trust on the death or default of each trustee depends upon the terms on which it was created, of the usage of the particular institution where no express trust-deed exists; (ii) the worship of the idol is vested in the founder and his heirs, in default of evidence to show that he has disposed of it otherwise; (iii) and where a shebait appointed by the founder fails to nominate a successor in accordance with the conditions or usage of the endowment, the management reverts to the founder and his representatives even though the endowment has assumed a public character. W. N. 314, Rel. The founder is competent to provide for the government and administration of the trust and can give directions for its management not inconsistent with its character as a religious or charitable trust. The test in each case is whether the direction of the founder is inconsistent with the nature of the endowment as a religious or charitable trust. The proof of the intention of the founder becomes almost conclusive, when the usage is immemorial. The intention may be presumed from a number of instances extending over a limited period, if they are made out by clear and unambiguous evidence. Where the founder of an endowment prescribed the line of succession the shebaitship in the descendants of his sons and also directed that the descendants of his daughters would be entitled to participate in the bhog offerings dedicated to the idols established by him. Held, that it was competent to him to do so. Management of trusts.

———Management of trust—Dharmakarta of temple—Position and powers of—Conversion of trust property—Falsification of accounts—Removal.

The dharmakartha of a Hindu temple is in law a trustee. His position is not that of a shebait of a religious institution or of the mahant of a mutt These functionaries have a much higher right with larger power of disposal and administration and they have a personal interest of a beneficial character. 27 M. 435, Ref. But a dharmakarta is literally no more than the manager of a charity, and his rights, apart it may be in certain circumstances from the question of personal support, are never in a higher legal category than that of a mere trustee. Where the discoverable origins of property show it to be trust property the onus of establishing that it has legitimately come into the trustee's own rights is heavily upon the trustee who must show by the clearest and the most unimpeachable evidence the legitimacy of his personal acquisition. Where the trustee of a Hindu temple set up an unfounded assertion of private ownership in himself of the properties of the temple and resisted the recovery of those properties for the trust which he administered and supported that assertion by the concoction of false accounts filed as evidence in the case, he is guilty of seriously reprehensible conduct and is unfit to be retained in office of trustee. Management of trust—Suit by, in his capacity a manager for recovery of money due to temple—Temple owing money to the manager — Effect of.

Plff. sued as manager of a Hindu temple alleging himself to be hereditary trustee thereof, for the recovery of certain moneys due to the temple. In the course of the plaint the plaintiff stated that he had spent moneys out of his pocket for the temple and that he was entitled to be reimbursed in respect of those moneys. The trial Court took an undertaking from the plff. that he was recovering the money only on behalf of the temple and passed a decree in his favour as manager. The appellate court without going into the merits of the case dismissed the suit holding that the plaintiff claimed adversely to the temple as he was in effect trying to appropriate the moneys himself. Held, that the decree of the trial court was correct as the plaintiff was suing in terms as the manager of the temple. RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENTS—Mutt.

——Mutt—Head of—Powers of alienation—Legal necessity

The Mahant of an endowment is the proprietor of the property although he holds these properties in trust. He has very large administrative powers over the affairs of the asthan and undoubtedly has power to sell or mortgage the property in case of need or for the benefit of the asthan. That being so, it is impossible to maintain that he has no saleable interest in the properties of the asthan. Where therefore a mahant in order to defend his title as against a rival claimant borrowed large sums of money and the creditors in execution of decrees on these debts sold in execution the properties of the asthan held that the purchasers at the execution sale had acquired a valid title to the property in question, the debts having been contracted for necessary purposes. ——Mutt— Succession—Asthan—Mourasi—Mutt—Devolution of office—Custom of mahants

A mourasi asthan is one in which the office or mahant is hereditary and apart from custom devolves upon the chief disciple of the existing mahant. By the rules of the Satlakha Asthan in mouza Satlakha in the Muzeffarpore Dt. the senior bairagi chela on the death of the mahant is entitled to succeed to the mahantship. The principal chela or pupil is entitled to succeed on the death of the presiding mahant of a mourasi or hereditary matt. If the principal pupil be personally unfit to succeed or be disqualified by one of the grounds of disqualification specified in the shastras, then the presiding mahant should in his lifetime select a properly qualified pupil to succeed him. 6. Trustees.

——Trustee—Acts of majority—When binding on trust—Omission to consult some trustees—Effect of.

RELIGIOUS ENDOWMENTS—Miscellaneous.

In the case of religious endowments with many trustees or uralans, the general rule is that all of them are entitled to be consulted before any act is done in the management of the trust property. The act of the majority of the trustees in granting a lease of the trust property will be binding on the trust only when all the trustees are consulted and their wishes ascertained after mutual discussion. The mere fact that one of the trustees obtains a benefit from his trust does not abrogate the rule. (Oldfield and Ramesam, JJ.) MATAMULLA MANIKOTH PATTAM CHANDU v. KUTTIZIL RAYIRU. 15 L. ——Archakas—Position of.

The pujari or archaka is no the shebait of the temple; he is appointed by the shebait as the purohit to conduct the worship; but that does not transfer the rights and obligations of the shebait to the purohit and he is not entitled to be continued as a matter of right in his office as pujari. 16 W. ——Archaka—Hereditary archaka—Position of.

Hereditary archakas are only servants of the temple subject to the disciplinary jurisdiction of the trustee They have a right of suit if they are improperly prevented from performing the duties of their office or dismissed without good and proper reasons. The possession of the temple and its properties by an archaka is only that of servant and the trustee can take possession of them. ——Ss. 3 and 4—Suit against trustee or manager for removal.

It could not have been intended by the Legislature that where there is a Committee appointed under S. 3 which controls the trustee, Manager or Superintendent, a suit may be instituted not merely against the Committee, but independently of the Committee against the trustee, Manager or Superintendent for his removal. The fact that a Committee has been appointed under S. 3 and the Committee has worked for many years without protest and challenge is prima facie evidence that the endowment is of the character described in S. 3 of the Act. 12 M. 366 Rel. Per Napier, J.—A Temple Committee has power to frame rules for the guidance of trustee, but the rules should not intringe on the rights of the trustee arising by virtue of his trust and power of management. The rules should not reduce the trustee to the position of a servant of the Committee. In the absence of the evidence of the fact that Govt appointed the trustees it is insufficient to prove the right of appointment, because, under the Common Law, the sovereign has the right to appoint trustees when there were not found persons competent to make such appointment. —— ——Hereditary office—Surrender—Rights of the other members of the family—Right to transfer office

Hereditary offices, whether religious or secular, are treated by the texts as indivisible. But modern custom has sanctioned such partition as can be had of such property by means of the performance of the duties of the office and the enjoyment of the emoluments by the different co parceners in rotation. The office remains in the family and the transfer by one member of his share to another member of the family could not be considered in any way objectionable. It would only reduce the number of members who are entitled to the office and a share in the emoluments. If all the members of the family agree to give up the duties of performance of worship and receiving emoluments, there could be no objection to their doing so But there is a great difference between the whole group of members surrendering their rights to the grantor and one member purporting to give up his right to the grantor which would cause an interference with the rights of the other members of the family. The duties of the office and the emoluments appertaining thereto remain with the family of the original grantee and those members of the family, who wish to retain the office and share the emoluments, are entitled to do so, and if one of the members of the family wishes to get rid of his duties as well as his rights he could only do so in favour of the remaining members of the family, and he cannot evade the ordinary rule as to alienations by purporting to surrender his share to the original grantor or put in other words, the alienations of a share by one member of the family is invalid whether it is made in favour of an outsider altogether or whether it is made in favour of the original grantor of the office. ——Refusal of relief—Mere disagreement between husband and wife.

——Decree for—Discretion how to be exercised.

A Court has discretion to refuse a decree for restitution of conjugal rights but the refusal must be based on sound principles, a decree ought not to be refused for other causes than those which justify a wife in refusing to return to her husband. These latter include failure to pay prompt dower as in the case of a Mahomedan, cruelty, gross neglect of marital duties and connivance at the wife's adultery for a long period. (Scott Smith, J.) NIAZ ALI v. SAID JAN. 46 I. C. 112 : 67 P. W. R. 1918.

——Reference to arbitration—Relief discretionary - Delegation by Court.

It is entirely within the discretion of a Court to grant or refuse restitution of conjugal rights. But the Court cannot delegate this right of exercising discretion to arbitrators nor can it refer the entire suit to arbitration. (Shadi Lal, J.) KALABATU v. PRABH DIAL. 80 P. W. R. 1918: 45 I. RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS.

——Grounds for refusal—Deft. minor.

Where in a suit for restitution of conjugal rights the defendant was found to have been a minor at the time of marriage and that the consummation had not taken place and that the plff. had neglected to assert his marital rights for a long time, it would be a proper exercise of discretion to refuse restitution. The grant of a decree for restitution of conjugal rights is discretionary with this Court, 82 P. R. 1908 and 11 M. I. A 551, Foll. (Shadi Lal and Jones, JJ.) ZIADA v. JOWAI. 46 P. ——Suit by husband—Defence of cruelty—What is—English law—Applicability of.

Cruelty in the legal sense need not necessarily be physical cruelty. A course of conduct which, if persisted in, would undermine the health of the wife is a sufficient justification for refusing to the husband a decree for restitution of conjugal rights. Wherein a suit by a husband for restitution of conjugal rights it was found that he had falsely charged his wife with having attempted to poison him, that he had addressed her using the vilest epithets on several occasions, that he had generally treated her with loathing and disgust, that he threatened to push her by a low-caste man if she came back to his house, Held, that the husband was not entitled to a decree for restitution of conjugal rights. Great care should be exercised in importing wholesale into India the strict principles of the Ecclesiastical Law of England embodied in the decisions of English Courts. ——Keeping a low-caste mistress—Bona fides—Laches—"Legal cruelty"—English and Mahomedan law.

It is no defence to a suit by a Mahomedan against his wife for restitution of conjugal rights that the husband was keeping a low-caste mistress, that there has been considerable delay in the filing of the suit and the same is not bona fide. A husband will not be deemed guilty of legal cruelty towards his wife, unless his conduct is such as to render future co-habitation more or less dangerous to her life, or limb, or mental or bodily health. There is no difference between the English law and the Mahomedan law in this respect. 11 M. I A. 551, Foll. : 29 A 222, Dist. ——Proof of marriage—Presumption.

In a suit for restitution of conjugal rights, very strict proof of marriage is essential but in the absence of proof to the contrary, presumption as to the necessary marriage ceremonies will be raised from general evidence of marriage. 28 Cal. 37 and 12 Cal. 140, Dist. (White, C. J. and Oldfield, J) SIVARAMA PILLAI v. VEERAPPA PILLAI. 23 I. C 828.

——Decree for—Whether granted despite plff.'s want of bona fides.

Courts will not be justified in refusing restitution to the husband because there was some sort of ill-treatment in the early stages of married life, especially when the parties have made up their differences and agreed to live together afterwards. Proof of recent ill-treatment alone would be a bar to relief. Suits for restitution by a husband would not be lacking in bona fides because he does not wish to pay separate maintenance allowance to the wife ordered by a Magistrate. The suit would have to be decreed if otherwise the husband is entitled. (Abdur Rahim and Sundara Aiyar, JJ) PEDAPATI DURGAYYA v. PEDAPATI MANIKYAM. 16 I. C. 808.

——Refusal—Grounds for.

A decree for restitution of conjugal rights can be refused only on grounds which would justify the wife in refusing to return and live with her husband, as for example habitual physical cruelty. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) DAMODHAR GANESH v. PARBATI. 1924 N. 72.

——Suit for, nature of.

——Decree for—Manner of enforcing.

A person who has got a decree against his wife who is under the age of majority for restitution of conjugal rights, can enforce the same by filing an application for execution and it is for the executing Court to decide whether it should be enforced by the imprisonment of the wife or not. He cannot apply no such case for being appointed the guardian of his wife. (Scott, J.) ASIBAI v. GIRDHARI RAM. 67 I. C. 882 (B) : 3 P. L. J. 293.

RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS.

———Defence—Cruelty—Use of liquor.

That the husband was addicted to the use of alcohol and that he occasionally beat his wife when he was drunk, is no defence to a suit for restitution of conjugal rights where it is not proved that the husband is habitually the worse or habitually beats the wife or assaults her with brutality. ———Jurisdiction of Civil Courts—Defence—Shiah School.

The Civil Courts in India have the same jurisdiction as was exercised by the Khazi or the umpires. A plea of legal cruelty on the part of the husband is a valid defence to a suit for restitution of conjugal rights even among Shiahs. A plea of legal cruelty could be sustained only when there is actual violence of such a character as to endanger personal health or safety or where there is a reasonable apprehension of such violence. 13 A. 126; 21 B. 610; 10 B. 601, Dist. 8 W.R. 3 (P.C.) If the Court refuses to give relief on the ground that the suit can be brought by the minor after he has arrived at the age of majority, then the minor's interest may be seriously prejudiced by reason of important evidence disappearing by the time the suit is brought. ——— Public and navigable river—Test of.

The test for determining whether a river is a public navigable river or not is whether or not river is navigable for boats at all seasons of the year. The question of size may not be without importance but speaking generally the presumption in the one case is that the bed belongs to the public or is public domain and in the other that the bed belongs to private proprietor. In the absence of any other evidence than that afforded by a thak or survey map these natural presumptions may be sufficient to displace the contrary evidence of the map. 30 Cal. 291, 29 C. L. By the common law of this country the right to the soil of a non-navigable river flowing through the estate of different proprietors belongs to the riparian owners ad medium filum aquae. A boundary given as the road of the river is the middle of the road or river. Therefore permanently settled estates bounded by a non navigable river include half of the bed of the river. The test as to whether a river is navigable or not, is to see if boats can pass on it at times of the year. (Fletcher and Shamsul Huda, JJ.) MAHARAJA OF BURDWAN v. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.

The right to water flowing through artificial courses is right of easement, and must rest on some grant or some arrangement, either proved or presumed from, or with the owners of the land from which the water is artificially brought, or in some legal origin. It is quite distinct from the natural right, which, is a natural incident to the ownership of land, and entitles prima facie each successive riparian proprietor to the unimpleaded flow of water of a natural channel in its natural course, and to its reasonable enjoyment as it passes through his land. In the case of artificial water course where no easement or customary right enjoyed by the plaintiff has been proved only diminution of supply (and not complete stoppage) will not entitle plaintiff to an injunction. Until plaintiff proves that he has used the whole water of the watercourse as of right. S. 26 of the Limitation Act does not avail him. (Campbell, J.) BELA SINGH v. BALI RAM.

———Stream, what is.

A 'stream' denotes a body of water having a continuous flow in one direction. Water not so flowing but becoming dissipated in the earth's strata and simply percolating through or along those strata until it issues from them at a lower level is not a stream and the principles regulating the rights to water flowing in defined channels do not apply to such water An owner through whose lands such water passes is entitled to appropriate as much of it as he requires without regard to the requirements of owners lower down. (Martineau, J.) NAGINA SINGH v. MALHI.

64 I. C. 158: 3 Lah. L. J. 555.

———Ownership of river bed—Tidal and navigable rivers—Presumption—Lankas in Krishna river.

As regards the portion of a river-bed where a river is both tidal and navigable, there is a very strong presumption that it belongs to the Crown; where however the river is not tidal, the question whether the bed must be presumed to belong to the Government or the riparian owners on either bank, will depend on the fact whether the river is navigable in the legal sense. 41 M. 840 F. B., Rel. on. A river in India is not navigable in the legal sense unless it is navigable throughout the year. 42 C. 489; 46 C. 390 Rel. Per Burn, J.—Conditions in Madras are so dissimilar from those in Great Britain that the English Common Law rules as to the ownership of river-beds should not be applied here without modification and public rights should be recognized in the beds of rivers which are navigable but not tidal. The lankas and kedlanas formed in the bed of the Krishna river at a place where it was navigable only for about 4 months in the year belonged to the riparian owners on either bank and not to the Government (Sadasiva Aiyar and Burn, JJ.) SECRETARY OF STATE FO INDIA v. VENKATANARASIMHA NAIDU. 11 L. ———Ownership of bed and banks—Presumption—Accretion—Right to.

Accretions in non-tidal and non-navigable rivers in India belong to the riparian landlords. It is part of the common law of India that the ownership of river-beds usque ad medium filum aquae is presumed, to vest in the riparian owners. But the presumption is capable of being rebutted. 41 Mad 840 and 42 Mad. 239 Ref. A person does not lose his title to land by its mere submersion under water so long as the land is identifiable. Non-resistance to vis major such as flood which causes the change of a river course, cannot be treated as evidence of acquiescence or of abandonment of rights by a riparian owner. ———Water course—Ownership in bed of natural water course—Having lands on both sides of the channel—Whether sufficient proof.

In the case of a natural water course, the person claiming the bed of the stream against the Government has to prove that he is the owner. The fact that the plff. is shown to be the owner of lands on both sides of the stream in a document to which the Government is not a party is not sufficient to establish his ownership. (Benson and Munro, JJ.) KRISHNA BHATTA v. SECRETARY OF STATE. 21 I. C. 720: 25 M. L. J. 161.

No claim can be made either as a natural right or as an easement by prescription except to water flowing in a defined channel, and no such claim can be made to the surface water. Whether a particular water is surface water or not, is a question of fact to be determined by circumstances. Well-defined existence arising from an ascertained source is the test against any water being the surface water. The right to water in a stream is sustainable even though the water in the stream is not sufficient for the purpose claimed or it flows to the plff.'s land only indirectly. ——Rights of riparian owners are natural rights.

The right of a riparian owner does not depend on the ownership of the soil of the stream. It belongs to him as a natural right incident to the right to the land adjoining the river. It is not based on prescription or presumed grant. So long as the river has a natural origin and flows in a known channel his right to use its water when it flows along side his land is unaffected. In addition to this right he may, when the water recedes, have an easement to go across the land of another but such user can be claimed only by virtue of prescription or custom. (*Kanhaiya Lal, A. ——Natural and artificial streams.

The rights of riparian owners to natural streams are jure naturae, incident to the ownership of the soil of the land abutting upon the stream. The rights to water flowing through artificial water-courses are rights of easement and must rest on some grant or arrangement, proved or presumed, where the channel of a stream continues as a definite water-course up to a certain point, and then spreads along certain fields but again runs as a definite course, the identity of the water is not destroyed and is subject to riparian rights. The Secretary of State for India is one of His Majesty's five principal Secretaries of State, and as such can discharge most if not all of the duties of the other four, as they can discharge most, if not all, of his duties. He is an officer of the British Government in the fullest sense. A contract is none the less made with the Secretary of State though he has to obtain the concurrence of others (members of his Council) before making it, and that he and they are designated by status as liable to be sued or to sue on it as a corporate body. The personality of the Secretary of State is not merged in any corporation by the statute 1858, for the better Government of India nor in that of the Council. ——— Liability of Government for illegal acts of its officers.

The Govt. is not liable for illegal orders of its servant under a statutory power conferred upon him. The Collector could not be treated as the agent of the Govt. of Madras for illegal orders nor could Govt. ratify that act. That grounds of public policy require that a Govt should not be liable for the tortious acts of its agents or servants other than those done in case of transactions into which an ordinary private firm can enter. ——Charter party—Mortgagee taking security with notice of charter party—Positions of charterer—Non-specification of lay and cancelling dates.

The position of the charterer, where the mortgagee took his security with notice of the charter party, is stronger than when the mortgage was prior to the charter party. An agreement for the letting of a ship to a charterer implies that she shall not be employed for any other person or purpose during the currency of the charter party provided the charterer is ready to supply the cargo. Where twelve charter parties for twelve consecutive voyages were signed by the parties, the fact that the lay and cancelling dates have not been specified in the charter parties does not make the contract incomplete. ——Wages of mariner—Liability of master.

Mariners have a three-fold security for their wages, they may proceed against the owner; secondly they may proceed against the vessel and thirdly may sue the captain of the ship. Consequently even though a mariner has been appointed by the owner of the estate he is entitled to recover his wages against the master of the ship Consequently the master of the ship can sue for the recovery of his wages and messing charges together with the wages and messing charges of the chief engineer and other mariners in the ship. ——Prize—Confiscation of cargo in enemy ship.

A German ship was captured at sea after the declaration of war and condemned. Claims were submitted on account of goods shipped before the war by the British subjects to British merchants and goods shipped by Brtish subjects to German merchants. Held, that in determining the question of liability to confiscation, regard must be had to the property in the goods and not to the risk except as it may assist the Court in deciding the question, "To whom the goods belonged at the time of capture". In the circumstances of the case, the bills of lading being still with the sellers, the property had not passed to the buyers, though goods might have been appropriated towards the contract and that they were liable to confiscation. ——Arrest of ship—Trespass—Damages—Maritime necessities—Action in rem.

An ordinary suit for mere trespass did not lie for the arrest of a ship. There is no trace of any such suit in the books. The arrest of the ship is a judicial act of the Court and an ordinary step in an action in rem, so, where it constitutes a legal grievance, it is not an independent wrong, but an integral part of an action in rem in which there was malice, or its equivalent, entitling the aggrieved person to seek compensation either in the admiralty proceedings or by separate action. But the arrest by the Marshal of Calcutta as an officer of the Court, and the subsequent detention by the Court do not constitute a detention due to the default of a party. The English decisions must be the guide in dealing with the maritime matters in India. (Jenkins, C. J and Stephen, J.) MADRAS STEAM NAVIGATION CO. v. SHALIMAR WORKS, LTD. 28 I. A claim for general average contribution is sustainable only when the vessel reaches a port safely. Claim for necessaries can be enforced in a Colonial Court of Admiralty by a suit in rem and such a suit can presumably be instituted in any Admiralty Court within whose jurisdiction the ship happens to be at the time when the suit is instituted. Before there can be an action in rem there must be a personal liability on the part of the owner. Though necessaries supplied to a ship are prima facie presumed to have been supplied on the credit of the ship this prima facie presumption may be rebutted by evidence of fact going to show that the person who has supplied or paid for the necessaries looked for payment to the person at whose instance he furnished the supplies or advanced monies and not to the owner of the ship. The equitable rule of proportion is applied in cases of mixture of unidentifiable cargo belonging to different owners caused by accident with respect to the sound and unsound portions of the whole mixture. An exception in the bill-of-lading protecting the ship-owner from liability for marks made by the shipper for identifying the cargo, throws the onus on the shipper to prove that a particular bag claimed forms part of his and not that of any other consignee ; if contents of sugar bags are lost by bad stitching the ship owners is excused under the bill-of-lading even though it states that it was received in a sound condition. SIND COURTS ACT (BOM. ACT XII OF 1866).

———S. 16—Pleader — Misbehaviour — Misconduct not connected with profession.

The jurisdiction of the Judicial Commissioner under S. 16 of the Sind Courts Act extends not only to professional misbehaviour but to general misconduct. While the jurisdiction is unlimited, the Court is reluctant to take cognisance of misconduct not connected with the office of pleader unless it is morally disgraceful or shows that the individual is not a proper person to hold that office. Sub-section A of the General Clauses Act of 1897, S. 28 of the Sind Act of 1881 applies only to voluntary alienation of parties.
